

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE ARGUMENT.

Æneas relates how the city of Troy was taken, after a ten years siege, by the treachery of Sinon, and the stratagem of a wooden horse. He declares the fixed resolution he had taken, not to survive the ruins of his country, and the various adventures he met with in the defence of it: at last, having been before advised by Hector's ghost, and now by the appearance of his mother Venus, he is prevailed upon to leave the town, and settle his household gods in another country. In order to this, he carries off his father on his shoulders, and leads his little son by the hand, his wife following him behind. When he comes to the place appointed for the general rendezvous, he finds a great confluence of people, but misses his wife, whose ghost afterwards appears to him, and tells him the land which was designed for him.

ALL were attentive to the god-like man,
 When, from his lofty couch, he thus began:
 Great queen! what you command me to relate,
 Renews the sad remembrance of our fate,
 An empire from its old foundations rent,                   5
 And every woe the Trojans underwent:
 A peopled city made a desert place;
 All that I saw, and part of which I was:
 Not ev'n the hardest of our foes could hear,
 Nor stern Ulysses tell without a tear.                   10
 And now the latter watch of wasting night,
 And setting stars, to kindly rest invite.
 But, since you take such interest in our woe,
 And Troy's disastrous end desire to know,
 I will refrain my tears, and briefly tell                   15
 What in our last and fatal night befel.
 By destiny compell'd, and in despair,
 The Greeks grew weary of the tedious war:
 And, by Minerva's aid, a fabric rear'd,
 Which, like a steed of monstrous height, appear'd; 20
 The sides were plank'd with pine, they feign'd it made
 For their return, and this the vow they paid.
 Thus they pretend; but in the hollow side
 Selected numbers of their soldiers hide:
 With inward arms the dire machine they load,                   25
 And iron bowels stuff the dark abode.
 In sight of Troy lies Tenedos, an isle
 (While fortune did on Priam's empire smile)
 Renown'd

Renown'd for wealth; but since a faithless boy,
 Where ships expos'd to winds and weather lay. 30
 There was their fleet conceal'd: we thought for Greece
 The sails were hoisted, and our fears relax'd.
 The Trojans, coop'd within their walls so long,

Unbar their gates, and issue in a throng,
 Like swarming bees, and, with delight, survey 35
 The camp deserted where the Grecians lay:
 The quarters of the several chiefs they show'd,
 Here Phoenix, here Achilles made abode, }
 Here join'd the battles, there the navy rode. } Part on the pile their wondering eyes employ 40
 (The pile by Pallas rais'd to ruin Troy).
 Thymætus first ('tis doubtful whether hir'd,
 Or so the Trojan destiny requir'd)
 Mov'd that the ramparts might be broken down,
 To lodge the monster fabric in the town. 45
 But Capys, and the rest of sounder mind,
 The fatal present to the flames design'd;
 Or to the watery deep: at least to bore
 The hollow sides, and hidden frauds explore:
 The giddy vulgar, as their fancies guide, 50
 With noise say nothing, and in parts divide.
 Laocoon, followed by a numerous crowd,
 Ran from the fort; and cry'd, from far, aloud;
 O wretched countrymen! what fury reigns?
 What more than madness has possess'd your brains?
 Think you the Grecians from your coasts are gone,
 And are Ulysses' arts no better known?

This hollow fabric either must inclose,
 Within its blind recess, our secret foes;
 Or 'tis an engine rais'd above the town, 6c
 T' o'erlook the walls, and then to batter down.
 Somewhat is sure design'd; by fraud or force;
 Trust not their presents, nor admit the horse.
 Thus having said, against the steed he threw
 His forceful spear, which, hissing as it flew, 65
 Pierc'd through the yielding planks of jointed wood,
 And trembling in the hollow belly stood.
 The sides transpierc'd return a rattling sound,
 And groans of Greeks inclos'd come issuing through the wound.

And had not heaven the fall of Troy design'd, 70 }
 Or had not men been fated to be blind, }
 Enough was said and done, t' inspire a better mind: }
 Then had our lances pierc'd the treacherous wood,
 And Illian towers and Priam's empire stood.
 Mean time, with shouts, the Trojan shepherds bring
 A captive Greek in bands, before the king:
 Taken, to take; who made himself their prey,
 T' impose on their belief, and Troy betray.
 Fix'd on his aim, and obstinately bent
 To die undaunted, or to circumvent.
 About the captive, tides of Trojans flow;
 All press to see, and some insult the foe.
 Now hear how well the Greeks their wiles disgu
 Behold a nation in a man compris'd.
 Trembling the miscreant stood, unarm'd and b
 He star'd, and roll'd his hagard eyes around;

Then said, Alas! what earth remains, what sea
Is open to receive unhappy me!

What fate a wretched fugitive attends,
Scorn'd by my foes, abandon'd by my friends! 90
He said, and sigh'd, and cast a rueful eye:
Our pity kindles, and our passions die.
We cheer the youth to make his own defence,
And freely tell us what he was, and whence:
What news he could impart, we long to know, 95
And what to credit from a captive foe.

His fear at length dismiss'd, he said, what'er
My fate ordains, my words shall be sincere:
I neither can, nor dare, my birth disclaim;
Greece is my country, Sinon is my name: 100
Though plung'd by fortune's power in misery,
'Tis not in fortune's power to make me lye.
If any chance has hither brought the name
Of Palamedes, not unknown to fame,
Who suffer'd from the malice of the times; 105
Accus'd and sentenc'd for pretended crimes:
Because the fatal wars he would prevent;
Whose death the wretched Greeks too late lament;
Me, then a boy, my father, poor and bare
Of other means, committed to his care: 110
His kinsman and companion in the war.
While fortune favour'd, while his arms support
The cause, and rul'd the counsels of the court,
I made some figure there; nor was my name
Obscure, nor I without my share of fame. 115

But when Ulyſſes, with fallacious arts,
 Had made impreſſion in the peoples' hearts;
 And forg'd a treaſon in my patron's name
 (I ſpeak of things too far divulg'd by fame),
 My kinfman fell; then I, without ſupport, 120
 In private mourn'd his loſs, and left the court.
 Mad as I was, I could not bear his fate
 With ſilent grief, but loudly blam'd the ſtate:
 And curs'd the direful author of my woes.
 'Twas told again, and hence my ruin roſe. 125
 I threaten'd, if indulgent heaven once more
 Would land me ſafely on my native ſhore,
 His death with double vengeance to reſtore. }
 This mov'd the murderer's hate, and ſoon enſu'd
 Th' effects of malice from a man ſo proud. 130
 Ambiguous rumours through the camp he ſpread,
 And fought, by treaſon, my devoted head:
 New crimes invented, left unturm'd no ſtone,
 To make my guilt appear, and hide his own.
 Till Calchas was by force and threatening wrought:
 But why—why dwell I on that anxious thought?
 If on my nation juſt revenge you ſeek,
 And 'tis t' appear a foe, t' appear a Greek;
 Already you my name and country know,
 Aſſuage your thirſt of blood, and ſtrike the blow: 140
 My death will both the kingly brothers pleaſe,
 And ſet infatiate Ithacus at eaſe.
 This fair unfiniſh'd tale, theſe broken ſtarts,
 Rais'd expectations in our longing hearts;
 Unknowing as we were in Grecian arts, 145 }

His

His former trembling once again renew'd,
 With acted fear, the villain thus pursu'd:
 Long had the Greeians (tir'd with fruitless care,
 And weary'd with an unsuccessful war)
 Resolv'd to raise the siege, and leave the town; 150
 And, had the gods permitted, they had gone.
 But oft the wintry seas and southerly winds
 Withstood their passage home, and chang'd their minds.
 Portents and prodigies their souls amaz'd;
 But most, when this stupendous pile was rais'd: 155
 Then flaming meteors, hung in air, were seen,
 And thunders rattled through a sky serene:
 Dismay'd, and fearful of some dire event,
 Eurpylus, t' enquire their fate, was sent;
 He from the gods this dreadful answer brought; 160
 O Grecians! when the Trojan shores you fought,
 Your passage with a virgin's blood was bought;
 So must your safe return be bought again,
 And Grecian blood once more atone the main!
 The spreading rumour round the people ran; 165
 All fear'd, and each believ'd himself the man.
 Ulysses took th' advantage of their fright;
 Call'd Calchas, and produc'd in open sight:
 Then bade him name the wretch, ordain'd by fate
 The public victim, to redeem the state. 170
 Already some presag'd the dire event,
 And saw what sacrifice Ulysses meant.
 For twice five days the good old seer withstood
 The intended treason, and was dumb to blood.

Till, tir'd with endless clamours, and pursuit 175
 Of Ithacus, he stood no longer mute:
 But, as it was agreed, pronounc'd that I
 Was destin'd by the wrathful gods to die!
 All prais'd the sentence, pleas'd the storm should fall
 On one alone, whose fury threaten'd all. 180
 The dismal day was come, the priests prepare
 Their leaven'd cakes, and fillets for my hair.
 I follow'd nature's laws, and must avow
 I broke my bonds, and fled the fatal blow.
 Hid in a weedy lake all night I lay, 185
 Secure of safety when they fail'd away.
 But now what further hopes for me remain,
 To see my friends or native soil again?
 My tender infants, or my careful fire,
 Whom they returning will to death require? 190
 Will perpetrate on them their first design,
 And take the forfeit of their heads for mine!
 Which, O, if pity mortal minds can move,
 If there be faith below, or gods above,
 If innocence and truth can claim desert, 195
 Ye Trojans, from an injur'd wretch avert.
 False tears true pity move: the king commands
 To loose his fetters, and unbind his hands:
 Then adds these friendly words; Dismiss thy fears,
 Forget the Greeks, be mine as thou wert theirs: 200
 But truly tell, was it for force or guile,
 Or some religious end, you rais'd this pile
 Thus said the king. He, full of fraudulent arts,
 This well-invented tale for truth imparts:

Ye lamps of heaven! he said, and lifted high 205
 His hands now free, thou venerable sky,
 Inviolable powers, ador'd with dread,
 Ye fatal fillets, that once bound this head,
 Ye sacred altars, from whose flames I fled, }
 Be all of you abjur'd; and grant I may, 210
 Without a crime, th' ungrateful Greeks betray!
 Reveal the secrets of the guilty state,
 And justly punish whom I justly hate!
 But you, O king! preserve the faith you gave,
 If I, to save myself, your empire save. 215
 The Grecian hopes, and all th' attempts they made,
 Were only founded on Minerva's aid.
 But from the time when impious Diomede,
 And false Ulysses, that inventive head,
 Her fatal image from the temple drew, 220
 The sleeping guardians of the castle slew,
 Her virgin statue with their bloody hands
 Polluted, and profan'd her holy bands:
 From thence the tide of fortune left their shore,
 And ebb'd much faster than it flow'd before: 225
 Their courage languish'd, as their hopes decay'd,
 And Pallas, now averse, refus'd her aid.
 Nor did the goddess doubtfully declare
 Her alter'd mind, and alienated care:
 When first her fatal image touch'd the ground, 230
 She sternly cast her glaring eyes around;
 That sparkled as they roll'd, and seem'd to threat:
 Her heavenly limbs distill'd a briny sweat.

Thrice

Thrice from the ground she leap'd, was seen to wield
 Her brandish'd lance, and shake her horrid shield! 235
 Then Calchas bade our host for flight prepare,
 And hope no conquest from the tedious war:
 Till first they sail'd for Greece; with prayers besought
 Her injur'd power, and better omens brought.
 And now their navy ploughs the watery main, 240 }
 Yet, soon expect it on your shores again,
 With Pallas pleas'd; as Calchas did ordain. }
 But first, to reconcile the blue-ey'd maid,
 For her stolen statue, and her tower betray'd;
 Warn'd by the fear, to her offended name 245
 We rais'd, and dedicate this wondrous frame:
 So lofty, left through your forbidden gates
 It pass, and intercept our better fates.
 For, once admitted there, our hopes are lost;
 And Troy may then a new Palladium boast. 250
 For so religion and the gods ordain;
 That if you violate with hands profane
 Minerva's gift, your town in flames shall burn,
 (Which omen, O ye gods, on Græcia turn)!
 But if it climb, with your assisting hands, 255
 The Trojan walls, and in the city stands,
 Then Troy shall Argos and Mycæne burn,
 And the reverse of fate on us return.
 With such deceits he gain'd their easy hearts,
 Too prone to credit his perfidious arts, 260
 What Diomed, nor Thetis' greater son,
 A thousand ships, nor ten years siege had done: }
 False tears and fawning words the city won. }

A greater

A greater omen, and of worfe portent,
 Did our unwary minds with fear torment: 265 }
 Concurring to produce the dire event.
 Laocoon, Neptune's priest by lot that year,
 With solemn pomp then sacrific'd a steer.
 When, dreadful to behold, from sea we spy'd
 Two serpents rank'd abreast, the seas divide, 270 }
 And smoothly sweep along the swelling tide.
 Their flaming crests above the waves they show,
 Their bellies seem to burn the seas below:
 Their speckled tails advance to steer their course,
 And, on the founding shore, the flying billows force.
 And now the strand, and now the plain they held,
 Their ardent eyes with bloody streaks were fill'd:
 Their nimble tongues they brandish'd as they came,
 And lick'd their hissing jaws that sputter'd flame.
 We fled amaz'd; their destin'd way they take, 280
 And to Laocoon and his children make:
 And first around the tender boys they wind,
 Then with their sharpen'd fangs their limbs and bodies grind.
 The wretched father, running to their aid
 With pious haste, but vain, they next invade: 285
 Twice round his waist their winding volumes roll'd,
 And twice about his gasping throat they fold.
 The priest, thus doubly chok'd, their crests divide,
 And, towering o'er his head, in triumph ride.
 With both his hands he labours at the knots, 290
 His holy fillets the blue venom blots:

His

His roaring fills the flitting air around.
 Thus, when an ox receives a glancing wound,
 He breaks his bands, the fatal altar flies,
 And, with loud bellowings, breaks the yielding skies.
 Their tasks perform'd, the serpents quit their prey,
 And to the tower of Pallas make their way:
 Couch'd at her feet, they lie protected there,
 By her large buckler, and protended spear.
 Amazement seizes all; the general cry 300
 Proclaims Laocoon justly doom'd to die,
 Whose hand the will of Pallas had withstood,
 And dar'd to violate the sacred wood.
 All vote t' admit the steed, that vows be paid,
 And incense offer'd, to th' offended maid. 305
 A spacious breach is made, the town lies bare,
 Some hoisting levers, some the wheels prepare,
 And fasten to the horses feet: the rest
 With cables hawl along th' unwieldy beast.
 Each on his fellow for assistance calls: 310
 At length the fatal fabric mounts the walls,
 Big with destruction. Boys with chaplets crown'd,
 And choirs of virgins, sing and dance around,
 Thus rais'd aloft, and then descending down,
 It enters o'er our heads, and threatens the town. 315
 O sacred city! built by hands divine!
 O valiant heroes of the Trojan line!
 Four times he stuck; as oft the clashing sound
 Of arms was heard, and inward groans rebound.
 Yet, mad with zeal, and blinded with our fate, 320
 We hawl along the horse in solemn state;

Then

Then place the dire portent within the tower.
 Cassandra cry'd, and curs'd the unhappy hour;
 Foretold our fate; but, by the gods decree,
 All heard, and none believ'd, the prophecy. 325
 With branches we the fanes adorn, and wafte
 In jollity the day ordain'd to be the last.
 Mean time the rapid heavens roll'd down the light,
 And on the shaded ocean rush'd the night:
 Our men secure, nor guards nor centries held, 330
 But easy sleep their weary limbs compell'd.
 The Grecians had embark'd their naval powers
 From Tenedos, and fought our well-known shores:
 Safe under covert of the silent night,
 And guided by th' imperial galley's light. 335
 When Sinon, favour'd by the partial gods,
 Unlock'd the horse, and op'd his dark abodes;
 Restor'd to vital air our hidden foes,
 Who joyful from their long confinement rose.
 Tyfander bold, and Sthenelus their guide, 340
 And dire Ulyffes, down the cable slide:
 Then Thoas, Athamas, and Pyrrhus haste;
 Nor was the Podalyrian hero last:
 Nor injur'd Menelaus, nor the fam'd
 Epeus, who the fatal engine fram'd. 345
 A nameless crowd succeed; their forces join
 T' invade th' town, oppress'd with sleep and wine.
 Those few they find awake, first meet their fate,
 Then to their fellows they unbar the gate.
 'Twas in the dead of night, when sleep repairs 350
 Our bodies worn with toils, our minds with cares,
 When

When Hector's ghost before my fight appears:
 A bloody shroud he seem'd, and bath'd in tears.
 Such as he was, when, by Pelides slain,
 Theſſalian courſers dragg'd him o'er the plain. 335
 Swoln were his feet, as when the thongs were thruſt
 Through the bor'd holes, his body black with duſt.
 Unlike that Hector, who return'd from toils
 Of war triumphant, in Æacian ſpoils:
 Or him, who made the fainting Greeks retire, 360
 And launch'd againſt their navy Phrygian fire.
 His hair and beard ſtood ſtiffen'd with his gore;
 And all the wounds, he for his country bore,
 Now ſtream'd afreſh, and with new purple ran:
 I wept to ſee the viſionary man: 365 }
 And, while my trance continu'd, thus began:
 O light of Trojans, and ſupport of Troy,
 Thy father's champion, and thy country's joy!
 O, long expected by thy friends! from whence
 Art thou ſo late return'd for our defence? 370
 Do we behold thee, weary'd as we are,
 With length of labours, and with toils of war?
 After ſo many funerals of thy own,
 Art thou reſtor'd to thy declining town?
 But ſay, what wounds are theſe? What new diſgrace
 Deforms the manly features of thy face?
 To this the ſpectre no reply did frame;
 But answer'd to the cauſe for which he came:
 And, groaning from the bottom of his breaſt,
 This warning, in theſe mournful words, expreſs'd:
 O god-

O goddess-born! escape, by timely flight,
 The flames and horrors of this fatal night.
 The foes, already, have possess'd the wall,
 Troy nods from high, and totters to her fall.
 Enough is paid to Priam's royal name, 385
 More than enough to duty and to fame.
 If by a mortal hand my father's throne
 Could be defended, 'twas by mine alone:
 Now Troy to thee commends her future state,
 And gives her gods companions of thy fate: 390
 From their assistance happier walls expect,
 Which, wandering long, at last thou shalt erect.
 He said, and brought me, from their blest abodes,
 The venerable statues of the gods:
 With ancient Vesta from the sacred choir 395
 The wreaths and relics of th' immortal fire.
 Now peals of shouts come thundering from afar,
 Cries, threats, and loud laments, and mingled war!
 The noise approaches, though our palace stood Aloof from streets, encompass'd with a wood. 400
 Louder, and yet more loud, I hear th' alarms
 Of human cries distinct, and clashing arms!
 Fear broke my slumbers: I no longer stay,
 But mount the terrass, thence the town survey:
 And hearken what the fruitful sounds convey! 405 }
 Thus when a flood of fire by wind is born,
 Crackling it rolls, and mows the standing corn:
 Or deluges, descending on the plains,
 Sweep o'er the yellow year, destroy the pains }
 Of labouring oxen, and the peasant's gains: 410 }
 Unroot

Unroot the orest oaks, and bear away
 Flocks, folds, and trees, an undistinguish'd prey!
 The shepherd climbs the cliff, and sees, from far,
 The wasteful ravage of the watery war.
 Then Hector's faith was manifestly clear'd; 415
 And Grecian frauds in open light appear'd!
 The palace of Deiphobus ascends
 In smoaky flames, and catches on his friends.
 Ucalegon burns next; the seas are bright
 With splendor not their own; and shine with Trojan light. 420

New clamours and new clangors now arise,
 The sound of trumpets mix'd with fighting cries!
 With frenzy seiz'd, I run to meet th' alarms,
 Resolv'd on death, resolv'd to die in arms!
 But first to gather friends, with them to oppose, 425
 If fortune favour'd, and repel the foes.
 Spurr'd by my courage, by my country fir'd;
 With sense of honour, and revenge inspir'd!

Pantheus, Apollo's priest, a sacred name,
 Had 'scap'd the Grecian swords, and pass'd the flame;
 With relics loaden, to my doors he fled,
 And, by the hand, his tender grandson led.
 What hope, O Pantheus! whither can we run?
 Where make a stand? and what may yet be done?
 Scarce had I said, when Pantheus, with a groan, 435
 Troy is no more, and Ilium was a town!
 The fatal day, th' appointed hour, is come,
 When wrathful Jove's irrevocable doom

Transfers

Transfers the Trojan state to Grecian hands.
 The fire consumes the town, the foe commands! 440
 And armed hosts, an unexpected force,
 Break from the bowels of the fatal horse!
 Within the gates proud Sinon throws about
 The flames, and foes for entrance press without.
 With thousand others, whom I fear to name, 445
 More than from Argos or Mycenæ came.
 To several posts their parties they divide;
 Some block the narrow streets, some scour the wide.
 The bold they kill, th' unwary they surprize;
 Who fights finds death, and death finds him who flies.
 The warders of the gate but scarce maintain
 Th' unequal combat, and resist in vain.
 I heard; and heaven, that well-born souls inspires,
 Prompts me, through lifted swords and rising fires,
 To run, where clashing arms and clamour calls, 455
 And rush undaunted to defend the walls!
 Ripheus and Iphitus by my side engage,
 For valour one renown'd, and one for age.
 Dymas and Hypanis by moonlight knew
 My motions and my mien, and to my party drew; 460
 With young Choroëbus, who by love was led
 To win renown, and fair Cassandra's bed;
 And lately brought his troops to Priam's aid:
 Forewarn'd in vain by the prophetic maid.
 Whom, when I saw, resolv'd in arms to fall, 465
 And that one spirit animated all;
 Brave souls, said I, but brave, alas! in vain:
 Come, finish what our cruel fates ordain,

You see the desperate state of our affairs;
 And heaven's protecting powers are deaf to prayers. 4
 The passive gods behold the Greeks desile
 Their temples, and abandon to the spoil
 Their own abodes: we, feeble few, compare
 To save a sinking town involv'd in fire.
 Then let us fall, but fall amidst our foes: 4
 Despair of life, the means of living flows.
 So bold a speech encourag'd their desire
 Of death, and added fuel to their fire!

As hungry wolves, with raging appetite,
 Scoer through the fields, nor fear the stormy night, 4
 Their whelps at home expect the promis'd food,
 And long to temper their dry chaps in blood,
 So rush'd we forth at once, resolv'd to die,
 Resolv'd in death the last extremes to try!
 We leave the narrow lanes behind, and dare 48
 Th' unequal combat in the public square:
 Night was our friend, our leader was Despair.
 What tongue can tell the slaughter of that night!
 What eyes can weep the sorrows and affright!
 An ancient and imperial city falls,
 The streets are fill'd with frequent funerals:
 Houses and holy temples float in blood,
 And hostile nations make a common flood.
 Not only Trojans fall, but, in their turn,
 The vanquish'd triumph, and the victors mourn.
 Ours take new courage from despair and night;
 Confus'd the fortune is, confus'd the fight.

is resound with tumults, plaints, and fears, isly death in sundry shapes appears!
 eos fell among us, with his hand, 500
 ought us Grecians newly come to land:
 hence, said he, my friends, this long delay?
 ter, while the spoils are borne away.
 s are laden with the Trojan store,
 1, like truants, come too late ashore. 505
 , but soon corrected his mistake,
 y the doubtful answers which we make:
 he would have shunn'd th' unequal fight,
 more numerous, intercept his flight.
 1 some peasant, in a bushy brake, 510
 th unwary footing, press'd a snake,
 1 aside, astonish'd, when he spies
 g crest, blue neck, and rolling eyes;
 our arms surpriz'd Androgeos flies! } for him and his we compass round, 515 } with fear, unknowing of the ground;
 their lives an easy conquest found. } tune on our first endeavour smil'd;
 is then, with youthful hopes beguil'd, ith success, and of a daring mind, 520
 v invention fatally design'd.
 ds, said he, since fortune shows the way,
 ve should th' auspicious guide obey.
 : has she these Grecian arms bestow'd, destruction, and the Trojans good? 525
 nge we shields, and their devices bear,
 l supply the want of force in war.

They find us arms. This said, himself he dress'd
 In dead Androgeos' spoils, his upper vest,
 His painted buckler, and his plummy crest. } 530
 Thus Rypheus, Dymas, all the Trojain train,
 Lay down their own attire, and strip the slain.
 Mix'd with the Greeks, we go with ill presage,
 Flatter'd with hopes to glut our greedy rage:
 Unknown, assaulting whom we blindly meet, } 535
 And strew, with Grecian carcases, the street.
 Thus while their straggling parties we defeat,
 Some to the shore and safer ships retreat:
 And some, oppress'd with more ignoble fear,
 Remount the hollow horse, and pant in secret there. } 540
 But ah! what use of valour can be made,
 When heaven's propitious powers refuse their aid!
 Behold the royal prophets, the fair
 Cassandra, dragg'd by her dishevel'd hair;
 Whom not Minerva's shrine, nor sacred bands, } 545
 In safety could protect from sacrilegious hands:
 On heaven she cast her eyes, she sigh'd, she cry'd,
 ('Twas all she could), her tender arms were ty'd.
 So sad a sight Chorcæbus could not bear;
 But, fir'd with rage, distracted with despair, } 550
 Amid the barbarous ravishers he flew;
 Our leader's rash example we pursue;
 But storms of stones, from the proud temple's height,
 Pour down, and on our batter'd helmets alight:
 We from our friends receiv'd this fatal blow, } 555
 Who thought us Grecians, as we seem'd in show. }
 They

They aim at the mistaken crests, from high,
 And ours beneath the ponderous ruin lie.
 Then, mov'd with anger and disdain, to see
 Their troops dispers'd, the royal virgin free: 560
 The Grecians rally, and their powers unite,
 With fury charge us, and renew the fight.
 The brother-kings with Ajax join their force,
 And the whole squadron of Thessalian horse.
 Thus, when the rival winds their quarrel try, 565
 Contending for the kingdom of the sky,
 South, east, and west, on airy courfers borne,
 The whirlwind gathers, and the woods are torn:
 Then Nereus strikes the deep, the billows rise,
 And, mix'd with ooze and sand, pollute the skies. 570
 The troops we squander'd first, again appear
 From several quarters, and inclose the rear.
 They first observe, and to the rest betray,
 Our different speech; our borrow'd arms survey.
 Oppress'd with odds, we fall; Choroëbus first, 575
 At Pallas' altar, by Peneleus pierc'd.
 Then Rypheus follow'd, in th' unequal fight;
 Just of his word, observant of the right:
 Heaven thought not so: Dymas their fate attends,
 With Hypanis, mistaken by their friends. 580
 Nor Pantheus, thee, thy mitre nor the bands
 Of awful Phœbus, sav'd from impious hands.
 Ye Trojan flames, your testimony bear
 What I perform'd, and what I suffer'd there:
 No sword avoiding in the fatal strife, 585
 Expos'd to death, and prodigal of life.

Witness, ye heavens! I live not by my fault
 I strove to have deserv'd the death I fought.
 But when I could not fight, and would have dy'd,
 Borne off to distance by the growing tide, 590
 Old Iphitus and I were hurry'd thence,
 With Pelias wounded, and without defence.
 New clamours from th' invested palace ring;
 We run to die, or disengage the king.
 So hot th' assault, so high the tumult rose, 595
 While ours defend, and while the Greeks oppose,
 As all the Dardan and Argolic race
 Had been contracted in that narrow space:
 Or as all Ilium else were void of fear,
 And tumult, war, and slaughter only there. 600
 Their targets in a tortoise cast, the foes
 Secure advancing, to the turrets rose:
 Some mount the scaling-ladders; some, more bold,
 Swerve upwards, and by posts and pillars hold:
 Their left hand gripes their bucklers in th' ascent, 605
 While with the right they seize the battlement.
 From the demolish'd towers the Trojans throw
 Huge heaps of stones, that, falling, crush the foe:
 And heavy beams and rafters from the sides
 (Such arms their last necessity provides): 610
 And gilded roofs come tumbling from on high,
 The marks of state and ancient royalty.
 The guards below, fix'd in the pass, attend
 The charge undaunted, and the gate defend.
 Renew'd in courage, with recover'd breath, 615
 A second time we ran to tempt our death:

To clear the palace from the foe, succeed
 The weary living, and revenge the dead.
 A postern-door, yet unobserv'd and free,
 Join'd by the length of a blind gallery, 620
 To the king's closet led, a way well known
 To Hector's wife, while Priam held the throne:
 Through which she brought Astyanax, unseen,
 To cheer his grandfire and his grandfire's queen.
 Through this we pass, and mount the tower from whence,
 With unavailing arms, the Trojans make defence.
 From this the trembling king had oft descry'd
 The Grecian camp, and saw their navy ride.
 Beams from his lofty height with swords we hew;
 Then, wrenching with our hands, th' assault renew.
 And, where the rafters on the columns meet,
 We push them headlong with our arms and feet:
 The lightning flies not swifter than the fall,
 Nor thunder louder than the ruin'd wall:
 Down goes the top at once; the Greeks beneath 635
 Are piece-meal torn, or pounded into death,
 Yet more succeed, and more to death are sent;
 We cease not from above, nor they below relent.
 Before the gate stood Pyrrhus, threatening loud,
 With glittering arms conspicuous in the crowd. 640
 So shines, renew'd in youth, the crested snake,
 Who slept the winter in a thorny brake:
 And, casting off his slough, when spring returns,
 Now looks aloft, and with new glory burns:
 Restor'd with poisonous herbs, his ardent sides 645
 Reflect the sun, and, rais'd on spires, he rides;

High o'er the grass, hissing he rolls along,
 And brandishes, by fits, his forky tongue.
 Proud Periphas, and fierce Automedon,
 His father's charioteer, together run 650
 To force the gate: the Scyrian infantry
 Rush on in crouds, and the barr'd passage free.
 Entering the court, with shouts the skies they rend,
 And flaming firebrands to the roofs ascend.
 Himself, among the foremost, deals his blows, 655
 And, with his ax, repeated strokes bestows
 On the strong doors: then all their shoulders ply,
 Till from the posts the brazen hinges fly.
 He hews apace, the double bars at length
 Yield to his ax, and unresisted strength. 660
 A mighty breach is made; the rooms conceal'd
 Appear, and all the palace is reveal'd.
 The halls of audience, and of public state,
 And where the lonely queen in secret fate.
 Arm'd soldiers now by trembling maids are seen, 665
 With not a door, and scarce a space between.
 The house is fill'd with loud laments and cries,
 And shrieks of women rend the vaulted skies.
 The fearful matrons run from place to place,
 And kiss the thresholds, and the posts embrace. 670
 The fatal work inhuman Pyrrhus plies,
 And all his father sparkles in his eyes.
 Nor bars, nor fighting guards, his force sustain;
 The bars are broken, and the guards are slain.
 In rush the Greeks, and all th' apartments fill; 675
 Those few defendants whom they find they kill.

Not

Not with so fierce a rage, the foaming flood Roars, when he finds his rapid course withstood:
 Bears down the dams with unresisted sway,
 And sweeps the cattle and the cots away. 680
 These eyes beheld him, when he march'd between
 The brother-kings: I saw th' unhappy queen,
 The hundred wives, and where old Priam stood,
 To stain his hallow'd altar with his blood.
 The fifty nuptial beds (such hopes had he, 685
 So large a promise of a progeny).
 The posts of plated gold, and hung with spoils,
 Fell the reward of the proud victor's toils.
 Where'er the raging fire had left a space,
 The Grecians enter, and possess the place. 690
 Perhaps you may of Priam's fate enquire:
 He, when he saw his regal town on fire,
 His ruin'd palace, and his entering foes,
 On every side inevitable woes;
 In arms diffus'd, invests his limbs decay'd 695
 Like them, with age; a late and useless aid.
 His feeble shoulders scarce the weight sustain:
 Loaded, not arm'd, he creeps along with pain;
 Despairing of success: ambitious to be slain! }
 Uncover'd but by heaven, there stood in view 700
 An altar; near the hearth a laurel grew,
 Dodder'd with age, whose boughs encompass round
 The household gods, and shade the holy ground.
 Here Hecuba, with all her helpless train
 Of dames, for shelter sought, but sought in vain. 705 Driven

Driven like a flock of doves along the sky,
 Their images they hug, and to their altars fly.
 The queen, when she beheld her trembling lord,
 And hanging by his side a heavy sword,
 What rage, she cry'd, has seiz'd my husband's mind;
 What arms are these, and to what use design'd?
 These times want other aids: were Hector here,
 Ev'n Hector now in vain, like Priam, would appear.
 With us, one common shelter thou shalt find,
 Or in one common fate with us be join'd. 715
 She said, and with a last salute embrac'd
 The poor old man, and by the laurel plac'd.
 Behold Polites, one of Priam's sons,
 Pursued by Pyrrhus, there for safety runs.
 Through swords and foes, amaz'd and hurt he flies 720
 Through empty courts, and open galleries:
 Him Pyrrhus, urging with his lance, pursues,
 And often reaches, and his thrusts renews.
 The youth transfix'd, with lamentable cries,
 Expires, before his wretched parents' eyes. 725
 Whom, gasping at his feet, when Priam saw,
 The fear of death gave place to nature's law.
 And, shaking more with anger than with age,
 The gods, said he, requite thy brutal rage:
 As sure they will Barbarian! sure they must, 730
 If there be gods in heaven, and gods be just:
 Who tak'ft in wrongs an insolent delight,
 With a son's death t' infect a father's fight.
 Not he, whom thou and lying fame conspire
 To call thee his: not he, thy vaunted sire,

735
Thu

Thus us'd my wretched age: the gods he fear'd,
 The laws of nature and of nations heard.
 He chear'd my sorrows, and, for fums of gold,
 The bloodless carcase of my Hector fold.
 Pity'd the woes a parent underwent,
 And sent me back in safety from his tent.

This said, his feeble hand a javelin threw,
 Which, fluttering, seem'd to loiter as it flew:
 Just, and but barely, to the mark it held,
 And faintly tinkled on the brazen shield.

Then Pyrrhus thus: Go thou from me to fate;
 And to my father my foul deeds relate.

Now die: with that he dragg'd the trembling fire,
 Sliddering through clotter'd blood and holy mire
 (The mingled paste his murder'd son had made),
 Haul'd from beneath the violated shade,
 And on the sacred pile the royal victim laid.

His right hand held his bloody fauchion bare;
 His left he twisted in his hoary hair:

Then, with a speeding thrust, his heart he found:
 The lukewarm blood came rushing through the wound,

}

And sanguine streams distain'd the sacred ground.

Thus Priam fell, and shar'd one common fate
 With Troy in ashes, and his ruin'd state:

He, who the sceptre of all Asia sway'd,
 Whom monarchs, like domestic slaves, obey'd,
 On the bleak shore now lies th' abandon'd king,

* A headless carcase, and a nameless thing.

Then

* This whole line is taken from Sir John Denham.

Then, not before, I felt my curdled blood
 Congeal with fear, my hair with horror stood: 765
 My father's image fill'd my pious mind,
 Lest equal years might equal fortune find.
 Again I thought on my forsaken wife,
 And trembled for my son's abandon'd life.
 I look'd about, but found myself alone, 770
 Deserted at my need, my friends were gone.
 Some spent with toil, some with despair oppress'd, Leap'd headlong from the heights; the flames consum'd
 the rest.

Thus, wandering in my way, without a guide,
 The graceless Helen in the porch I spy'd 775
 Of Vesta's temple; there she lurk'd alone;
 Muffled she sat, and, what she could, unknown:
 But, by the flames, that cast their blaze around,
 That common bane of Greece and Troy, I found.
 For Ilium burnt, she dreads the Trojan's sword;
 More dreads the vengeance of her injur'd lord;
 Ev'n by those gods, who refug'd her, abhorr'd. }
 Trembling with rage, the strumpet I regard;
 Resolv'd to give her guilt the due reward.
 Shall she triumphant sail before the wind, 785
 And leave in flames unhappy Troy behind?
 Shall she her kingdom and her friends review,
 In state attended with a captive crew;
 While unreveng'd the good old Priam falls,
 And Grecian fires consume the Trojan walls? 790
 For this the Phrygian fields and Xanthian flood
 Were swell'd with bodies, and were drunk with blood

'Tis true, a foldier can fmall honour gain,
 And boaft no conquest from a woman flain;
 Yet fhall the fact not pafs without applaufe, 795
 Of vengeance taken in fo juft a caufe.
 The punifh'd crime fhall fet my foul at eafe:
 And murmuring manes of my friends appeafe.
 Thus while I rave, a gleam of pleafant light
 Spread o'er the place, and, fhining heavenly bright, }
 My mother flood reveal'd before my fight.
 Never fo radiant did her eyes appear;
 Nor her own ftar confefs'd a light fo clear.
 Great in her charms, as when the gods above
 She looks, and breathes herfelf into their love. 805
 She held my hand, the deftin'd blow to break:
 Then, from her rofy lips, began to fpeak:
 My fon, from whence this madnefs, this neglect
 Of my commands, and thofe whom I protect?
 Why this unmanly rage? recal to mind 810
 Whom you forfake, what pledges leave behind.
 Look if your haplefs father yet furvive;
 Or if Afcanius, or Creüfa, live.
 Around your houfe the greedy Grecians err;
 And thefe had perifh'd in the nightly war, 815 }
 But for my prefence and protecting care.
 Not Helen's face, nor Paris, was in fault:
 But by the gods was this deftruction brought.
 Now caft your eyes around; while I difsolve
 The mifts and films that mortal eyes involve: 820
 Purge from your fight the dross, and make you fee
 The fhape of each avenging deity.

Enlighten'd

Enlighten'd thus, my just commands fulfil:
 Nor fear obedience to your mother's will.
 Where yon disorder'd heap of ruin lies, 825
 Stones rent from stones, where clouds of dust arise,
 Amid that smother, Neptune holds his place:
 Below the wall's foundation drives his mace:
 And heaves the building from the solid base. }
 Look where, in arms, imperial Juno stands, 830 }
 Full in the Scæan gate, with loud commands,
 Urging on shore the tardy Grecian bands. }
 See Pallas, of her snaky buckler proud,
 Bestrides the tower, refulgent through the cloud:
 See Jove new courage to the foe supplies, 835
 And arms against the town the partial deities.
 Hasten hence, my son; this fruitless labour end: }
 Hasten where your trembling spouse and fire attend: }
 Hasten, and a mother's care your passage shall befriend. }
 She said: and swiftly vanish'd from my sight, 840
 Obscure in clouds, and gloomy shades of night.
 I look'd, I listen'd; dreadful sounds I hear;
 And the dire forms of hostile gods appear.
 Troy sunk in flames I saw, nor could prevent;
 And Ilium from its old foundations rent. 845
 Rent like a mountain ash, which dar'd the winds;
 And stood the sturdy strokes of labouring hinds:
 About the roots the cruel ax resounds,
 The stumps are pierc'd with oft-repeated wounds.
 The war is felt on high, the nodding crown 850
 Now threatens a fall, and throws the leafy honours down.

To their united force it yields, though late;
 And mourns, with mortal groans, th' approaching fate:
 The roots no more their upper load sustain;
 But down she falls, and spreads a ruin through the plain.

Descending thence, I 'scape through foes, and fire:
 Before the goddesses, foes and flames retire.
 Arriv'd at home, he for whose only sake,
 Or most for his, such toils I undertake,
 The good Anchises, whom, by timely flight, 860
 I purpos'd to secure on Ida's height,
 Refus'd the journey; resolute to die,
 And add his funerals to the fate of Troy:
 Rather than exile and old age sustain.

To you, whose blood runs warm in every vein: 865
 Had heaven decreed that I should life enjoy,
 Heaven had decreed to save unhappy Troy.
 'Tis sure enough, if not too much for one,
 Twice to have seen our Ilium overthrown.

Make haste to save the poor remaining crew; 870
 And give this useless corpse a long adieu.

These weak old hands suffice to stop my breath:
 At least the pitying foes will aid my death,
 To take my spoils: and leave my body bare:
 As for my sepulchre let heaven take care. 875

'Tis long since I, for my celestial wife,
 Loath'd by the gods, have dragg'd a lingering life:
 Since every hour and moment I expire,
 Blasted from heaven by Jove's avenging fire.

This oft repeated, he stood fix'd to die: 880
 Myself, my wife, my son, my family,
Lament, pray, beg, and raise a doleful cry.

 What,

What, will he still persist, on death resolve,
 And in his ruin all his house involve?
 He still persists his reasons to maintain; 885
 Our prayers, our tears, our loud laments, are vain.

Urg'd by despair, again I go to try
 The fate of arms, resolv'd in fight to die.
 What hope remains, but what my death must give?
 Can I without so dear a father live? 890

You term it prudence, what I baseness call:
 Could such a word from such a parent fall?
 If fortune please, and so the gods ordain,
 That nothing should of ruin'd Troy remain; }
 And you conspire with fortune, to be slain; 895 }

The way to death is wide, th' approaches near:
 For soon relentless Pyrrhus will appear,
 Reeking with Priam's blood: the wretch who flew }
 The son (inhuman) in the father's view, }
 And then the fire himself to the dire altar drew. }

O goddess-mother, give me back to fate;
 Your gift was undesir'd, and came too late.
 Did you for this, unhappy me convey
 Through foes and fires to see my house a prey?
 Shall I, my father, wife, and son, behold 905
 Weltering in blood, each other's arms infold?
 Haste! gird my sword, though spent and overcome:
 'Tis the last summons to receive your doom.

I hear thee, fate, and I obey thy call:
 Not unreveng'd the foe shall see my fall. 910
 Restore me yet to the unfinish'd fight:
 My death is wanting to conclude the night,

Arm'd

Arm'd once again, my glittering sword I wield!
 While th' other hand sustains my weighty shield:
 And-forth I rush to seek th' abandon'd field. 915 }
 I went; but sad Creüsa stopp'd my way,
 And, cross the threshold, in my passage lay;
 Embrac'd my knees; and when I would have gone,
 Shew'd me my feeble fire, and tender son.
 If death be your design, at least, said she, 920
 Take us along to share your destiny.
 If any further hopes in arms remain,
 This place, these pledges of your love maintain.
 To whom do you expose your father's life,
 Your son's, and mine, your now-forgotten wife! 925
 While thus she fills the house with clamorous cries,
 Our hearing is diverted by our eyes;
 For while I held my son, in the short space,
 Betwixt our kisses and our last embrace,
 Strange to relate, from young Iulus' head 930 }
 A lambent flame arose, which gently spread Around his brows, and on his temples sed.
 Amaz'd, with running water we prepare
 To quench the sacred fire, and flake his hair;
 But old Anchises, vers'd in omens, rear'd 935
 His hand to heaven, and this request prefer'd:
 If any vows, almighty Jove, can bend
 Thy will, if piety can prayers commend, Confirm the glad presage which thou art pleas'd to } send.
 Scarce had he said, when, on our left, we hear 940
 A peal of rattling thunder roll in air:

There shot a steaming lamp along the sky,
 Which on the winged lightning seem'd to fly;
 From o'er the roof the blaze began to move;
 And trailing vanish'd in th' Idean grove. 945
 It swept a path in heaven, and shone a guide;
 Then in a steaming stench of sulphur dy'd.

The good old man with suppliant hands implor'd
 The gods protection, and their star ador'd.
 Now, now, said he, my son, no more delay, 950
 I yield, I follow where heaven shews the way.
 Keep (O my country gods) our dwelling-place,
 And guard this relick of the Trojan race:
 This tender child; these omens are your own;
 And you can yet restore the ruin'd town. 955
 At least accomplish what your signs foreshow:
 I stand resign'd, and am prepar'd to go.

He said; the crackling flames appear on high,
 And driving sparkles dance along the sky.
 With Vulcan's rage the rising winds conspire; 960
 And near our palace rolls the flood of fire.
 Haste, my dear father ('tis no time to wait,
 And load my shoulders with a willing freight.
 Whate'er befalls, your life shall be my care,
 One death, or one deliverance, we will share. 965
 My hand shall lead our little son; and you,
 My faithful consort, shall our steps pursue.
 Next, you, my servants, heed my strict commands:
 Without the walls a ruin'd temple stands,
 To Ceres hallow'd once; a cypress nigh 970
 Shoots up her venerable head on high;

By

religion kept: there bend your feet;
 livid parties, let us meet.
 try gods, the relicks, and the bands,
 , my father, in your guiltless hands: 975
 impious holy things to bear, am with slaughter, new from war:
 ome living stream, I cleanse the guilt
 ebate, and blood in battle spilt.
 dering all that prudence could provide, 980 ny shoulders with a lion's hide, ow spoils: then, on my bending back,
 ome load of my dear father take.
 n my better hand, Ascanius hung,
 h unequal paces, tript along. 985
 pt behind: by choice we stray every dark and every devious way.
 bold and dauntless, just before,
 ian darts and shocks of lances bore, shadow now am seiz'd with fear: 990
 nyself, but for the charge I bear.
 the ruin'd gate arriv'd at last,
 nd deeming all the danger past,
 l noise of trampling feet we hear;
 r, looking through the shades with fear, 995
 ; Haste, haste, my son, the foes are nigh;
 ords and shining armour I descry.
 ile god, for some unknown offence,
 bereft my mind of better sense:
 , through winding ways, I took my flight,
 ht the shelter of the gloomy night,

Alas! I lost Creüsa: hard to tell
 If by her fatal destiny she fell,
 Or weary fate, or wander'd with affright;
 But she was lost for ever to my fight, 1005
 I knew not, or reflected, till I meet
 My friends, at Ceres' now-deserted feat;
 We met: not one was wanting, only she Deceiv'd her friends, her son, and wretched me.
 What mad expressions did my tongue refuse! 1010
 Whom did I not of gods or men accuse!
 This was the fatal blow, that pain'd me more
 Than all I felt from ruin'd Troy before.
 Stung with my loss, and raving with despair,
 Abandoning my now-forgotten care, 1015
 Of counsel, comfort, and of hope bereft,
 My fire, my son, my country gods, I left.
 In shining armour once again I sheath
 My limbs, not feeling wounds, nor fearing death.
 Then headlong to the burning walls I run, 1020
 And seek the danger I was forc'd to shun.
 I tread my former tracks: through night explore
 Each passage, every street I cross'd before.
 All things were full of horror and affright,
 And dreadful ev'n the silence of the night, 1025
 Then to my father's house I make repair,
 With some small glimpse of hope to find her there:
 Instead of her, the cruel Greeks I met:
 The house was fill'd with foes, with flames beset.
 Driven on the wings of winds, whole sheets of fire,
 Through air transported, to the roofs aspire,

From

From hence, to Priam's palace I resort,
 And search the citadel, and desert court.
 Then, unobserv'd, I pass'd by Juno's church;
 A guard of Grecians had possess'd the porch: 1035
 There Phoenix and Ulysses watch the prey,
 And thither all the wealth of Troy convey.
 The spoils which they from ransack'd houses brought,
 And golden bowls from burning altars caught.
 The tables of the gods, the purple vests, 1040
 The peoples' treasure, and the pomp of priests.
 A rank of wretched youths, with pinion'd hands,
 And captive matrons in long order stands.
 Then, with ungovern'd madness, I proclaim,
 Through all the silent streets, Creüsa's name. 1045
 Creüsa still I call: at length she hears;
 And, sudden, through the shades of night appears.
 Appears no more Creüsa, nor my wife,
 But a pale spectre, larger than the life.
 Aghast, astonish'd, and struck dumb with fear, 1050
 I stood; like bristles rose my stiffen'd hair,
 Then thus the ghost began to soothe my grief:
 Nor tears, nor cries, can give the dead relief;
 Desist, my much-lov'd lord, t' indulge your pain:
 You bear no more than what the gods ordain. 1055
 My fates permit me not from hence to fly;
 Nor he, the great comptroller of the sky.
 Long wandering ways for you the powers decree:
 On land hard labours, and a length of sea.
 Then, after many painful years are past, 1060
 On Latium's happy shore you shall be cast:

Where gentle Tiber from his bed beholds
 The flowery meadows, and the feeding folds.
 There end your toils: and there your fates provide
 A quiet kingdom, and a royal bride: 106

There fortune shall the Trojan line restore;
 And you for lost Creüsa weep no more.
 Fear not that I shall watch, with servile shame,
 Th' imperious looks of some proud Grecian dame:
 Or, stooping to the victor's lust, disgrace 107
 My goddess-mother, or my royal race.

And now, farewell: the parent of the gods
 Restrains my fleeting soul in her abodes:
 I trust our common issue to your care.
 She said: and gliding pass'd unseen in air. 107
 I strove to speak, but horror ty'd my tongue;
 And thrice about her neck my arms I flung:
 And thrice, deceiv'd, on vain embraces hung.
 Light as an empty dream at break of day,
 Or as a blast of wind, she rush'd away. 108

Thus, having pass'd the night in fruitless pain,
 I to my longing friends return again.
 Amaz'd th' augmented number to behold,
 Of men and matrons mix'd, of young and old:
 A wretched exil'd crew together brought, 108
 With arms appointed, and with treasure fraught.
 Resolv'd, and willing under my command,
 To run all hazards both of sea and land.
 The morn began, from Ida, to display
 Her rosy cheeks, and Phosphor led the day: 109
 Befo

Before the gates the Grecians took their post:
And all pretence of late relief were lost.
I yield to fate, unwillingly retire,
And, loaded, up the hill convey my fire.

Æneis proceeds in his relation: he gives an account of the fleet with which he failed, and the success of his first voyage to Thrace; from thence he directs his course to Delos, and asks the oracle what place the Gods had appointed for his habitation? By a mistake of the oracle's answer, he settles in Crete: his household Gods give him the true sense of the oracle in a dream: he follows their advice, and makes the best of his way for Italy: he is cast on several shores, and meets with very surprizing adventures, till at length he lands on Sicily; where his father Anchises dies. This is the place he was sailing from, when the tempest rose, and threw him upon the Carthaginian coast.

WHEN heaven had overturn'd the Trojan state,
And Priam's throne, by too severe a fate:
When ruin'd Troy became the Grecians prey,
And Ilium's lofty towers in ashes lay:

Warn'd

Warn'd by celestial omens, we retreat, 5
 To seek in foreign lands a happier seat.
 Near old Antandros, and at Ida's foot,
 The timber of the sacred groves we cut;
 And build our fleet: uncertain yet to find
 What place the gods for our repose assign'd. 10
 Friends daily flock, and scarce the kindly spring
 Began to cloathe the ground, and birds to sing:
 When old Anchises summon'd all to sea:
 The crew, my father and the fates obey.
 With sighs and tears I leave my native shore, 15
 And empty fields, where Ilium stood before.
 My fire, my son, our less, and greater gods,
 All sail at once; and cleave the briny floods.
 Against our coast appears a spacious land,
 Which once the fierce Lycurgus did command: 20
 Thracia the name; the people bold in war;
 Vast are their fields, and tillage is their care.
 A hospitable realm, while fate was kind;
 With Troy in friendship and religion join'd.
 I land, with suckless omens; then adore 25
 Their gods, and draw a line along the shore:
 I lay the deep foundations of a wall:
 And Enos, nam'd from me, the city call.
 To Dionæan Venus vows are paid,
 And all the powers that rising labours aid; 30
 A bull on Jove's imperial altar laid.
 Not far, a rising hillock stood in view;
 Sharp myrtles, on the sides, and cornels grew.

There

There, while I went to crop the sylvan scenes,
 And shade our altar with their leafy greens, 3
 I pull'd a plant (with horror I relate
 A prodigy so strange, and full of fate);
 The rooted fibres rose; and from the wound,
 Black bloody drops distill'd upon the ground.
 Mute, and amaz'd, my hair with terror stood; 4
 Fear shrunk my sinews, and congeal'd my blood:
 Man'd once again, another plant I try,
 That other gush'd with the same sanguine dye.
 Then, fearing guilt for some offence unknown,
 With prayers and vows the Dryads I atone; 4
 With all the sisters of the woods, and most
 The god of arms, who rules the Thracian coast:
 That they, or he, these omens would avert;
 Release our fears, and better signs impart.
 Clear'd, as I thought, and fully fix'd at length 5
 To learn the cause, I tugg'd with all my strength:
 I bent my knees against the ground; once more
 The violated myrtle ran with gore.
 Scarce dare I tell the sequel: from the womb
 Of wounded earth, and caverns of the tomb, 5
 A groan as of a troubled ghost renew'd
 My fright, and then these dreadful words ensued:
 Why dost thou thus my bury'd body rend?
 O spare the corpse of thy unhappy friend!
 Spare to pollute thy pious hands with blood: 6
 The tears distil not from the wounded wood;
 But every drop this living tree contains
 Is kindred blood, and ran in Trojan veins:

O fly from this inhospitable shore,
 Warn'd by my fate; for I am Polydore!
 Here loads of lances, in my blood embrued,
 Again shoot upward, by my blood renew'd.

My faltering tongue and shivering limbs declare
 My horror, and in bristles rose my hair.

When Troy with Grecian arms was closely pent, 70

Old Priam, fearful of the war's event,

This hapless Polydore to Thracia sent. }

Loaded with gold, he sent his darling far

From noise and tumults, and destructive war: }

Committed to the faithless tyrant's care:

Who, when he saw the power of Troy decline,

Forsook the weaker, with the strong to join:

Broke every bond of nature, and of truth:

And murder'd, for his wealth, the royal youth.

O sacred hunger of pernicious gold, 80

What bands of faith can impious lucre hold!

Now, when my soul had shaken off her fears,

I call my father, and the Trojan peers:

Relate the prodigies of heaven, require

What he commands, and their advice desire. 85

All vote to leave that execrable shore,

Polluted with the blood of Polydore.

But ere we sail, his funeral rites prepare;

Then, to his ghost, a tomb and altars rear.

In mournful pomp the matrons walk the round: 90

With baleful cypress and blue fillets crown'd; }

With eyes dejected, and with hair unbound. }

Then

Then bowls of tepid milk and blood we pour,
And thrice invoke the soul of Polydore.

Now when the raging storms no longer reign; 95
But southern gales invite us to the main;
We launch our vessels, with a prosperous wind;
And leave the cities and the shores behind.

An island in th' Ægean main appears;
Neptune and watery Doris claim it theirs. 100
It floated once, till Phœbus fix'd the sides
To rooted earth, and now it braves the tides.
Here, borne by friendly winds, we come ashore,
With needful ease our weary limbs restore:
And the sun's temple and his town adore. 105

Anius the priest, and king, with laurel crown'd,
His hoary locks with purple fillets bound,
Who saw my fire the Delian shore ascend,
Came forth with eager haste to meet his friend:
Invites him to his palace: and in sign 110
Of ancient love, their plighted hands they join.
Then to the temple of the god I went;
And thus before the shrine my vows present:
Give, O Thymbræus, give a resting-place
To the sad relicks of the Trojan race: 115
A seat secure, a region of their own,
A lasting empire, and a happier town.
Where shall we fix, where shall our labours end,
Whom shall we follow, and what fate attend?
Let not my prayers a doubtful answer find, 120
But in clear auguries unveil thy mind.

Scarce

Scarce had I said ; he shook the holy ground,
 The laurels, and the lofty hills around :
 And from the tripos rush'd a bellowing sound. }
 Prostrate we fell, confess'd the present god ; 125
 Who give this answer from his dark abode :
 Undaunted youths, go seek that mother earth
 From which your ancestors derive their birth,
 The soil that sent you forth, her ancient race,
 In her old bosom, shall again embrace. 130
 Through the wide world th' Æneian house shall reign,
 And childrens children shall the crown sustain.
 Thus Phœbus did our future fates disclose :
 A mighty tumult, mix'd with joy, arose.
 All are concern'd to know what place the god 135
 Assign'd, and where determin'd our abode.
 My father, long revolving in his mind
 The race and lineage of the Trojan kind,
 Thus answer'd their demands: he princes, hear
 Your pleasing fortune; and dispel your fear. 140
 The fruitful isle of Crete, well known to fame,
 Sacred of old to Jove's imperial name,
 In the mid ocean lies with large command;
 And on its plains a hundred cities stand.
 Another Ida rises there; and we 145
 From thence derive our Trojan ancestry.
 From thence, as 'tis divulg'd by certain fame,
 To the Rhætean shores old Teucer came:
 There fix'd, and there the seat of empire chose,
 Ere Ilium and the Trojan towers arose. 150
 In

In humble vales they built their soft abodes: }
 Till Cybele, the mother of the gods, }
 With tinkling cymbals, charm'd th' Idean woods. }
 She secret rites and ceremonies taught,
 And to the yoke the savage lions brought. 155
 Let us the land, which heaven appoints, explore;
 Appease the winds, and seek the Gnoſſian ſhore.
 If Jove aſſiſt the paſſage of our fleet,
 The third propitious dawn diſcovers Crete.
 Thus having ſaid, the ſacrifices laid 160
 On ſmoaking altars, to the gods he paid.
 A bull to Neptune, an oblation due,
 Another bull to bright Apollo ſlew:
 A milk-white ewe the weſtern winds to pleaſe:
 And one coal black to calm the ſtormy ſeas. 165
 Ere this, a flying rumour had been ſpread,
 That fierce Idomeneus from Crete was fled;
 Expell'd and exil'd; that the coaſt was free
 From foreign or domeſtic enemy:
 We leave the Delian ports, and put to ſea. 170
 By Naxos, fam'd for vintage, make our way:
 Then green Donyſa paſs; and ſail in ſight
 Of Paros iſle, with marble quarries white.
 We paſs the ſcatter'd iſles of Cyclades,
 That, ſcarce diſtinguiſh'd ſeem to ſtud the ſeas, 175
 The ſhouts of ſailors double near the ſhores;
 They ſtretch their canvas, and they ply their oars.
 All hands aloft, for Crete, for Crete they cry,
 And ſwiftly through the foamy billows fly.

Full

Full on the promis'd land at length we bore, 180
 With joy descending on the Cretan shore.
 With eager haste a rising town I frame,
 Which from the Trojan Pergamus I name:
 The name itself was grateful; I exhort
 To found their houses, and erect a fort. 185
 Our ships are haul'd upon the yellow strand.
 The youth begin to till the labour'd land.
 And I myself new marriages promote,
 Give laws; and dwellings I divide by lot.
 When rising vapours choke the wholesom air, 190
 And blasts of noisom winds corrupt the year:
 The trees, devouring caterpillars burn:
 Parch'd was the grass, and blighted was the corn.
 Nor scape the beasts: for Sirius from on high
 With pestilential heat infects the sky: 195 }
 My men, some fall, the rest in fevers fry.
 Again my father bids me seek the shore
 Of sacred Delos and the god implore:
 To learn what end of woes we might expect,
 And to what clime our weary course direct. 200
 'Twas night, when every creature, void of cares,
 The common gift of balmy slumber shares:
 The statues of my gods (for such they seem'd)
 Those gods whom I from flaming Troy redeem'd,
 Before me stood; majestically bright, 205
 Full in the beams of Phœbe's entering light.
 Then thus they spoke; and eas'd my troubled mind:
 What from the Delian god thou go'st to find, He

He tells thee here; and sends us to relate:
 Those powers are we, companions of thy fate, 210
 Who from the burning town by thee were brought;
 Thy fortune follow'd, and thy safety wrought.
 Through seas and lands as we thy steps attend,
 So shall our care thy glorious race befriend.
 An ample realm for thee thy fates ordain; 215
 A town, that o'er the conquer'd world shall reign.
 Thou mighty walls for mighty nations build;
 Nor let thy weary mind to labours yield:
 But change thy seat; for not the Delian god,
 Nor we, have giv'n thee Crete for our abode. 220
 A land there is, Hesperia call'd of old,
 The soil is fruitful, and the natives bold.
 Th' Oenotrians held it once; by later fame,
 Now call'd Italia from the leader's name.
 Jafius there, and Dardanus were born: 225
 From thence we came, and thither must return.
 Rise, and thy fire with these glad tidings greet;
 Search Italy, for Jove denies thee Crete.
 Astonish'd at their voices, and their sight,
 (Nor were they dreams, but visions of the night; 230
 I saw, I knew their faces, and descry'd
 In perfect view their hair with fillets ty'd);
 I started from my couch, and clammy sweat
 On all my limbs and shivering body fate.
 To heaven I lift my hands with pious haste, 235
 And sacred incense in the flames I cast.
 Thus to the gods their perfect honours done,
 More chearful to my good old fire I run,

And

All the pleasing news: in little space and his error of the double race. 240
 As before he deem'd, deriv'd from Crete;
 he deluded by the doubtful feat.
 Aid, O son! turmoil'd in Trojan fate, things as these Cassandra did relate;
 My revives within my mind, what she 245
 did of Troy renew'd in Italy, Italian lands: but who could then have thought that Argian gods to Latium should be brought?
 I believ'd what mad Cassandra taught?
 But us go, where Phœbus leads the way, 250 and we with glad consent obey:
 the feat; and, leaving few behind,
 had our sails before the willing wind.
 From the sight of land our gallies move,
 only seas around, and skies above. 255
 Ere our heads descends a burst of rain,
 Light, with sable clouds, involves the main;
 Rising winds the foamy billows raise;
 Scatter'd fleet is forc'd to several ways;
 The roof of heaven is ravish'd from our eyes, 260
 And redoubled peals, the roaring thunder flies.
 From our course, we wander in the dark;
 No stars to guide, no point of land to mark.
 Minurus no distinction found Between the night and day, such darkness reign'd around.

Three starless nights the doubtful navy strays
Without distinction, and three sunless days.
The fourth renews the light, and, from our shrouds
We view a rising land like distant clouds:
The mountain-tops confirm the pleasing sight,
And curling smoke ascending from their height.
The canvass falls, their oars the sailors ply,
From the rude strokes the whirling waters fly.
At length I land upon the Strophades,
Safe from the danger of the stormy seas:
Those isles are compass'd by th' Ionian main,
The dire abode where the foul harpies reign:
Forc'd by the winged warriors to repair
To their old homes, and leave their costly fare.
Monsters more fierce, offended heaven ne'er sent
From hell's abyss, for human punishment.
With virgin-faces, but with wombs obscene,
Foul paunches, and with ordure still unclean:
With claws for hands, and looks for ever lean.
We landed at the port, and soon beheld
Fat herds of oxen graze the flowery field:
And wanton goats without a keeper stray'd;
With weapons we the welcome prey invade.
Then call the gods for partners of our feast:
And Jove himself the chief invited guest.
We spread the tables on the greenfword ground:
We feed with hunger, and the bowls go round:
When from the mountain tops, with hideous cry,
And clattering wings, the hungry harpies fly:

atch the meat, defiling all they find; 295
 rting, leave a loathsome stench behind,
 a hollow rock again we fit,
 fs the dinner, and the beds refit;
 om fight, beneath a pleasing shade,
 fted trees a native arbour made. 300
 e holy fires on altars burn,
 : again the ravenous birds return:
 the dark recesses where they lie,
 another quarter of the sky;
 y claws their odious meal repeat, 305
 their loathsome ordures with their meat.
 friends for vengeance then prepare,
 the hellish nation wage the war.
 commanded, for the fight provide,
 ie grafs their glittering weapons hide: 310 en along the crooked shore we hear tering wings, and saw the foes appear, ounds a charge: we take th' alarm, trong hands with swords and bucklers arm.
 n kind of combat all employ 315
 oost force the monsters to destroy.
 he fated skin is proof to wounds:
 i their plumes, the shining sword rebounds.
 rebuff'd, they leave their mangled prey, stretch'd pinions to the skies display. 320
 main'd the messenger of Fate,
 . craggy cliff Celæno fate,
 her dismal errand did relate:

 What,

What, not contented with our oxen slain,
 Dare you with heaven an impious war maintain, 325 }
 And drive the harpies from their native reign?
 Heed, therefore, what I say, and keep in mind
 What Jove decrees, what Phœbus has design'd:
 And I, the Fury's queen, from both relate:
 You seek th' Italian shores, foredoom'd by fate: 330
 Th' Italian shores are granted you to find,
 And a safe passage to the port assign'd.
 But know, that ere your promis'd walls you build,
 My curses shall severely be fulfill'd.
 Fierce famine is your lot, for this misdeed, 335
 Reduc'd to grind the plates on which you feed.
 She said, and to the neighbouring forest flew:
 Our courage fails us, and our fears renew.
 Hopeless to win by war, to prayers we fall,
 And on th' offended harpies humbly call. 340
 And whether gods or birds obscene they were,
 Our vows for pardon and for peace prefer.
 But old Anchises, offering sacrifice,
 And lifting up to heaven his hands and eyes,
 Ador'd the greater gods: Avert, said he, 345 }
 These omens; render vain this prophecy;
 And, from th' impending curse, a pious people free. }
 Thus having said, he bids us put to sea;
 We loose from shore our haufers and obey, }
 And soon, with swelling sails, pursue our watery way. }
 Amidst our course Zacynthian woods appear;
 And next by rocky Neritos we steer:

We

ly from Ithaca's detested shore, curse the land which dire Ulysses bore.
 igh Leucate's cloudy top appears, 355
 he sun's temple, which the sailor fears.
 'd to breathe a while from labour past,
 rooked anchors from the prow we cast.
 yful to the little city haste. } ase, beyond our hopes, our vows we pay 360
 ve, the guide and patron of our way.
 astoms of our country we pursue,
 Trojan games on Actian shores renew.
 uth their naked limbs besmear with oil, xercise the wrestlers noble toil. 365
 l to have fail'd so long before the wind,
 :st so many Grecian towns behind.
 n had now fulfill'd his annual course,
 :oreas on the seas display'd his force:
 upon the temple's lofty door 370
 razed shield which vanquish'd Abas bore:
 rse beneath my name and action speaks,
 arms Æneas took from conquering Greeks.
 I command to weigh; the seamen ply sweeping oars, the smoking billows fly. 375
 ght of high Phæacia soon we lost,
 :im'd along Epirus' rocky coast.
 :o Chaonia's port our course we bend,
 anded, to Buthrotus, heights ascend.
 rondrous things were loudly blaz'd by fame, 380
 Helenus reviv'd the Trojan name,

And reign'd in Greece: That Priam's captive son
 Succeeded Pyrrhus in his bed and throne.
 And fair Andromache, restor'd by fate,
 Once more was happy in a Trojan mate. 38
 I leave my gallies riding in the port,
 And long to see the new Dardanian court.
 By chance, the mournful queen, before the gate,
 Then solemniz'd her former husband's fate.
 Green altars, rais'd of turf, with gifts she crown'd }
 And sacred priests in order stand around, }
 And thrice the name of hapless Hector sound. }
 The grove itself resembles Ida's wood,
 And Simois seem'd the well-diffembled flood.
 But when, at nearer distance, she beheld 39
 My shining armour, and my Trojan shield,
 Astonish'd at the sight, the vital heat
 Forfakes her limbs, her veins no longer beat:
 She faints, she falls; and, scarce recovering strength,
 Thus, with a faltering tongue, she speaks at length.
 Are you alive, O goddess-born! she said,
 Or if a ghost, then where is Hector's shade?
 At this she cast a loud and frightful cry:
 With broken words I made this brief reply:
 All of me that remains appears in fight. 40
 I live; if living be to loath the light.
 No phantom; but I drag a wretched life;
 My fate resembling that of Hector's wife.
 What have you suffer'd since you lost your lord?
 By what strange blessings are you now restor'd? 41
 St

Still are you Hector's, or is Hector fled,
 And his remembrance lost in Pyrrhus' bed?
 With eyes dejected, in a lowly tone,
 After a modest pause, she thus begun:
 Oh only happy maid of Priam's race, 415
 Whom death deliver'd from the foes embrace!
 Commanded on Achilles' tomb to die,
 Not forc'd, like us, to hard captivity;
 Or in a haughty master's arms to lie. }
 In Grecian ships unhappy we were borne: 420
 Endur'd the victor's lust; sustain'd the scorn:
 Thus I submitted to the lawless pride
 Of Pyrrhus, more a handmaid than a bride.
 Cloy'd with possession, he forsook my bed,
 And Helen's lovely daughter sought to wed. 425
 Then me to Trojan Helenus resign'd:
 And his two slaves in equal marriage join'd.
 Till young Orestes, pierc'd with deep despair,
 And longing to redeem the promis'd fair,
 Before Apollo's altar slew the ravisher. 430 }
 By Pyrrhus' death the kingdom we regain'd:
 At least one half with Helenus remain'd;
 Our part, from Chaon, he Chaonia calls:
 And names, from Pergamus, his rising walls.
 But you, what Fates have landed on our coast, 435
 What gods have sent you, or what storms have tofs'd?
 Does young Ascanius life and health enjoy,
 and from the ruins of unhappy Troy?

O tell me how his mother's loss he bears,
 What hopes are promis'd from his blooming years, }
 How much of Hector in his face appears?
 She spoke: and mix'd her speech with mournful cries:
 And fruitless tears came trickling from her eyes.
 At length her lord descends upon the plain,
 In pomp attended with a numerous train: 445
 Receives his friends, and to the city leads,
 And tears of joy amidst his welcome sheds.
 Proceeding on, another Troy I see;
 Or, in less compass, Troy's epitome.
 A rivulet by the name of Xanthus ran: 450
 And I embrace the Scæan gate again.
 My friends in porticos were entertain'd,
 And feasts and pleasures through the city reign'd.
 The tables fill'd the spacious hall around,
 And golden bowls with sparkling wine were crown'd.
 Two days we pass'd in mirth, till friendly gales,
 Blown from the south, supply'd our swelling sails,
 Then to the royal seat I thus began:
 O thou who know'st, beyond the reach of man,
 The laws of heaven, and what the stars decree, 460 }
 Whom Phœbus taught unerring prophecy,
 From his own tripod, and his holy tree:
 Skill'd in the wing'd inhabitants of air,
 What auspices their notes and flights declare:
 O say; for all religious rites portend 465
 A happy voyage, and a prosperous end;
 And every power and omen of the sky
 Direct my course for destin'd Italy.

But

But only dire Celæno, from the gods,
 A dismal famine fatally forebodes: 470
 O say what dangers I am first to shun,
 What toils to vanquish, and what course to run.
 The prophet first with sacrifice adores
 The greater gods; their pardon then implores:
 Unbinds the fillet from his holy head; 475 }
 To Phœbus next my trembling steps he led,
 Full of religious doubts and awful dread. }
 Then, with his god possess'd, before the shrine,
 These words proceeded from his mouth divine:
 O goddess-born (for heaven's appointed will,
 With greater auspices of good than ill,
 Fore-shows thy voyage, and thy course directs;
 Thy fates conspire, and Jove himself protects):
 Of many things, some few I shall explain,
 Teach thee to shun the dangers of the main, 485 }
 And how at length the promis'd shore to gain. }
 The rest the Fates from Helenus conceal;
 And Juno's angry power forbids to tell.
 First then, that happy shore, that seems so nigh,
 Will far from your deluded wishes fly: 490 }
 Long tracts of seas divide your hopes from Italy. }
 For you must cruise along Sicilian shores,
 And stem the currents with your struggling oars:
 Then round th' Italian coast your navy steer,
 And, after this, to Circe's island veer. 495
 And last, before your new foundations rise,
 Must pass the Stygian lake, and view the nether skies.
 Now

Now mark the signs of future ease and rest,
 And bear them safely treasur'd in thy breast.
 When in the shady shelter of a wood, 50
 And near the margin of a gentle flood,
 Thou shalt behold a sow upon the ground,
 With thirty sucking young encompass'd round;
 The dam and offspring white as falling snow:
 These on thy city shall their name bestow, 505
 And there shall end thy labour and thy woe.
 Nor let the threaten'd famine fright thy mind,
 For Phœbus will assist, and fate the way will find.
 Let not thy course to that ill coast be bent,
 Which fronts from far th' Epirian continent; 51
 Those parts are all by Grecian foes possess'd:
 The savage Locrians here the shores infest.
 There fierce Idomeneus his city builds,
 And guards, with arms, the Salentinian fields,
 And on the mountain's brow Petilia stands, 51
 Which Philoctetes with his troops commands.
 Ev'n when thy fleet is landed on the shore,
 And priests with holy vows the gods adore;
 Then with a purple veil involve your eyes;
 Let hostile faces blast the sacrifice. 52
 These rites and customs to the rest commend,
 That to your pious race they may descend.
 When parted hence, the wind that ready waits
 For Sicily, shall bear you to the straits:
 Where proud Pelorus opes a wider way, 52
 Tack to the larboard, and stand off to sea:
 Ve

board sea and land. Th' Italian shore, Sicilia's coast were one, before quake caus'd the flaw, the roaring tides ge broke, that land from land divides: 530 } re the lands retir'd, the rushing ocean rides. }
 sh'd by the straits, on either hand, 1g cities in long order stand, tful fields (so much can time invade ldering work that beauteous nature made). 535
 e right, her dogs foul Scylla hides:
 s roaring on the left presides;
 er greedy whirlpool sucks the tides: } uts them from below; with fury driven,
 es mount up, and wash the face of heaven.
 a from her den, with open jaws, 540
 ng vessel in her eddy draws;
 hes on the rocks: a human face,
 in-bosom, hides her tail's disgrace.
 ; obscene below the waves descend, 545
 s inclos'd, and in a dolphin end.
 ; then, to bear aloof to sea, t Pachynus, though with more delay;
 ce to view mishapen Scylla near,
 loud yell of watery wolves to hear. 550
 s, if faith to Helenus be due,
 rophetic Phœbus tell me true,
 his precept of your friend forget:
 herefore more than once I must repeat.
 e rest, great Juno's name adore: 555
 s to Juno; Juno's aid implore.

Let

Let gifts be to the mighty queen design'd;
 And mollify with prayers her haughty mind,
 Thus, at the length, your passage shall be free,
 And you shall safe descend on Italy. 560
 Arriv'd at Cumæ, when you view the flood
 Of black Avernus, and the founding wood,
 The mad prophetic sibyl you shall find,
 Dark in a cave, and on a rock reclin'd.
 She sings the fates, and, in her frantic fits, 565
 The notes and names inscrib'd, to leaves commits.
 What she commits to leaves, in order laid;
 Before the cavern's entrance are display'd:
 Unmov'd they lie: but if a blast of wind
 Without, or vapours issue from behind, 570
 The leaves are borne aloft in liquid air,
 And she resumes no more her museful care:
 Nor gathers from the rocks her scatter'd verse:
 Nor sets in order what the winds disperse.
 Thus, many not succeeding, most upbraid 575 }
 The madness of the visionary maid;
 And, with loud curses, leave the mystic shade. }
 Think it not loss of time a while to stay;
 Though thy companions chide thy long delay:
 Though summon'd to the seas, though pleasing gales
 Invite thy course, and stretch thy swelling sails,
 But beg the sacred priestess to relate
 With swelling words, and not to write thy fate.
 The fierce Italian people she will show;
 And all thy wars and all thy future woe; 585 }
 And what thou may'st avoid, and what must undergo. }
She

She shall direct thy course; instruct thy mind;
 And teach thee how the happy shores to find.
 This is what heaven allows me to relate:
 Now part in peace; pursue thy better fate, 590 }
 And raise, by strength of arms, the Trojan state; }
 This when the priest with friendly voice declar'd,
 He gave me license, and rich gifts prepar'd:
 Bounteous of treasure, he supply'd my want
 With heavy gold, and polish'd elephant. 595
 Then Dodonæan caldrons put on board,
 And every ship with fums of silver stor'd.
 A trusty coat of mail to me he sent,
 Thrice chain'd with gold, for use and ornament:
 The helm of Pyrrhus added to the rest, 600
 Then flourish'd with a plume and waving crest.
 Nor was my fire forgotten, nor my friends:
 And large recruits he to my navy sends;
 Men, horses, captains, arms, and warlike stores:
 Supplies new pilots, and new sweeping oars. 605
 Mean time my fire commands to hoist our sails;
 Lest we should lose the first auspicious gales.
 The prophet blest the parting crew: and last,
 With words like these, his ancient friend embrac'd.
 Old happy man, the care of gods above, 610
 Whom heavenly Venus honour'd with her love,
 And twice preserv'd thy life when Troy was lost,
 Behold from far the wish'd Ausonian coast:
 There land; but take a larger compass round;
 For that before is all forbidden ground. 615
 The

The shore that Phœbus has design'd for you,
 At farther distance lies, conceal'd from view.
 Go happy hence, and seek your new abodes;
 Bless'd in a son, and favour'd by the gods:
 For I with uselefs words prolong your stay;
 When southern gales have summon'd you away.

Nor less the queen our parting thence deplor'd,
 Nor was less bounteous than her Trojan lord.
 A noble present to my son she brought,
 A robe with flowers on golden tiffue wrought;
 A Phrygian vest; and loads, with gifts beside
 Of precious texture, and of Asian pride.
 Accept, she said, these monuments of love;
 Which in my youth with happier hands I wove:
 Regard these trifles for the giver's sake;
 'Tis the last present Hector's wife can make.
 Thou call'st my lost Aftyanax to mind:
 In thee his features and his form I find.
 His eyes so sparkled with a lively flame;
 Such were his motions, such was all his frame; 6
 And, ah! had heaven so pleas'd, his years had be the same.

With tears I took my last adieu, and said,
 Your fortune, happy fair, already made,
 Leaves you no farther wish: my different state, Avoiding one, incurs another fate.
 To you a quiet seat the gods allow,
 You have no shores to search; no seas to plow,
 Nor fields of flying Italy to chace:
 (Deluding visions, and a vain embrace!)

You see another Simois, and enjoy 645
 The labour of your hands, another Troy;
 With better auspice than her ancient towers,
 And less obnoxious to the Grecian powers.
 If e'er the gods, whom I with vows adore,
 Conduct my steps to Tiber's happy shore: 650
 If ever I ascend the Latian throne,
 And build a city I may call my own,
 As both of us our birth from Troy derive,
 So let our kindred lines in concord live;
 And both in acts of equal friendship strive. 655 }
 Our fortunes, good or bad, shall be the same,
 The double Troy shall differ but in name:
 That what we now begin, may never end;
 But long, to late posterity descend.

Near the Ceraunian rocks our course we bore 660
 (The shortest passage to th' Italian shore).

Now had the sun withdrawn his radiant light,
 And hills were hid in dusky shades of night,
 We land: and, on the bosom of the ground,
 A safe retreat and a bare lodging found;
 Close by the shore we lay; the sailors keep
 Their watches, and the rest securely sleep.
 The night, proceeding on with silent pace,
 Stood in her noon, and view'd with equal face 670 }
 Her steepy rise, and her declining race.
 Then wakeful Palinurus rose, to spy }
 The face of heaven, and the nocturnal sky;
 And listen'd every breath of air to try;

Observes

Observes the stars, and notes their sliding course,
 The Pleiads, Hyads, and their watery force; 675
 And both the bears is careful to behold;
 And bright Orion arm'd with burnish'd gold.
 Then, when he saw no threatening tempest nigh,
 But a sure promise of a fettle'd sky;
 He gave the sign to weigh: we break our sleep; 680
 Forfake the pleasing shore, and plow the deep.
 And now the rising morn, with rosy light,
 Adorns the skies, and puts the stars to flight:
 When we from far, like bluish mists, descry
 The hills, and then the plains of Italy. 685
 Achates first pronounc'd the joyful sound;
 Then Italy the chearful crew rebound;
 My sire Anchises crown'd a cup with wine,
 And offering, thus implor'd the powers divine:
 Ye gods, presiding over lands and seas, 690
 And you who raging winds and waves appease,
 Breathe on our swelling sails a prosperous wind,
 And smooth our passage to the port assign'd.
 The gentle gales their flagging force renew;
 And now the happy harbour is in view. 695
 Minerva's temple then salutes our sight;
 Plac'd as a land-mark, on the mountain's height;
 We furl our sails, and turn the prows to shore;
 The curling waters round the galleys roar;
 The land lies open to the raging east, 700
 Then, bending like a bow, with rocks compress'd,
 Shuts out the storms; the winds and waves complain,
 And vent their malice on the cliffs in vain,

The

The port lies hid within; on either side
 Two towering rocks the narrow mouth divide. 705
 The temple, which aloft we view'd before,
 To distance flies, and seems to shun the shore.
 Scarce landed, the first omens I beheld
 Were four white steeds that clogg'd the flowery field.
 War, war is threaten'd from this foreign ground, 710
 (My father cry'd) where warlike steeds are found.
 Yet, since reclaim'd to chariots they submit,
 And bend to stubborn yokes, and champ the bit,
 Peace may succeed to war. Our way we bend
 To Pallas, and the sacred hills ascend. 715
 There prostrate to the fierce virago pray;
 Whose temple was the land-mark of our way.
 Each with a Phrygian mantle veil'd his head;
 And all commands of Helenus obey'd;
 And pious rites to Grecian Juno paid. 720
 These dues perform'd, we stretch our sails, and stand
 To sea, forsaking that suspected land.
 From hence Tarentum's bay appears in view;
 For Hercules renown'd, if fame be true.
 Just opposite, Lacinian Juno stands: 725
 Caulonian towers, and Scylacæan strands
 For shipwrecks fear'd: Mount Ætna thence we spy,
 Known by the smoky flames which cloud the sky.
 Far off we hear the waves with furly sound
 Invade the rocks, the rocks their groans rebound. 730
 The billows break upon the sounding strand;
 And roll the rising tide, impure with sand.
 Vol. XXIII. F Then

In shady woods we pass the tedious night,
 Where bellowing sounds and groans our souls affright; }
 Of which no cause is offer'd to the fight.
 For not one star was kindled in the sky;
 Nor could the moon her borrow'd light supply: 765
 For misty clouds involv'd the firmament;
 The stars were muffled, and the moon was pent.
 Scarce had the rising sun the day reveal'd;
 Scarce had his heat the pearly-dews dispell'd;
 When from the woods there bolts, before our fight,
 Somewhat betwixt a mortal and a spright.
 So thin, so ghastly meagre, and so wan,
 So bare of flesh, he scarce resembled man.
 This thing, all tatter'd, seem'd from far t' implore
 Our pious aid, and pointed to the shore. 775
 We look behind; then view his shaggy beard;
 His cloaths were tagg'd with thorns, and filth his limbs
 besmear'd;
 The rest, in mien, in habit, and in face,
 Appear'd a Greek, and such indeed he was.
 He cast on us, from far, a frightful view, 780
 Whom soon for Trojans and for foes he knew:
 Stood still, and paus'd; thence all at once began
 To stretch his limbs, and trembled as he ran.
 Soon as approach'd, upon his knees he falls,
 And thus, with tears and sighs, for pity calls: 785
 Now by the powers above, and what we share
 From nature's common gift, this vital air,
 O Trojans, take me hence; I beg no more,
 But bear me far from this unhappy shore!

'Tis true, I am a Greek, and farther own, 790
 Among your foes besieg'd th' imperial town;
 For such demerits if my death be due,
 No more for this abandon'd life I sue:
 This only favour let my tears obtain,
 To throw me headlong in the rapid main: 795
 Since nothing more than death my crime demands:
 I die content, to die by human hands.
 He said, and on his knees my knees embrac'd:
 I bade him boldly tell his fortune past;
 His present state, his lineage, and his name; 800
 Th' occasion of his fears, and whence he came.
 The good Anchises rais'd him with his hand;
 Who, thus encourag'd, answer'd our demand:
 From Ithaca my native soil I came
 To Troy, and Achæmenides my name. 805
 Me, my poor father with Ulysses sent;
 (Oh had I stay'd with poverty content!)
 But, fearful for themselves, my countrymen
 Left me forsaken in the Cyclops' den.
 The cave, though large, was dark; the dismal floor
 Was pav'd with mangled limbs and putrid gore.
 Our monstrous host, of more than human size,
 Erects his head, and stares within the skies,
 Bellowing his voice, and horrid is his hue.
 Ye gods, remove this plague from mortal view! 815
 The joints of slaughter'd wretches are his food:
 And for his wine he quaffs the streaming blood.
 These eyes beheld, when with his spacious hand
 He seiz'd two captives of our Grecian band;
 Stretch'd

'd on his back, he dash'd against the stones 820 broken bodies, and their crackling bones:
 pouting blood the purple pavement swims,
 the dire glutton grinds the trembling limbs.
 reveng'd, Ulysses bore their fate oughtless of his own unhappy state; 825
 urg'd with flesh, and drunk with human wine, fast asleep the giant lay supine:
 aloud, and belching from his maw regested foam, and morsels raw:
 y, we cast the lots, and then surround 830
 monstrous body, stretch'd along the ground:
 as he could approach him, lends a hand
 : his eyeball with a flaming brand:
 his frowning forehead lay his eye ly one did the vast frame supply); 835
 : a globe so large, his front it fill'd,
 : sun's disk, or like a Grecian shield.
 ke succeeds; and down the pupil bends;
 ngeance follow'd for our slaughter'd friends.
 e, unhappy wretches, haste to fly; 840
 bles cut, and on your oars rely.
 d so vast as Polypheme appears,
 red more this hated island bears:
 n, in caves they shut their woolly sheep;
 n, their herds on tops of mountains keep; 845
 n, with mighty strides, they stalk from steep
 o steep.
 v three moons their sharpen'd horns renew,
 us in woods and wilds, obscure from view,

I drag my loathsome days with mortal fright;
And, in deserted caverns, lodge by night. 850

Oft from the rocks a dreadful prospect see
Of the huge Cyclops, like a walking tree:
From far I hear his thundering voice resound;
And trampling feet that shake the solid ground.
Cornels and savage berries of the wood, 855
And roots and herbs, have been my meagre food.

While all around my longing eyes are cast,
I saw your happy ships appear at last:
On those I fix'd my hopes, to these I run,
'Tis all I ask, this cruel race to shun: 860

What other death you please yourselves, bestow.
Scarce had he said, when, on the mountain's brow,
We saw the giant-shepherd stalk before
His following flock, and leading to the shore.
A monstrous bulk, deform'd, depriv'd of sight, 865
His staff a trunk of pine to guide his steps aright.
His ponderous whistle from his neck descends;
His woolly care their pensive lord attends: }
This only solace his hard fortune sends.

Soon as he reach'd the shore, and touch'd the waves,
From his bor'd eye the guttering blood he laves:
He gnash'd his teeth and groan'd; through seas he strides,

And scarce the topmast billows touch his sides.

Seiz'd with a sudden fear, we run to sea,
The cables cut, and silent haste away: 875

The well-deserving stranger entertain;
Then, buckling to the work, our oars divide the main.
The

The giant hearken'd to the dashing sound :
 But when our vessels out of reach he found,
 He frided onward; and in vain essay'd 880
 Th' Æonian deep, and durst no farther wade.
 With that he roar'd aloud: the dreadful cry
 Shakes earth, and air, and seas; the billows fly,
 Before the bellowing noise, to distant Italy. }
 The neighbouring Ætna trembling all around: 885
 The winding caverns echo to the sound.
 His brother Cyclops hear the yelling roar;
 And, rushing down the mountains, croud the shore.
 We saw their stern distorted looks from far.
 And one-ey'd glance, that vainly threaten'd war. 890
 A dreadful council with their heads on high;
 The misty clouds about their foreheads fly:
 Not yielding to the towering tree of Jove,
 Or tallest cypress of Diana's grove.
 New pangs of mortal fear our minds assail, 895 }
 We tug at every oar, and hoist up every sail;
 And take th' advantage of the friendly gale. }
 Forewarn'd by Helenus, we strive to shun
 Charybdis' gulph, nor dare to Scylla run.
 An equal fate on either side appears; 900
 We, tacking to the left, are free from fears:
 For from Pelorus' point, the north arose,
 And drove us back where swift Pantagias flows.
 His rocky mouth we pass, and make our way
 By Thapsus, and Megara's winding bay; 905
 This passage Achæmenides had shown,
 Tracing the course which he before had run.

Right o'er against Plemmyrium's watery strand
 There lies an isle, once call'd th' Ortygian land:
 Alpheus, as old fame reports, has found 910
 From Greece a secret passage under ground:
 By love to beauteous Arethusa led,
 And mingling here, they roll in the same sacred bed.
 As Helenus enjoin'd, we next adore
 Diana's name, protectress of the shore. 915
 With prosperous gales we pass the quiet sounds
 Of still Elorus, and his fruitful bounds.
 Then doubling Cape Pachynus, we survey
 The rocky shore extended to the sea.
 The town of Camarine from far we see: 920
 And fenny lake undrain'd by fates decree.
 In sight of the Geloan fields we pass,
 And the large walls, where mighty Gela was:
 Then Agragas with lofty summits crown'd;
 Long for the race of warlike steeds renown'd: 925
 We pass'd Selinus, and the palmy land,
 And widely shun the Lilybean strand,
 Unsafe, for secret rocks, and moving sand. }
 At length on shore the weary fleet arriv'd:
 Which Drepanum's unhappy port receiv'd. 930
 Here, after endless labours, often tost
 By raging storms, and driven on every coast,
 My dear, dear father, spent with age, I lost. }
 Ease of my cares and solace of my pain,
 Sav'd through a thousand toils, but sav'd in vain. 935
 The prophet, who my future woes reveal'd,
 Yet this, the greatest and the worst conceal'd.

And

And dire Calzno, whose foreboding skill
Denounc'd all else, was silent of this ill:

This my last labour was. Some friendly god 940
From thence convey'd us to your blest abode.

Thus, to the listening queen, the royal guest
His wandering course, and all his toils express'd,
And here concluding, he retir'd to rest. }

Æ N E I S.

THE ARGUMENT.

Dido discovers to her sister her passion for Æneas, and her thoughts of marrying him: she prepares a hunting-match for his entertainment. Juno, by Venus's consent, raises a storm, which separates the hunters, and drives Æneas and Dido into the same cave, where their marriage is supposed to be completed. Jupiter dispatches Mercury to Æneas, to warn him from Carthage: Æneas secretly prepares for his voyage: Dido finds out his design; and, to put a stop to it, makes use of her own and her sister's intreaties, and discovers all the variety of passions that are incident to a neglected lover: when nothing would prevail upon him, she contrives her own death with which this book concludes,

BUT

BUT anxious cares already seiz'd the queen:
 She fed within her veins a flame unseen:
 The hero's valour, acts, and birth, inspire
 Her soul with love, and fan the secret fire.
 His words, his looks imprinted in her heart, 5
 Improve the passion, and increase the smart.
 Now when the purple morn had chas'd away
 The dewy shadows, and restor'd the day,
 Her sister first with early care she fought,
 And thus, in mournful accents, eas'd her thought: 10
 My dearest Anna, what new dreams affright
 My labouring soul; what visions of the night
 Disturb my quiet, and distract my breast
 With strange ideas of our Trojan guest?
 His worth, his actions, and majestic air, 15
 A man descended from the gods declare.
 Fear ever argues a degenerate kind,
 His birth is well asserted by his mind.
 Then what he suffer'd, when by Fate betray'd,
 What brave attempts for falling Troy he made! 20
 Such were his looks, so gracefully he spoke,
 That, were I not resolv'd against the yoke
 Of hapless marriage, never to be curs'd
 With second love, so fatal was my first,
 To this one error I might yield again: 25
 For since Sichæus was untimely slain,
 This only man is able to subvert
 The fix'd foundations of my stubborn heart.
 And, to confess my frailty, to my shame,
 Somewhat I find within, if not the same, 30 }
 Too like the sparkles of my former flame.

But

But first, let yawning earth a passage rend,
 And let me through the dark abyſs deſcend:
 Firſt let avenging Jove, with flames from high,
 Drive down this body to the nether ſky, 35 }
 Condemn'd with ghofts in endleſs night to lie,
 Before I break the plighted faith I gave:
 No; he who had my vows, ſhall ever have;
 For whom I lov'd on earth, I worſhip in the grave. }

She ſaid: the tears ran guſhing from her eyes, 40
 And ſtopp'd her ſpeech. Her ſiſter thus replies:
 O dearer than the vital air I breathe,
 Will you to grief your blooming years bequeath?
 Condemn'd to waſte in woes your lonely life,
 Without the joys of mother or of wife?
 Think you theſe tears, this pompous train of woe,
 Are known or valued by the ghofit below?
 I grant, that while your ſorrows yet were green,
 It well became a woman and a queen
 The vows of Tyrian princes to neglect,
 To ſcorn Iärbas, and his love reject;
 With all the Libyan lords of mighty name;
 But will you fight againſt a pleaſing flame?
 This little ſpot of land, which heaven beſtows,

 And fierce Numidians there your frontiers bound;
 Here lies a barren waſte of thirty land,
 And there the Syrtes raiſe the moving ſand:

 And from the ſea Pygmalion threatens more.

A gentle

A gentle fire she feeds within her veins,
Where the soft god secure in silence reigns.

Sick with desire, and seeking him she loves,
From street to street the raving Dido roves.
So when the watchful shepherd from the blind,
Wounds with a random shaft the careless hind,
Distracted with her pain she flies the woods,
Bounds o'er the lawn, and seeks the silent floods;
With fruitless care; for still the fatal dart
Sticks in her side, and rankles in her heart.
And now she leads the Trojan chief along
The lofty walls, amidst the busy throng;
Displays her Tyrian wealth and rising town,
Which love, without his labour, makes his own.
This pomp she shows to tempt her wand'ring
guest;

Her faltering tongue forbids to speak the rest.
When day declines, and feasts renew the night,
Still on his face she feeds her famish'd sight:
She longs again to hear the prince relate
His own adventures, and the Trojan fate:
He tells it o'er and o'er: but still in vain;
For still she begs to hear it once again.
The hearer on the speaker's mouth depends;
And thus the tragic story never ends.

Thus, when they part, when Phœbe's paler light
Withdraws, and falling stars to sleep invite,
She last remains, when every guest is gone,
Sits on the bed he press'd, and sighs alone;

At

her absent hero sees and hears, whose young Ascanius bears:
 the father's image in the child,
 whose likeness might be so beguil'd.
 At time the rising towers are at a stand:
 nor exercise the youthful band:
 of arts nor toils of arms they know; 125
 what is left unfinish'd to the foe.
 Foundations, the works, the walls, neglected lie, their promis'd height that seem'd to threat the sky.
 When imperial Juno, from above, is fetter'd in the chains of love; 130
 the venom which her veins inflam'd,
 no sense of shame to be reclaim'd,
 saying words to Venus she begun:
 O! endless honours you have won,
 many trophies with your worthy son: 135
 as a silly woman have undone.
 O ignorant, you both suspect the city, which my hands erect:
 celestial discord never cease?
 nor ended in a lasting peace. 140
 I possess'd of all your soul desir'd;
 so, with consuming love, is fir'd:
 O join with my Tyrian let us join,
 shall be yours, Æneas mine:
 one kingdom, one united line.
 Shall a Dardan lord obey,
 by Carthage for a dower convey.

Thea

Then Venus, who her hidden fraud descry'd, (Which would the sceptre of the world misguide To Libyan shores), thus artfully reply'd: }
 Who but a fool would wars with Juno choose,
 And such alliance and such gifts refuse?
 If Fortune with our joint desires comply:
 The doubt is all from Jove, and Destiny;
 Lest he forbid with absolute command, 155
 To mix the people in one common land.
 Or will the Trojan and the Tyrian line,
 In lasting leagues and sure succession join?
 But you, the partner of his bed and throne,
 May move his mind; my wishes are your own. 160
 Mine, said imperial Juno, be the care;
 Time urges now to perfect this affair: }
 Attend my counsel, and the secret share.
 When next the sun his rising light displays,
 And gilds the world below with purple rays; 165
 The queen, Æneas, and the Tyrian court,
 Shall to the shady woods, for sylvan game, resort.
 There, while the huntsmen pitch their toils around.
 And chearful horns, from side to side, resound,
 A pitchy cloud shall cover all the plain 170
 With hail and thunder, and tempestuous rain:
 The fearful train shall take their speedy flight,
 Dispers'd, and all involv'd in gloomy night:
 One cave a grateful shelter shall afford
 To the fair princess and the Trojan lord. 175
 I will myself the bridal bed prepare,
 If you, to bless the nuptials, will be there:
 So

their loves be crown'd with due delights, when shall be present at the rites.
 of love consents, and closely smiles 180
 in project, and discover'd wiles.
 My morn was risen from the mains,
 and hounds awake the princely train:
 early through the city gate,
 more wakeful huntsmen ready wait, 185 and toils, and darts, beside the force of dogs, and swift Massylian horse.
 in peers and officers of state
 the queen in anti-chambers wait:
 the courser in the court below 190 majestic rider seems to know), his purple trappings, paws the ground,
 he ups the golden bit, and spreads the foam
 around.
 at length appears: on either hand
 the guards in martial order stand. 195
 the cymarr, with golden fringe she wore;
 behind a golden quiver bore:
 her long hair a golden caul restrains;
 she clasps the Tyrian robe sustains.
 the young Ascanius, with a sprightly grace, 200
 he leads the Trojan youth to view the chace.
 above the rest in beauty shines
 Æneas, when the troop he joins:
 Apollo, when he leaves the frost of Xanthus, and the Lycian coast: 205
 XIII. G When

When to his native Delos he resorts,
 Ordains the dances, and renews the sports:
 Where painted Scythians, mix'd with Cretan bands,
 Before the joyful altars join their hands.
 Himself, on Cynthus walking, sees below 21
 The merry madness of the sacred show.
 Green wreaths of bays his length of hair inclose;
 A golden fillet binds his awful brows;
 His quiver sounds: not less the prince is seen
 In manly presence, or in lofty mien. 21

Now had they reach'd the hills, and storm'd the steeps
 Of savage beasts, in dens, their last retreat:
 The cry pursues the mountain-goats; they bound
 From rock to rock, and keep the craggy ground:
 Quite otherwise the stags, a trembling train, 220
 In herds unscattered, scour the dusty plain;
 And a long chace, in open view, maintain.
 The glad Ascanius, as his courser guides,
 Spurs through the vale, and these and those outside
 His horse's flanks and sides are forc'd to feel 22
 The clanking lash, and goading of the steel.
 Impatiently he views the feeble prey,
 Wishing some nobler beast to cross his way;
 And rather would the tusky boar attend,
 Or see the tawny lion downward bend. 23

Mean time the gathering clouds obscure the skies:
 From pole to pole the forky lightning flies;
 The rattling thunder rolls: and Juno pours
 A wintry deluge down, and sounding showers.

 report through Libyan cities goes;
 e great ill, from small beginnings grows.
 m the first; and every moment brings our to her flights, new pinions to her inga.
 ws the pigmy to gigantic size; 255
 on earth, her forehead in the skies:
 gainst the gods revengeful earth
 her last of the Titanian birth.
 her walk, more swift her winged haste:
 ous phantom, horrible and vast; 260
 plumes as raise her lofty flight, piercing eyes enlarge her sight:

Millions of opening mouths to fame belong;
 And every mouth is furnish'd with a tongue:
 And round with listening ears the flying plague is hung
 She fills the peaceful universe with cries;
 No slumbers ever close her wakeful eyes.
 By day from lofty towers her head she shews:
 And spreads, through trembling crowds, disastrous ne
 With court-informers haunts, and royal spies,
 This done relates, nor done she feigns; and ming truth with lies.

Talk is her business; and her chief delight
 To tell of prodigies, and cause affright.
 She fills the people's ears with Dido's name;
 Who, lost to honour, and the sense of shame,
 Admits into her throne and nuptial bed
 A wandering guest, who from his country fled:
 Whole days with him she passes in delights;
 And wastes in luxury long winter nights.
 Forgetful of her fame, and royal trust;
 Dissolv'd in ease, abandon'd to her lust.
 The goddess widely spreads the loud report;
 And flies at length to king Hiarba's court.
 When first possess'd with this unwelcome news,
 Whom did he not of men and gods accuse?
 This prince, from ravish'd Garamantis born,
 A hundred temples did with spoils adorn,
 In Ammon's honour his celestial fire,
 A hundred altars fed with wakeful fire;
 And through his vast dominions priests ordain'd,
 Whose watchful care these holy rites maintain'd.

The gates and columns were with garlands crown'd,
And blood of victim beasts enrich the ground.

He, when he heard a fugitive could move
The Tyrian princess, who disdain'd his love, 295
His breast with fury burn'd, his eyes with fire;
Mad with despair, impatient with desire.
Then on the sacred altars pouring wine,
He thus with prayers implor'd his fire divine:
Great Jove, propitious to the Moorish race, 300
Who feast on painted beds, with offerings grace
Thy temples, and adore thy power divine
With blood of victims, and with sparkling wine;
Seest thou not this? or do we fear in vain
Thy boasted thunder, and thy thoughtless reign? 305
Do thy broad hands the forky lightnings lance,
Thine are the bolts, or the blind work of chance;
A wandering woman builds, within our state,
A little town, bought at an easy rate;
She pays me homage, and my grants allow 510
A narrow space of Libyan lands to plough.
Yet, scorning me, by passion blindly led,
Admits a banish'd Trojan to her bed:
And now this other Paris, with his train
Of conquer'd cowards, must in Afric reign?
(Whom, what they are, their looks and garb confess;
Their locks with oil perform'd, their Libyan dress:)
He takes the spoil, enjoys the princely dame;
And I, rejected I, adore an empty name.
His vows, in haughty terms, he thus preferr'd, 320
And held his altars horns: the mighty thunderer heard,

Then cast his eyes on Carthage, where he found
 The lustful pair, in lawless pleasure drown'd.
 Lost in their loves, insensible of shame,
 And both forgetful of their better fame.
 He calls Cyllenius; and the god attends;
 By whom his menacing command he sends:
 Go, mount the western winds, and cleave the sky;
 Then, with a swift descent, to Carthage fly:
 There find the Trojan chief, who wastes his days
 In slothful riot and inglorious ease,
 Nor minds the future city, giv'n by fate;
 To him this message from my mouth relate:
 Not so, fair Venus hop'd, when twice she won
 Thy life with prayers; nor promis'd such a son.
 Her's was a hero, destin'd to command
 A martial race; and rule the Latian land.
 Who should his ancient line from Teucer draw;
 And, on the conquer'd world, impose the law.
 If glory cannot move a mind so mean,
 Nor future praise from fading pleasure wean,
 Yet why should he defraud his son of fame;
 And grudge the Romans their immortal name!
 What are his vain designs? what hopes he more,
 From his long lingering on a hostile shore?
 Regardless to redeem his honour lost,
 And for his race to gain th' Ausonian coast!
 Bid him with speed the Tyrian court forsake;
 With this command the slumbering warrior wake.
 Hermes obeys; with golden pinions binds
 His flying feet, and mounts the western winds:

And whether o'er the seas or earth he flies,
 With rapid force they bear him down the skies.
 But first he grasps, within his awful hand,
 The mark of sovereign power, his magic wand: 355
 With this he draws the ghosts from hollow graves,
 With this he drives them down the Stygian waves;
 With this he seals in sleep the wakeful fight;
 And eyes, though clos'd in death, restores to light.
 Thus arm'd, the god begins his airy race, 360
 And drives the racking clouds along the liquid space.
 Now sees the tops of Atlas, as he flies,
 Whose brawny back supports the starry skies;
 Atlas, whose head, with piny forests crown'd,
 Is beaten by the winds, with foggy vapours bound. 365
 Snows hide his shoulders; from beneath his chin
 The founts of rolling streams their race begin:
 A beard of ice on his large breast depends:
 Here, pois'd upon his wings, the god descends:
 Then, rested thus, he from the towering height 370
 Plung'd downward, with precipitated flight:
 Lights on the seas, and skims along the flood:
 As water-fowl, who seek their fishy food,
 Less, and yet less, to distant prospect show,
 By turns they dance aloft, and dive below: 375
 Like these, the steerage of his wings he plies,
 And near the surface of the water flies:
 Till, having pass'd the seas, and cross'd the sands,
 He clos'd his wings, and stoop'd on Libyan lands:
 Where shepherds once were hous'd in homely sheds, 380
 Now towers within the clouds advance their heads.

Arriving there, he found the Trojan prince
 New ramparts raising for the town's defence:
 A purple scarf, with gold embroider'd o'er (Queen Dido's gift), about his waste he wore; 385
 A sword with glittering gems diversify'd,
 For ornament, not use, hung idly by his side.
 Then thus, with winged words, the god began (Resuming his own shape): Degenerate man,
 Thou woman's property, what mak'st thou here, 390
 These foreign walls and Tyrian towers to rear?
 Forgetful of thy own? All-powerful Jove,
 Who sways the world below, and heaven above,
 Has sent me down, with this severe command:
 What means thy lingering in the Libyan land? 395
 If glory cannot move a mind so mean,
 Nor future praise, from sitting pleasure wean,
 Regard the fortunes of thy rising heir;
 The promis'd crown let young Ascanius wear;
 To whom th' Ausonian sceptre and the state 400
 Of Rome's imperial name is ow'd by fate.
 So spoke the god; and speaking took his flight,
 Involv'd in clouds; and vanish'd out of sight.

The pious prince was seiz'd with sudden fear;
 Mute was his tongue, and upright stood his hair; 405
 Revolving in his mind the stern command,
 He longs to fly, and loaths the charming land.
 What should he say, or how should he begin,
 What course, alas! remains, to steer between
 Th' offended lover, and the powerful queen! 410

This

This way, and that, he turns his anxious mind,
 And all expedients tries and none can find:
 Fix'd on the deed, but doubtful of the means;
 After long thought to this advice he leans:
 Three chiefs he calls, commands them to repair 415
 The fleet, and ship their men with silent care:
 Some plausible pretence he bids them find,
 To colour what in secret he design'd.
 Himself, meantime, the softest hours would choose,
 Before the love-sick lady heard the news; 420
 And move her tender mind, by slow degrees,
 To suffer what the sovereign power decrees:
 Jove will inspire him, when, and what to say.
 They hear with pleasure, and with haste obey.
 But soon the queen perceives the thin disguise: 425
 (What arts can blind a jealous woman's eyes?)
 She was the first to find the secret fraud,
 Before the fatal news was blaz'd abroad,
 Love the first motions of the lover hears,
 Quick to presage, and ev'n in safety fears. 430
 Nor impious fame was wanting, to report
 The ships repair'd; the Trojans thick resort,
 And purpose to forsake the Tyrian court. }
 Frantic with fear, impatient of the wound,
 And impotent of mind, she roves the city round: 435
 Less wild the Bacchanalian dames appear,
 When, from afar, their nightly god they hear, }
 And howl about the hills, and shake the wreathy spear.
 At length she finds the dear perfidious man;
 Prevents his form'd excuse, and thus began: 440

DRYDEN'S VIRGIL

Bafe and ungrateful, could you hope to fly,
And undiscover'd 'scape a lover's eye?
Nor could my kindness your compassion move,
Nor plighted vows, nor dearer bands of love?
Or is the death of a despairing queen 445
Not worth preventing, though too well foreseen?
Ev'n when the wintery winds command your stay,
You dare the tempest, and defy the sea.
False as you are, suppose you were not bound 'To lands unknown, and foreign coasts to found; 450
Were Troy restor'd, and Priam's happy reign,
Now durst you tempt, for Troy, the raging main?
See whom you fly; am I the foe you shun?
Now, by those holy vows so late begun,
By this right hand (since I have nothing more 455
To challenge, but the faith you gave before),
I beg you by these tears too truly shed,
By the new pleasures of our nuptial bed;
If ever Dido, when you most were kind,
Were pleasing in your eyes, or touch'd your mind;
By these my prayers, if prayers may yet have place;
Pity the fortunes of a falling race.
For you I have provok'd a tyrant's hate;
Incens'd the Libyan and the Tyrian state;
For you alone I suffer in my fame; 465
Bereft of honour, and expos'd to shame:
Whom have I now to trust? (ungrateful guest!
That only name remains of all the rest!)
What have I left, or whither can I fly;
Must I attend Pygmalion's cruelty? 470

Or

rbas shall in triumph lead at proudly scorn'd his proffer'd bed?
 scerr'd, at least, your hasty flight,
 hind some pledge of our delight,
 to bless the mother's mournful sight;
 g Æneas to supply your place;
 uses might express his father's face;
 t then complain, to live bereft usband, or be wholly left
 'd the queen; unmov'd he holds his eyes, ommand; nor suffer'd love to rise, aving in his heart; and thus at length
 ies:

you never can enough repeat,
 bless favours, or I own my debt;
 / mind forget Eliza's name, breath inspires this mortal frame.

et me speak in my defence;
 'd a secret flight from hence:
 attended to the lawful claim aptials, or a husband's name.

490

gent heaven would leave me free, omit my life to fate's decree,
 would lead me to the Trojan shore, s to review, their dust adore;
 's ruin'd palace to restore.

495

e Delphian oracle commands, vites me to the Latian lands.
 promis'd place to which I steer,
 'vows are terminated there.

DRYDEN'S VIRGIL.

If you, a Tyrian, and a stranger born,
 With walls and towers a Libyan town adorn;
 Why may not we, like you a foreign race,
 Like you seek shelter in a foreign place?
 As often as the night obscures the skies
 With humid shades, or twinkling stars arise,
 Anchises' angry ghost in dreams appears,
 Chides my delay, and fills my soul with fears;
 And young Ascanius justly may complain,
 Of his defrauded fate, and destin'd reign.
 Ev'n now the herald of the gods appear'd,
 Waking I saw him, and his message heard.
 From Jove he came commission'd, heavenly bright
 With radiant beams, and manifest to fight.
 The sender and the sent, I both attest,
 These walls he enter'd, and those words express'd:
 Fair queen, oppose not what the gods command;
 Forc'd by my fate, I leave your happy land.
 Thus while he spoke, already she began,
 With sparkling eyes, to view the guilty man:
 From head to foot survey'd his person o'er,
 Nor longer these outrageous threats forbore:
 False as thou art, and more than false, forsworn;
 Not sprung from noble blood, nor goddess-born,
 But hewn from harden'd entrails of a rock;
 And rough Hyrcanian tigers gave thee suck.
 Why should I fawn? what have I worse to fear?
 Did he once look, or lent a listening ear;
 Sigh'd when I sobb'd, or shed one kindly tear?

All symptoms of a base ungrateful mind,
 So foul, that which is worse, 'tis hard to find. 530
 Of man's injustice, why should I complain?
 The gods, and Jove himself, behold in vain
 Triumphant treason, yet no thunder flies:
 Nor Juno views my wrongs with equal eyes;
 Faithless is earth, and faithless are the skies! 535 }
 Justice is fled, and truth is now no more;
 I fav'd the shipwreck'd exile on my shore:
 With needful food his hungry Trojans fed:
 I took the traitor to my throne and bed:
 Fool that I was!—'tis little to repeat 540
 The rest, I stor'd and rigg'd his ruin'd fleet.
 I rave, I rave! A god's command he pleads!
 And makes heaven accessary to his deeds.
 Now Lycian lots, and now the Delian god,
 Now Hermes is employ'd from Jove's abode, 545
 To warn him hence; as if the peaceful state
 Of heavenly powers were touch'd with human fate!
 But go; thy flight no longer I detain;
 Go seek thy promis'd kingdom through the main:
 Yet, if the heavens will hear my pious vow, 550
 The faithless waves, not half so false as thou,
 Or secret sands, shall sepulchres afford
 To thy proud vessels and their perjurd lord.
 Then shalt thou call on injurd Dido's name:
 Dido shall come, in a black sulphury flame; 555 }
 When death has once dissolv'd her mortal frame:

Shall

Shall smile to see the traitor vainly weep;
 Her angry ghost, arising from the deep,
 Shall haunt thee waking, and disturb thy sleep.
 At least my shade thy punishment shall know;
 And fame shall spread the pleasing news below.

Abruptly here she stops: then turns away
 Her leathing eyes, and shuns the sight of day.
 Amaz'd he stood, revolving in his mind
 What speech to frame, and what excuse to find.
 Her fearful maids their fainting mistress led;
 And softly laid her on her ivory bed.

But good Aeneas, though he much desir'd
 To give that pity, which her grief requir'd,
 Though much he mourn'd and labour'd with his lov'
 Resolv'd at length, obeys the will of Jove:
 Reviews his forces; they with early care
 Unmoor their vessels, and for sea prepare.
 The fleet is soon afloat, in all its pride:
 And well-caulk'd gallees in the harbour ride.
 Then oaks for oars they fell'd; or, as they stood,
 Of its green arms despoil'd the growing wood,
 Studious of flight: the beach is cover'd o'er
 With Trojan bands that blacken all the shore:
 On every side are seen, descending down,
 Thick swarms of soldiers loaden from the town.
 Thus, in battalia, march embodied ants,
 Fearful of winter, and of future wants,
 T' invade the corn, and to their cells convey
 The plunder'd forage of their yellow prey.

The troops, along the narrow tracks,
 Bear the weighty burden on their backs:
 Their shoulders on the ponderous grain;
 And the spoil; some lash the lagging train;
 Their several tasks, and equal toil sustain. 590 }
 She sees the tender breast of Dido tore,
 From the tower, she saw the cover'd shore;
 And the shouts of sailors from afar,
 With the murmurs of the watery war!
 O cruel love, what changes canst thou cause 595
 In hearts, subjected to thy laws!
 She bore her haughty soul the tyrant bends;
 Her arts and mean submissions she descends.
 Her arts and aids she left untry'd,
 Her self unexplor'd, before she dy'd. 600
 She calls Anna, look; the Trojans crowd to sea:
 They read their canvass, and their anchors weigh:
 They set the rowing crew, their ships with garlands bind,
 They call the sea-gods, and invite the wind.
 She had thought this threatening blow so near, 605
 Her soul had been forewarn'd to bear.
 She says not you my last request deny,
 On perfidious man your interest try;
 Bring me news, if I must live or die. }
 You, his favourite, you alone can find 610
 The recesses of his inmost mind:
 His trusty secrets you have part,
 Now the soft approaches to his heart.
 Go, men, and humbly seek my haughty foe;
 Tell me, I did not with the Grecians go; 615
 Not

Nor did my fleet against his friends employ,
 Nor swore the ruin of unhappy Troy;
 Nor mov'd with hands prophane his father's dust;
 Why should he then reject a suit so just!
 Whom does he shun, and whither would he fly? 620
 Can he this last, this only prayer deny!
 Let him at least his dangerous flight delay,
 Wait better winds, and hope a calmer sea.
 The nuptials he disclaims, I urge no more;
 Let him pursue the promis'd Latian shore. 625
 A short delay is all I ask him now,
 A pause of grief, an interval from woe:
 Till my soft soul be temper'd to sustain
 Accustom'd sorrows, and inur'd to pain.
 If you in pity grant this one request, 630
 My death shall glut the hatred of his breast.
 This mournful message pious Anna bears,
 And seconds, with her own, her sister's tears:
 But all her arts are still employ'd in vain;
 Again she comes, and is refus'd again. 635
 His harden'd heart nor prayers nor threatenings move;
 Fate, and the god, had stopp'd his ears to love.
 As when the winds their airy quarrel try,
 Justling from every quarter of the sky,
 This way and that the mountain oak they bend, 640
 His boughs they shatter, and his branches rend;
 With leaves and falling mast they spread the ground,
 The hollow valleys echo to the sound;
 Unmov'd, the royal plant their fury mocks,
 Or, shaken, clings more closely to the rocks: 645
 Far

shoots his towering head on high,
 on earth his fix'd foundations lie:
 the form the Trojan hero bears;
 the flags and loud complaints he hears,
 the ly'd words still beating on his ears. 650 }
 His groans, and tears, proclaim his inward pains, the firm purpose of his heart remains.
 The wretched queen, pursu'd by cruel fate,
 lengths the light of heaven to hate, wishes to live: then dire portents she sees, 655
 -on the death her soul decrees;
 she would relate: for when, before the shrine,
 she offers in sacrifice, the purple wine,
 the wine is turn'd to putrid blood,
 the white offer'd milk converts to mud. 660
 The presage, to her alone reveal'd, and ev'n her sister, she conceal'd.
 The temple stood within the grove,
 the death, and to her murder'd love;
 her mur'd chapel she had hung around 665
 with many fleeces, and with garlands crown'd:
 when she visited this lonely dome,
 the voices issued from her husband's tomb:
 she thought she heard him summon her away,
 to his grave, and chide her stay. 670
 The noise is heard, when, with a boding note,
 the screech-owl strains her throat:
 from the chimney's top, or turret's height,
 the noise obscene disturbs the silence of the night.

Besides, old prophecies augment her fears,
 And stern Æneas in her dreams appears Disdainful as by day: she seems alone
 To wander in her sleep, through ways unknown,
 Guideless and dark: or, in a desert plain,
 To seek her subjects, and to seek in vain. 6
 Like Pentheus, when, distracted with his fear,
 He saw two suns, and double Thebes appear:
 Or mad Orestes, when his mother's ghost
 Full in his face infernal torches tofs'd;
 And shook her snaky locks: he shuns the sight, 685
 Flies o'er the stage, surpriz'd with mortal fright;
 The furies guard the door, and intercept his flight.

Now, sinking underneath a load of grief,
 From death alone she seeks her last relief:
 The time and means resolv'd within her breast, 6
 She to her mournful sister thus address'd (Dissembling hope, her cloudy front she clears,
 And a false vigour in her eyes appears):
 Rejoice, she said, instructed from above,
 My lover I shall gain, or lose my love. 6
 Nigh rising Atlas, next the falling sun,
 Long tracts of Æthiopian climates run:
 There a Massylian princess I have found,
 Honour'd for age, for magic arts renown'd;
 Th' Hesperian temple was her trusted care; 7
 'Twas she supply'd the wakeful dragon's fare.
 She poppy-seeds in honey taught to steep,
 Reclaim'd his rage, and sooth'd him into sleep.

 my ruin in his arms embrac'd:

 e priestess and her charms require.
 she said, and farther speech forbears; 720
 paleness in her face appears:
 nistrustless Anna could not find
 t funeral in these rites design'd, ght so dire a rage possess'd her mind. }
 ng of a train conceal'd so well, 725
 l no worse than when Sicheus fell:

 fs, vervain, eugh, compose the wreath,
 y baleful green denoting death.

The queen, determin'd to the fatal deed,
 The spoils and sword he left, in order spread:
 And the man's image on the nuptial bed. 73!

And now (the sacred altars plac'd around)
 The priestess enters, with her hair unbound,
 And thrice invokes the powers below the ground.
 Night, Erebus, and Chaos, she proclaims,
 And threefold Hecate, with her hundred names,
 And three Dianas: next she sprinkles round,
 With feign'd Avernian drops, the hallow'd ground
 Culls hoary simples, found by Phœbe's light,
 With brazen sickles reap'd at noon of night.
 Then mixes baleful juices in the bowl,
 And cuts the forehead of a new-born foal;
 Robbing the mother's love. The destin'd queen.
 Observes, assisting at the rites obscene:
 A leaven'd cake in her devoted hands
 She holds, and next the highest altar stands:
 One tender foot was shod, her other bare, 7
 Girt was her gather'd gown, and loose her hair.
 Thus dress'd, she summon'd, with her dy-breath,

The heavens and planets, conscious of her death;
 And every power, if any rules above, 7
 Who minds, or who revenges, injur'd love.

'Twas dead of night, when weary bodies close
 Their eyes in balmy sleep and soft repose:
 The winds no longer whisper through the woods,
 Nor murmuring tides disturb the gentle floods. 7

urs in filént order mov'd around,

 y Dido was alone awake.
 ep nor ease the furious queen can find;
 d her eyes, as quiet fled her mind. 770
 , and rage, and love, divide her heart:
 and rage had some, but love the greater part.
 thus she said within her secret mind:
 all I do; what succour can I find?
 a suppliant to Hiarba's pride, 775
 e my turn, to court and be deny'd!
 with this ungrateful Trojan go,
 an empire, and attend a foe?
 I refug'd, and his train reliev'd;
 e: but am I sure to be receiv'd? 780
 titude in Trojan souls have place?
 on still lives in all his race!
 all I seek alone the churlish crew,
 h my fleet their flying sails pursue?
 rce have I but those, whom scarce before 785
 eluctant from their native shore?
 y again embark at my desire,
 ore sustain the seas, and quit their second Tyre?

Rather with steel thy guilty breast invade,
 And take the fortune thou thyself hast made. 75
 Your pity, sister, first seduc'd my mind;
 Or seconded too well what I design'd.
 These dear-bought pleasures had I never known,
 Had I continued free, and still my own;
 Avoiding love, I had not found despair:
 But shar'd, with savage beasts, the common air;
 Like them a lonely life I might have led,
 Not mourn'd the living, nor disturb'd the dead.
 These thoughts she brooded in her anxious breast;
 On board, the Trojan found more easy rest. 80
 Resolv'd to sail, in sleep he pass'd the night;
 And order'd all things for his early flight.
 To whom once more the winged god appears: ]
 His former youthful mien and shape he wears,
 And, with this new alarm, invades his ears: 85 ]
 Sleep'st thou, O goddess-born! and canst thou drown
 Thy needful cares, so near a hostile town,
 Beset with foes? nor hear'st the western gales
 Invite thy passage, and inspire thy sails? 81
 She harbours in her heart a furious hate;
 And thou shalt find the dire effects too late;
 Fix'd on revenge, and obstinate to die;
 Haste swiftly hence, while thou hast power to fly.
 The sea with ships will soon be cover'd o'er, 81
 And blazing firebrands kindle all the shore.
 Prevent her rage, while night obscures the skies;
 And sail before the purple morn arise.

what hazards thy delay may bring?
 a various and a changeful thing. 820
 mes in the dream; then took his flight, ir unseen; and mix'd with night.
 warn'd by the celestial messenger,
 prince arose with hasty fear:

 d your flying sails, and stand to sea.
 nmands; he stood before my sight;
 l us once again to speedy flight.
 ower, what power foe'er thou art, 830
 fs'd orders I resign my heart:
 the way; protect thy Trojan bands;
 er the design thy will commands.
 nd, drawing forth his flaming sword,
 ering arm divides the many-twisted cord:
 ing zeal inspires his train;
 they snatch; they rush into the main.
 llong haste they leave the desert shores,
 the liquid seas with labouring oars.
 now had left her saffron bed, 840
 s of early light the heavens o'erspread,
 n a tower the queen, with wakeful eyes,
 oint upward from the rosy skies:
 l to seaward, but the sea was void,
 e in ken the sailing ships descry'd:
 h despight, and furious with despair,
 her trembling breast, and tore her hair.

And shall th' ungrateful traitor go, she said,
 My land forsaken, and my love betray'd?
 Shall we not arm, not rush from every street,     850
 To follow, sink, and burn his perjur'd fleet?
 Haste; haul my gallies out; pursue the foe:
 Bring flaming brands; set sail, and swiftly row.
 What have I said? Where am I? Fury turns
 My brain, and my distemper'd bosom burns.     855
 Then, when I gave my person and my throne,
 This hate, this rage, had been more timely shown.
 See now the promis'd faith, the vaunted name,
 The pious man, who, rushing through the flame,
 Preserv'd his gods, and to the Phrygian shore     860
 The burden of his feeble father bore!
 I should have torn him piece-meal; strow'd in floods
 His scatter'd limbs, or left expos'd in woods:
 Destroy'd his friends and son; and, from the fire,
 Have set the reeking boy before the fire.     865
 Events are doubtful which on battle wait;
 Yet where's the doubt to souls secure of fate!
 My Tyrians, at their injur'd queen's command,
 Had tofs'd their fires amid the Trojan band:
 At once extinguish'd all the faithless name;     870
 And I myself, in vengeance of my shame,
 Had fall'n upon the pile to mend the funeral flame. }
 Thou sun, who view'st at once the world below,
 Thou Juno, guardian of the nuptial vow,
 Thou Hecate, hearken from thy dark abodes;     875
 Ye furies, fiends, and violated gods,

All

swers invok'd with Dido's dying breath,
 and her curses, and avenge her death.
 The Fates ordain, and Jove commands,
 the grateful wretch should find the Latian lands, 880 not a race untam'd, and haughty foes,
 a peaceful entrance with dire arms oppose;
 beset with numbers in th' unequal field,
 when discourag'd, and himself expell'd;
 run for succour sue from place to place, 885
 from his subjects, and his son's embrace:
 let him see his friends in battle slain,
 their untimely fate lament in vain:
 when, at length, the cruel war shall cease,
 and conditions may he buy his peace. 890
 let him then enjoy supreme command, till untimely by some hostile hand,
 be unbury'd on the barren sand. } these are my prayers, and this my dying will:
 you, my Tyrians, every curse fulfil; 895 mutual hate, and mortal wars proclaim to the prince, the people, and the name.
 grateful offerings on my grave bestow,
 and from hence in every future age, 900
 the rage excites your arms, and strength supplies
 the rage,
 me avenger of our Libyan blood;
 fire and sword pursue the perjur'd brood:
 ours, our seas, our shores oppos'd to theirs,
 the same hate descend on all our heirs. 905

This

This said, within her anxious mind she weighs
 The means of cutting short her odious days.
 Then to Sichæus' nurse she briefly said
 (For when she left her country her's was dead),
 Go, Barce, call my sister; let her care 91
 The solemn rites of sacrifice prepare:
 The sheep, and all the atoning offerings bring,
 Sprinkling her body from the crystal spring
 With living drops: then let her come, and thou
 With sacred fillets bind thy hoary brow. 92
 Thus will I pay my vows to Stygian Jove,
 And end the cares of my disastrous love.
 Then cast the Trojan image on the fire,
 And, as that burns, my passion shall expire.
 The nurse moves onward, with officious care, 93
 And all the speed her aged limbs can bear.
 But furious Dido, with dark thoughts involv'd,
 Shook at the mighty mischief she resolv'd.
 With livid spots distinguish'd was her face,
 Red were her rolling eyes, and discompos'd her pace:
 Ghastly she gaz'd, with pain she drew her breath,
 And nature shiver'd at approaching death.
 Then swiftly to the fatal place she pass'd,
 And mounts the funeral pile, with furious haste:
 Unsheaths the sword the Trojan left behind 94
 (Not for so dire an enterprize design'd).
 But when she view'd the garments loosely spread,
 Which once he wore, and saw the conscious bed,
 Sh

She paus'd, and, with a sigh, the robes embrac'd; }
 Then on the couch her trembling body cast, 935 }
 Repres'd the ready tears, and spoke her last:
 Dear pledges of my love, while heaven so pleas'd,
 Receive a soul, of mortal anguish eas'd:
 My fatal course is finish'd, and I go,
 A glorious name, among the ghosts below. 940
 A lofty city by my hands is rais'd;
 Pymalion punish'd, and my lord appeas'd.
 What could my fortune have afforded more,
 Had the false Trojan never touch'd my shore?
 Then kiss'd the couch; and must I die, she said, 945
 And unreveng'd? 'tis doubly to be dead!
 Yet ev'n this death with pleasure I receive;
 On any terms, 'tis better than to live.
 These flames from far may the false Trojan view;
 These boding omens his base flight pursue. 950
 She said, and struck. Deep enter'd in her side
 The piercing steel, with recking purple dy'd:
 Clogg'd in the wound the cruel weapon stands;
 The spouting blood came streaming on her hands.
 Her sad attendants saw the deadly stroke, 955
 And, with loud cries, the sounding palace shook.
 Distracted from the fatal fight they fled,
 And through the town the dismal rumour spread.
 First from the frighted court the yell began,
 Redoubled thence from house to house it ran: 960
 The groans of men, with shrieks, laments, and cries
 Of mixing women, mount the vaulted skies.

Not

Not less the clamour, than if ancient Tyre,
 Or the new Carthage, set by foes on fire,
 The rolling ruin, with their lov'd abodes, 965
 Involv'd the blazing temples of their gods.
 Her sister hears, and, furious with despair,
 She beats her breast, and rends her yellow hair:
 And, calling on Eliza's name aloud,
 Runs breathless to the place, and breaks the crowd.
 Was all that pomp of woe for this prepar'd,
 These fires, this funeral pile, these altars rear'd?
 Was all this train of plots contriv'd, said she,
 All only to deceive unhappy me?
 Which is the worst? Didst thou in death pretend 975
 To scorn thy sister, or delude thy friend?
 Thy summon'd sister, and thy friend, had come;
 One sword had serv'd us both, one common tomb.
 Was I to raise the pile, the powers invoke,
 Not to be present at the fatal stroke? 980
 At once thou hast destroy'd thyself and me;
 Thy town, thy senate, and thy colony!
 Bring water, bathe the wound; while I in death
 Lay close my lips to her's, and catch the flying breath.
 This said, she mounts the pile with eager haste, 985
 And in her arms the gasping queen embrac'd:
 Her temples chaf'd, and her own garments tore,
 To staunch the streaming blood, and cleanse the gore.
 Thrice Dido try'd to raise her drooping head,
 And fainting thrice, fell groveling on the bed. 990

Thrice

Thrice op'd her heavy eyes, and saw the light,
 But, having found it, sicken'd at the sight,
 And clos'd her lids at last in endless night.

Then Juno, grieving that she should sustain

A death so lingering, and so full of pain,

995

Sent Iris down, to free her from the strife

Of labouring nature, and dissolve her life.

For, since she dy'd, not doom'd by heaven's decree,

Or her own crime, but human casualty,

And rage of love, that plung'd her in despair,

1000

The sisters had not cut the topmost hair,

Which Proserpine and they can only know,

Nor made her sacred to the shades below.

Downward the various goddesses took her flight,

And drew a thousand colours from the light:

1005

Then stood above the dying lover's head,

And said, I thus devote thee to the dead.

This offering to th' infernal gods I bear:

Thus while she spoke she cut the fatal hair:

The struggling soul was loos'd, and life dissolv'd in air.

THE ARGUMENT.

Æneas, setting sail from Afric, is driven, by a storm, on the coast of Sicily: where he is hospitably received by his friend Acestes, king of part of the island, and born of Trojan parentage. He applies himself to celebrate the memory of his father with divine honours and accordingly institutes funeral games, and appoints prizes for those who should conquer in them. While the ceremonies were performing, Juno sends Iris to persuade the Trojan women to burn the ships, who, upon her instigation, set fire to them, which burnt four, and would have consumed the rest, had not Jupiter, by a miraculous shower, extinguished it. Upon this Æneas, by the advice of one of his generals, and a vision of his father, builds a city for the women, old men, and others, who were either unfit for war, or weary of the voyage, and sails for Italy: Venus procures of Neptune a safe voyage for him him and all his men, excepting only his pilot Palinurus, who was unfortunately lost.

MEANTIME the Trojan cuts his watery way,
 Fix'd on his voyage through the curling sea:
 Then, casting back his eyes, with dire amaze,
 Sees, on the Punic shore, the mounting blaze.
 The cause unknown; yet his presaging mind
 The fate of Dido from the fire divin'd:
 He knew the stormy souls of woman-kind,
 What secret springs their eager passions move,
 How capable of death for injur'd love.
 Dire auguries from hence the Trojans draw, 10
 Till neither fires nor shining shores they saw.
 Now seas and skies their prospect only bound,
 An empty space above, a floating field around.
 But soon the heavens with shadows were o'erspread;
 A swelling cloud hung hovering o'er their head: 15
 Livid it look'd, the threatening of a storm;
 Then night and horror ocean's face deform.
 The pilot, Palinurus, cry'd aloud,
 What gusts of weather from that gathering cloud
 My thoughts presage! Ere yet the tempest roars 20
 Stand to your tackle, mates, and stretch your oars;
 Contract your swelling sails, and luff to wind:
 The frighted crew perform the task assign'd.
 Then, to his fearless chief, Not heaven, said he,
 Though Jove himself should promise Italy, 25
 Can stem the torrent of this raging sea!

Mark

Mark how the shifting winds from west arise,
 And what collected night involves the skies!
 Nor can our shaken vessels live at sea;
 Much less against the tempest force their way; 30
 'Tis fate diverts our course, and fate we must obey.
 Not far from hence, if I observ'd aright
 The southing of the stars, and polar light,
 Sicilia lies; whose hospitable shores
 In safety we may reach with struggling oars.
 Æneas then reply'd, Too sure I find,
 We strive in vain against the seas and wind:
 Now shift your sails: what place can please me more
 That what you promise, the Sicilian shore;
 Whose hallow'd earth Anchises' bones contains,
 And where a prince of Trojan lineage reigns!
 The course resolv'd, before the western wind
 They scud amain, and make the port assign'd.

Meantime Acestes, from a lofty stand,
 Beheld the fleet descending on the land;
 And, not unmindful of his ancient race,
 Down from the cliff he ran with eager pace,
 And held the hero in a strict embrace.
 Of a rough Libyan bear the spoils he wore;
 And either hand a pointed javelin bore.
 His mother was a dame of Dardan blood;
 His sire Crinifus, a Sicilian flood;
 He welcomes his returning friends ashore
 With plenteous country cates, and homely store.

Now, when the following morn had chac'd away
 The flying stars, and light restor'd the day,

Æneas call'd the Trojan troops around,
 And thus bespoke them from a rising ground :
 Offspring of heaven, divine Dardanian race,
 The sun revolving through th' ethereal space, 60
 The shining circle of the year has fill'd,
 Since first this isle my father's ashes held :
 And now the rising day renews the year
 (A day for ever sad, for ever dear).
 This would I celebrate with annual games, 65
 With gifts on altars pil'd, and holy flames,
 Though banish'd to Getulia's barren sands,
 Caught on the Grecian seas, or hostile lands :
 But since this happy storm our fleet has driven
 (Not, as I deem, without the will of heaven) 70
 Upon these friendly shores and flowery plains,
 Which hide Anchises, and his blest remains,
 Let us with joy perform his honours due,
 And pray for prosperous winds, our voyage to renew.
 Pray, that in towns and temples of our own, 75 }
 The name of great Anchises may be known, }
 And yearly games may spread the god's renown.
 Our sports, Acestes, of the Trojan race,
 With royal gifts ordain'd, is pleas'd to grace :
 Two fleets on every ship the king bestows ; 80
 His gods and ours shall share your equal vows.
 Besides, if nine days hence, the rosy morn
 Shall, with unclouded light, the skies adorn,
 That day with solemn sports I mean to grace :
 Light gallies on the seas shall run a watery race. 85

Some shall in swiftness for the goal contend,
 And others try the twanging bow to bend:
 The strong with iron gauntlets arm'd shall stand,
 Oppos'd in combat on the yellow sand.
 Let all be present at the games prepar'd, 90
 And joyful victors wait the just reward.
 But now assist the rites, with garlands crown'd;
 He said, and first his brows with myrtle bound.
 Then Helymus, by his example led,
 And old Acestes, each adorn'd his head; 95
 Thus young Ascanius, with a sprightly grace,
 His temples ty'd, and all the Trojan race.
 Æneas then advanc'd amidst the train,
 By thousands follow'd through the flowery plain,
 To great Anchises' tomb: which, when he found, 100
 He pour'd to Bacchus, on the hallow'd ground,
 Two bowls of sparkling wine, of milk two more,
 And two from offer'd bulls of purple gore.
 With roses then the sepulchre he strow'd;
 And thus his father's ghost bespoke aloud: 105
 Hail, O ye holy manes! hail again
 Paternal ashes, now review'd in vain!
 The gods permitted not that you, with me,
 Should reach the promis'd shores of Italy;
 Or Tyber's flood, what flood soe'er it be. 110 }
 Scarce had he finish'd, when, with speckled pride,
 A serpent from the tomb began to glide;
 His huge bulk on seven high volumes roll'd;
 Blue was his breadth of back, but streak'd with scaly
 gold:

Thus

ing on his curls, he seem'd to pass fire along, and singe the grass. 115
 His colours through his body run,
 When her bow imbibes the sun:
 The rising altars, and around,
 The monster shot along the ground; 120
 The wheels play amidst the bowls he pass'd,
 His lolling tongue, assay'd the taste:
 With holy food, the wondrous guest
 The hollow tomb retir'd to rest.
 The prince, surpriz'd at what he view'd, 125
 His honours with more zeal renew'd:
 If this the place's genius were,
 In proof of his father's sepulchre.
 According to the rites, he slew,
 Wine, and steers of sable hue; 130
 The precious wine he from the goblets pour'd,
 His father's ghost, from hell restor'd.
 The attendants in long order come,
 Their gifts at great Anchises' tomb;
 Some oxen; some divide the spoil; 135 }
 The chargers on the grassy foil;
 The fires, and offer'd entrails broil.
 The day desir'd: the skies were bright
 In lustre of the rising light:
 The shouting people, rous'd by founding fame 140
 The feasts, and great Accestes' name,
 The shore with acclamations fill,
 To hold, and part to prove their skill.

And first the gifts in public view they place,
 Green laurel wreaths, and palm (the victor's grace)
 Within the circle, arms and tripods lie,
 Ingots of gold, and silver heap'd on high,
 And vests embroider'd of the Tyrian dye.
 The trumpet's clangor then the feast proclaims,
 And all prepare for their appointed games. 1
 Four galleys first, with equal rowers bear,
 Advancing, in the watery lists appear.
 The speedy Dolphin, that outstrips the wind,
 Bore Mnestheus, author of the Memmian kind:
 Gyas the vast Chimæra's bulk commands, 1
 Which rising like a towering city stands:
 Three Trojans tug at every labouring oar;
 Three banks in three degrees the sailors bore;
 Beneath their sturdy strokes the billows roar.
 Sergesthus, who began the Sergian race, 1
 In the great Centaur took the leading place:
 Cloanthus on the sea-green Scylla stood,
 From whom Cluentius draws his Trojan blood.
 Far in the sea, against the foaming shore,
 There stands a rock; the raging billows roar . 1
 Above his head in storms; but, when 'tis clear,
 Uncurl their ridgy backs, and at his foot appear.
 In peace below the gentle waters run;
 The cormorants above lie basking in the fun.
 On this the hero fix'd an oak in fight, 1
 The mark to guide the mariners aright.
 To bear with this, the seamen stretch their oars; Then round the rock they steer, and seek the for-shores.

The lots decide their place: above the rest,
 Each leader shining in his Tyrian vest: 175
 The common crew, with wreaths of poplar boughs,
 Their temples crown, and shade their sweaty brows.
 Besmear'd with oil, their naked shoulders shine:
 All take their seats, and wait the sounding sign.
 They gripe their oars, and every panting breast 180
 Is rais'd by turns with hope, by turns with fear de-press'd.

The clangor of the trumpet gives the sign;
 At once they start advancing in a line.
 With shouts the sailors rend the starry skies;
 Lash'd with their oars, the smoky billows rise; 185 }
 Sparkles the briny main, and the vex'd ocean fries. }
 Exact in time, with equal strokes they row:
 At once the brushing oars and brazen prow }
 Dash up the sandy waves, and ope the depths below. }
 Not fiery courfers, in a chariot race, 190
 Invade the field with half so swift a pace.
 Not the fierce driver with more fury lends
 The founding lash; and, ere the stroke descends, }
 Low to the wheels his pliant body bends. }
 The partial crowd their hopes and fears divide, 195
 And aid, with eager shouts, the favour'd side.
 Cries, murmurs, clamours, with a mixing sound,
 From woods to woods, from hills to hills rebound.

Amidst the loud applauses of the shore,
 Gyas outstripp'd the rest, and sprung before; 200
 Cloanthus, better mann'd, pursu'd him fast;
 But his o'er-masted galley check'd his haste.

Hardly his head the plunging pilot rears,
 Clogg'd with his clothes, and cumber'd with his years:
 Now dropping wet, he climbs the cliff with pain;
 The crowd, that saw him fall, and float again,
 Shout from the distant shore, and loudly laugh'd, 235
 To see his heaving breast disgorge the briny draught.
 The following Centaur, and the Dolphin's crew,
 Their vanish'd hopes of victory renew:
 While Gyas lags, they kindle in the race,
 To reach the mark: Sergesthus takes the place: 240
 Mnestheus pursues; and, while around they wind,
 Comes up, not half his galley's length behind.
 Then on the deck amidst his mates appear'd,
 And thus their drooping courages he cheer'd:
 My friends, and Hector's followers heretofore, 245
 Exert your vigour; tug the labouring oar;
 Stretch to your strokes, my still-unconquer'd crew,
 Whom from the flaming walls of Troy I drew.
 In this, our common interest, let me find
 That strength of hand, that courage of the mind, 250
 As when you stemm'd the strong Malæan flood,
 And o'er the Syrtes broken billows row'd.
 I seek not now the foremost palm to gain;
 Though yet—But ah, that haughty wish is vain! }
 Let those enjoy it whom the gods ordain. 255 }
 But to be last, the lags of all the race,
 Redeem yourselves and me from that disgrace.
 Now one and all, they tug amain; they row
 At the full stretch, and shake the brazen prow.

The sea beneath them sinks: their labouring sides 260
 Are swell'd, and sweat runs guttering down in tides.
 Chance aids their daring with unhop'd success;
 Sergesthus, eager with his beak, to press
 Betwixt the rival galley and the rock,
 Shuts th' unwieldy Centaur in the lock. 265
 The vessel struck; and, with the dreadful shock,
 Her oars she shiver'd, and her head she broke.
 The trembling rowers from their banks arise,
 And, anxious for themselves, renounce the prize.
 With iron poles they heave her off the shores; 270
 And gather, from the sea, their floating oars.
 The crew of Mnestheus, with elated minds,
 Urge their success, and call the willing winds:
 Then ply their oars, and cut their liquid way
 In larger compass on the roomy sea. 275
 As when the dove her rocky hold forsakes,
 Rouz'd in a fright, her sounding wings she shakes,
 The cavern rings with clattering; out she flies,
 And leaves her callow care, and cleaves the skies;
 At first she flutters; but at length she springs 280
 To smoother flight, and shoots upon her wings;
 So Mnestheus in the Dolphin cuts the sea,
 And, flying with a force, that force assists his way.
 Sergesthus in the Centaur soon he pass'd,
 Wedg'd in the rocky shoals, and sticking fast. 285
 In vain the victor he with cries implores,
 And practises to row with shatter'd oars.
 Then Mnestheus bears with Gyas, and out-flies:
 The ship without a pilot yields the prize.
 Unvanquish'd

quish'd Scylla now alone remains; 290 pursues, and all his vigour strains.
 from the favouring multitude arise, ding echo to the shouts replies; } wishes, and applause, run rattling through } the skies.
 clamours with disdain the Scylla heard, 295
 grudg'd the praise, but more the robb'd reward:
 d to hold their own, they mend their pace;
 linate to die, or gain the race.
 with success, the Dolphin swiftly ran ey can conquer who believe they can): 300 rge their oars, and fortune both supplies, ith perhaps had shar'd an equal prize:
 o the seas Cloanthus holds his hands,
 ccour from the watery powers demands:
 f the liquid realms, on which I row, 305 }
 'n by you, the laurel bind my brow, }
 o make me guilty of my vow.
 -white bull shall on your shore be slain, er'd entrails cast into the main:
 ddy wine, from golden goblets thrown, 310
 raceful gift and my return shall own.
 oir of nymphs, and Phorcus from below,
 irgin Panopea, heard his vow;
 d Portunos, with his breadth of hand,
 on, and sped the galley to the land. 315 is a shaft, on winged wind, she flies;
 larting to the port, obtains the prize.

The

The herald summons all, and then proclaims
 Cloanthus conqueror of the naval games.
 The prince with laurel crowns the victor's head, 320
 And three fat steers are to his vessel led;
 The ship's reward: with generous wine beside,
 And fums of silver, which the crew divide.
 The leaders are distinguish'd from the rest,
 The victor honour'd with a nobler vest: 325
 Where gold and purple strive in equal rows,
 And needle-work its happy cost bestows.
 There, Ganymede is wrought with living art,
 Chacing through Ida's groves the trembling hart;
 Breathless he seems, yet eager to pursue:
 When from aloft descends, in open view,
 The bird of Jove; and, fousing on his prey,
 With crooked talons bears the boy away.
 In vain, with lifted hands and gazing eyes, }
 His guards behold him soaring through the skies,
 And dogs pursue his flight, with imitated cries. }
 Mnestheus the second victor was declar'd;
 And summon'd there, the second prize he shar'd:
 A coat of mail, which brave Demoleus bore,
 More brave Æneas from his shoulders tore, 340 }
 In single combat on the Trojan shore.
 This was ordain'd for Mnestheus to possess,
 In war for his defence; for ornament in peace:
 Rich was the gift, and glorious to behold;
 But yet, so ponderous with its plates of gold, 345
 That

ce two servants could the weight sustain, } ed thus, Demoleus o'er the plain } and lightly seiz'd the Trojan train. } succeeding to the last reward, lly bowls of massy silver shar'd; 350
 res prominent, and richly wrought, brafs cauldrons from Dodona brought,
 all rewarded by the hero's hands,
 quering temples bound with purple bands.
 Sergesthus, clearing from the rock, 355
 ack his galley shatter'd with the shock.
 e look'd without an aiding oar,
 ed by the vulgar, made to shore.
 fnake, surpriz'd upon the road,
 athwart her body by the load 360

 cruis'd, and trodden to the ground, ith loofen'd curls, she crawls along,
 above, she brandishes her tongue:
 h her eyes, and bristles with her scales, 365
 ling in the dust, her parts unfound she trails!
 o the port the Centaur tends,
 ne wants in oars with fails amends:
 is galley fav'd, the grateful prince h' unhappy chief to recompense. 370
 e Cretan slave, rewards his care,

 e his way the Trojan hero bent, ighbouring plain, with mountains pent,
 Whose

Whose sides were shaded with surrounding wood: 3
 Full in the midst of this fair valley stood
 A native theatre, which rising slow,
 By just degrees, o'erlook'd the ground below.
 High on a sylvan throne the leader sate,
 A numerous train attend in solemn state; 3
 Here those, that in the rapid course delight, Desire of honour and the prize invite:
 The rival runners without order stand,
 The Trojans, mix'd with the Sicilian band.
 First Nisus with Euryalus appears,
 Euryalus a boy of blooming years; 3
 With sprightly grace, and equal beauty crown'd:
 Nisus, for friendship to the youth renown'd.
 Moors next, of Priam's royal race,
 Then Salius, join'd with Patron, took their place: 3
 But Patron in Arcadia had his birth,
 And Salius his from Acarnanian earth.
 Then two Sicilian youths, the names of these Swift Helymus, and lovely Panopes,
 Both jolly huntsmen, both in forest bred, 3
 And owning old Acestes for their head.
 With several others of ignobler name,
 Whom time has not deliver'd o'er to fame.
 To these the hero thus his thoughts explain'd:
 In words, which general approbation gain'd: 4
 One common largess is for all design'd;
 The vanquish'd and the victor shall be join'd.
 Two darts of polish'd steel and Gnosian wood,
 A silver-studded ax alike bestow'd.

most three have olive wreaths decreed; 405
 if these obtains a stately steed with trappings; and the next in fame, or of an Amazonian dame,
 her'd Thracian arrows well supply'd;
 belt shall gird his manly side, 410 }
 th a sparkling diamond shall be ty'd:
 this Grecian helmet shall content, to their appointed base they went:
 ing hearts th' expected sign receive,
 ting all at once, the barrier leave. 415
 t, as on the winged winds, they flew,
 d the distant goal with greedy view.
 the crowd, swift Nifus all o'er-pas'd;
 is, nor thunder, equal half his haste.
 but though the next yet far disjoin'd, 420
 ius, and Euryalus behind;
 ymus, whom young Dioreas ply'd,
 step, and almost side by side:
 ders pressing, and in longer space
 , or left at least a dubious race. 425 pent, the goal they almost reach at last;
 ger Nifus, hapless in his haste, rst, and, slipping fell upon the plain,
 ith the blood of oxen newly slain:
 less victor had not mark'd his way; 430 ling where the treacherous puddle lay,
 flew up; and on the grassy floor,
 besmear'd with filth and holy gore.

Not

Not mindless then, Euryalus, of thee,
 Nor of the sacred bonds of amity, 435
 He strove th' immediate rival's hope to cross,
 And caught the foot of Salius as he rose:
 So Salius lay extended on the plain;
 Euryalus springs out, the prize to gain,
 And leaves the crowd: applauding peals attend 440
 The victor to the goal, who vanquish'd by his friend,
 Next Helymus, and then Dioces came,
 By two misfortunes made the third in fame.

But Salius enters; and, exclaiming loud
 For justice, deafens and disturbs the crowd: 445
 Urges his cause may in the court be heard;
 And pleads, the prize is wrongfully conferr'd.
 But favour for Euryalus appears;
 His blooming beauty, with his tender years,
 Had brib'd the judges for the promis'd prize; 450
 Besides, Dioces fills the court with cries:
 Who vainly reaches at the last reward,
 If the first palm on Salius be conferr'd.
 Then thus the prince: Let no disputes arise:
 Where fortune plac'd it, I award the prize: 455
 But fortune's errors give me leave to mend,
 At least to pity my deserving friend.

He said: and, from among the spoils, he draws (Ponderous with shaggy mane and golden paws)
 A lion's hide, to Salius this he gives; 460
 Nisus with envy sees the gift, and grieves.
 If such rewards to vanquish'd men are due,
 He said, and falling is to rise by you,

rize may Nifus from your bounty claim, erited the first rewards and fame? 465
 g, both an equal fortune try'd;
 Fortune for my fall so well provide!
 is he pointed to his face, and show'd ds, and all his habit smear'd with blood.
 ulgent father of the people smil'd, 470
 us'd to be produc'd an ample shield drous art by Didymaon wrought, ce from Neptune's bars in triumph brought.
 r'n to Nifus, he divides the rest;
 al justice, in his gifts exprefs'd. 475
 e thus ended, and rewards bestow'd, ore the prince bespeaks the attentive crowd:
 be here, whose dauntless courage dare tlet fight, with limbs and body bare, ofite sustain in open view, 480
 orth the champion, and the games renew.
 izes I propose, and thus divide;
 with gilded horns, and fillets ty'd,
 the portion of the conquering chief;
 l and helm shall cheer the loser's grief. 485
 ughty Dares in the lists appears;
 he strides, his head crested bears:
 vious arms the weighty gauntlet wield,
 d applauses echo through the field.
 lone in combat us'd to stand, 490
 tch of mighty Paris hand to hand;
 ce at Hector's funerals undertook
 c Butes, of th' Amician stock;
 And,

And, by the stroke of his riflefs hand,
Stretch'd the vast bulk upon the yellow fand.
Such Dares was; and fuch he ftrod along,
And drew the wonder of the gazing throng.
His brawny back, an ample breast he fhows;
His lifted arms around his head he throws;
And deals in whiffling air his empty blows.
His match is fought; but through the trembling
Not one dares answer to the proud demand.
Prefuming of his force, with sparkling eyes,
Already he devours the promis'd prize.
He claims the bull with awlefs insolence;
And, having feiz'd his horns, accofts the prince
If none my matchlefs valour dares oppofe,
How long fhall Dares wait his dastard foes?
Permit me, chief, permit without delay,
To lead this uncontended gift away.
The crowd affents; and, with redoubled cries,
For the proud challenger demands the prize.
Acestes, fir'd with juft difdain, to fee
The palm ufurp'd without a victory,
Reproach'd Entellus thus, who fate befide,
And heard, and faw unmov'd, the Trojan's pri
Once, but in vain, a champion of renown,
So tamely can you bear the ravish'd crown?
A prize in triumph, borne before your fight,
And fhun for fear the danger of the fight;
Where is our Eryx now, the boasted name,
The god who taught your thundering arm the

Where now your baffled honour, where the spoil
 That fill'd your house, and fame that fill'd our isle?
 Entellus, thus: My soul is still the same; 525
 Unmov'd with fear, and mov'd with martial fame:
 But my chill blood is curdled in my veins,
 And scarce the shadow of a man remains.
 Oh, could I turn to that fair prime again,
 That prime, of which this boaster is so vain! 530
 The brave who this decrepit age defies,
 Should feel my force, without the promis'd prize.
 He said, and, rising at the word, he threw
 Two ponderous gauntlets down, in open view;
 Gauntlets, which Eryx wont in fight to wield, 535
 And sheath his hands with in the lifted field.
 With fear and wonder seiz'd, the crowd beholds
 The gloves of death, with seven distinguish'd folds
 Of tough bull hides; the space within is spread
 With iron, or with loads of heavy lead. 540
 Dares himself was daunted at the sight,
 Renounc'd his challenge, and refus'd to fight.
 Astonish'd at their weight the hero stands,
 And pois'd the ponderous engines in his hands.
 What had your wonder, said Entellus, been, 545
 Had you the gauntlets of Alcides seen,
 Or view'd the stern debate on this unhappy green! }
 These which I bear, your brother Eryx bore,
 Still mark'd with batter'd brains and mingled gore.
 With these he long sustain'd th' Herculean arm;
 And these I wielded while my blood was warm:

This languish'd frame while better spirits fed,
 Ere age unfrung my nerves, or time o'erfnov'd my head.

But, if the challenger these arms refuse,
 And cannot wield their weight, or dare not use; 555
 If great Æneas and Acestes join

In his request, these gauntlets I resign:

Let us with equal arms perform the fight,
 And let him leave to fear, since I resign my right.
 This said, Entellus for the strife prepares; 560

Stript of his quilted coat, his body bares:
 Compos'd of mighty bones and brawn he stands,
 A goodly towering object on the sands.

Then just Æneas equal arms supply'd,
 Which round their shoulders to their wrists they ty'd;

Both on the tiptoe stand, at full extent;
 Their arms aloft, their bodies inly bent;
 Their heads from aiming blows they bear afar;
 With clashing gauntlets then provoke the war.

One on his youth and pliant limbs relies; 570
 One on his sinews and his giant size.

The last is stiff with age, his motion slow,
 He heaves for breath: he staggers to and fro; }
 And clouds of issuing smoke his nostrils loudly blow. }

Yet, equal in success, they ward, they strike; 575
 Their ways are different, but their art alike.

Before, behind, the blows are dealt; around
 Their hollow sides the rattling thumps resound:

A storm of strokes well-meant with fury flies,
 And errs about their temples, ears, and eyes: 580

Not

Nor always errs; for oft the gauntlet draws
 A sweeping stroke, along the crackling jaws.
 Heavy with age, Entellus stands his ground,
 But, with his warping body, wards the wound:
 His hand and watchful eye keep even pace; 585
 While Dares traverses, and shifts his place;
 And, like a captain, who beleaguers round
 Some strong-built castle, on a rising ground,
 Views all th' approaches with observing eyes,
 This, and that other part, in vain he tries; 590 }
 And more on industry than force relies.
 With hands on high, Entellus threats the foe;
 But Dares watch'd the motion from below, }
 And slipt aside, and shunn'd the long-descending blow. }
 Entellus wastes his forces on the wind; 595
 And thus deluded of the stroke design'd,
 Headlong and heavy fell: his ample breast,
 And weighty limbs, his ancient mother press'd.
 So falls a hollow pine, that long had stood
 On Ida's height, or Erymanthus' wood, 600
 Torn from the roots: the differing nations rise,
 And shouts, and mingled murmurs, rend the skies.
 Acestes runs, with eager haste, to raise
 The fall'n companion of his youthful days:
 Dauntless he rose, and to the fight return'd, 605
 With shame his glowing cheeks, his eyes with fury
 burn'd:
 Disdain and conscious virtue fir'd his breast,
 And, with redoubled force, his foe he press'd.

He lays on load with either hand, amain,
 And headlong drives the Trojan o'er the plain, 61
 Nor stops, nor stays; nor rest nor breath allows,
 But storms of strokes descend about his brows;
 A rattling tempest, and a hail of blows,
 But now the prince, who saw the wild increase
 Of wounds, commands the combatants to cease: 615
 And bounds Entellus' wrath, and bids the peace.
 First to the Trojan, spent with toil, he came,
 And sooth'd his sorrow for the suffer'd shame.
 What fury seiz'd my friend? the gods, said he,
 To him propitious, and averse to thee,
 Have giv'n his arm superior force to thine; 61
 'Tis madness to contend with strength divine.
 The gauntlet fight thus ended, from the shore
 His faithful friends unhappy Dares bore:
 His mouth and nostrils pour'd a purple flood; 61
 And pounded teeth came rushing with his blood.
 Faintly he stagger'd through the hissing throng;
 And hung his head, and trail'd his legs along.
 The sword and casque are carry'd by his train;
 But with his foe the palm and ox remain. 61
 The champion, then, before Æneas came;
 Proud of his prize, but prouder of his fame:
 O goddess-born! and you Dardanian host,
 Mark with attention, and forgive my boast:
 Learn what I was, by what remains; and know 61
 From what impending fate, you sav'd my foe.

 the beast; nor needs the second wound;
 in pangs of death, and spurns the ground.

In Dares' stead I offer this;
 not a nobler sacrifice:
 what gift my wither'd arms can yield;
 what I resign, and here renounce the field.
 Then, Æneas orders, for the close,
 of archers with contending bows.
 Sergesthus' shatter'd galley bore,
 upon hands he raises on the shore:
 a dove upon the top they tie, 650
 a mark at which their arrows fly.
 Archers in a line advance;
 of shooting to receive from chance.
 He bids their names. The lots are drawn;
 the scroll was read Hippocoon: 655
 he shout; upon the next was found Nestor, late with naval honours crown'd:
 he obtain'd Eurytian's noble name,
 then Pandarus, and next in fame:
 he urg'd the treaty to confound, 660 among the Greeks a feather'd wound.
 The bottom last remain'd;
 he his age from youthful sports restrain'd.
 Then vigour bend their trusty bows,
 the quiver, each his arrow chose: 665

Hippocoon's was the first: with forceful sway
It flew, and, whizzing, cut the liquid way.
Fix'd in the mast the feather'd weapon stands;
The fearful pigeon flutters in her bands;
And the tree trembled; and the shouting cries
Of the pleas'd people rend the vaulted skies.
Then Mnestheus to the head his arrow drove,
With lifted eyes, and took his aim above;
But made a glancing shot, and mis'd the dove.
Yet mis'd so narrow, that he cut the cord
Which fasten'd, by the foot, the sitting bird.
The captive thus releas'd, away she flies,
And beats, with clapping wings, the yielding skie
His bow already bent, Eurytian stood,
And, having first invok'd his brother god,
His winged shaft with eager haste he sped;
The fatal message reach'd her as she fled:
She leaves her life aloft: she strikes the ground,
And renders back the weapon in the wound.
Acestes, grudging at his lot, remains
Without a prize to gratify his pains.
Yet shooting upward, sends his shaft, to show
An archer's art, and boast his twanging bow.
The feather'd arrow gave a dire portent:
And latter augurs judge from this event.
Chaf'd by the speed, it fir'd; and, as it flew,
A trail of following flames ascending drew:
Kindling they mount, and mark the shiny way
Across the skies, as falling meteors play,
And vanish into wind, or in a blaze decay. 69

rojans and Sicilians wildly stare;
 rembling, turn their wonder into prayer.
 ardan prince put on a smiling face,
 ain'd Acestes with a close embrace:

 od Eurytian envy'd him the prize; 710
 he transfix'd the pigeon in the skies.

 shine.

Thus marching on, in military pride, 725
 Shouts of applause resound from side to side.
 Their casques, adorn'd with laurel wreaths, they wear,
 Each brandishing aloft a cornel spear.
 Some at their backs their gilded quivers bore;
 Their chains of burnish'd gold hung down before: 730
 Three graceful troops they form'd upon the green;
 Three graceful leaders at their head were seen;
 Twelve follow'd every chief, and left a space between.

The first young Priam led; a lovely boy,
 Whose grandfire was th' unhappy king of Troy: 735
 His race, in after-time, was known to fame,
 New honours adding to the Latian name;
 And well the royal boy his Thracian steed became:
 White were the fetlocks of his feet before,
 And on his front a snowy star he bore: 740
 Then beauteous Atis, with Iulus bred,
 Of equal age, the second Squadron led.
 The last in order, but the first in place,
 First in the lovely features of his face,
 Rode fair Ascanius on a fiery steed, 745
 Queen Dido's gift, and of the Tyrian breed.
 Sure courfers for the rest the king ordains,
 With golden bits adorn'd, and purple reins.

The pleas'd spectators peals of shouts renew,
 And all the parents in the children view: 750
 Their make, their motions, and their sprightly grace:
 And hopes and fears alternate in their face.

FROM

From these imperial Rome receiv'd the game;
 Which Troy, the youths the Trojan troop, they nam'd
 Thus far the sacred sports they celebrate:
 But Fortune soon resum'd her ancient hate:
 For while they pay the dead his annual dues,      785
 Those envy'd rites Saturnian Juno views;
 And sends the goddess of the various bow,
 To try new methods of revenge below:
 Supplies the winds to wing her airy way;
 Where in the port secure the navy lay.      790
 Swiftly fair Iris down her arch descends;
 And, undiscern'd, her fatal voyage ends.
 She saw the gathering crowd; and gliding thence,
 The desert shore, and fleet without defence.
 The Trojan matrons on the sands alone,      795
 With sighs and tears, Anchises' death bemoan.
 Then, turning to the sea their weeping eyes,
 Their pity to themselves, renews their cries.
 Alas! said one, what oceans yet remain
 For us to sail; what labours to sustain!      800
 All take the word; and, with a general groan,
 Implore the gods for peace; and places of their own.
 The goddess, great in mischief, views their pains;
 And, in a woman's form, her heavenly limbs restrains
 In face and shape, old Beroë she became,      805
 Doriclus' wife, a venerable dame;
 Once bless'd with riches, and a mother's name.
 Thus chang'd, amidst the crying crowd she ran,
 Mix'd with the matrons, and these words began:

O wretche

 ofs'd in air, amidst the gallies threw.

Wrapp'd.

Wrap'd in amaze, the matrons wildly stare: 840
 Then Pyrgo, reverenc'd for her hoary hair,
 Pyrgo, the nurse of Priam's numerous race,
 No Beroë this, though she belies her face:
 What terrors from her frowning front arise;
 Behold a goddess in her ardent eyes! 845
 What rays around her heavenly face are seen,
 Mark her majestic voice, and more than mortal mien!
 Beroë but now I left; whom, pin'd with pain,
 Her age and anguish from these rites detain.
 She said; the matrons, seiz'd with new amaze, 850
 Roll their malignant eyes, and on the navy gaze:
 They fear, and hope, and neither part obey:
 They hope the fated land, but fear the fatal way.
 The goddess, having done her task below,
 Mounts up on equal wings, and bends her painted bow.
 Struck with the sight, and seiz'd with rage divine,
 The matrons prosecute their mad design:
 They shriek aloud, they snatch, with impious hands,
 The food of altars, firs, and flaming brands.
 Green boughs, and saplings, mingled in their haste;
 And smoking torches on the ships they cast.
 The flame, unstopp'd at first, more fury gains;
 And Vulcan rides at large with loosen'd reins:
 Triumphant to the painted sterns he soars,
 And seizes in his way the banks and crackling oars.
 Eumelus was the first the news to bear,
 While yet they crowd the rural theatre.
 Then what they hear, is witness'd by their eyes:
 A storm of sparkles and of flames arise.

The pious hero rends his robe, and throws
 To heaven his hands, and with his hands his vows:
 O Jove, he cry'd, if prayers can yet have place;
 If thou abhorr'st not all the Dardan race;
 If any spark of pity still remain;
 If gods are gods, and not invok'd in vain;
 Yet spare the relics of the Trojan train. } 905
 Yet from the flames our burning vessels free:
 Or let thy fury fall alone on me.
 At this devoted head thy thunder throw,
 And send the willing sacrifice below.

Scarce had he said, when southern storms arise; 910
 From pole to pole the forky lightning flies;
 Loud rattling shakes the mountains and the plain;
 Heaven bellies downward, and descends in rain;
 Whole sheets of water from the clouds are sent,
 Which, hissing through the planks, the flames prevent:
 And stop the fiery pest: four ships alone
 Burn to the waste, and for the fleet atone.

But doubtful thoughts the hero's heart divide;

 VOL, XXIII, L Fresh

Fresh gales arise, with equal strokes they vie,
And brush the buxom seas, and o'er the billows fly.

Meantime the mother goddess, full of fears,
To Neptune thus address'd, with tender tears:
The pride of Jove's imperious queen, the rage, 1020
The malice which no sufferings can assuage,
Compel me to these prayers: since neither fate,

Nor time, nor pity, can remove her hate.
Ev'n Jove is thwarted by his haughty wife;
Still vanquish'd, yet she still renews the strife. 1025

As if 'twere little to consume the town
Which aw'd the world, and wore th' imperial crown;
She prosecutes the ghost of Troy with pains;
And gnaws, ev'n to the bones, the last remains.

Let her the causes of her hatred tell; 1030
But you can witness its effects too well.

You saw the storms she rais'd on Libyan floods,
That mix'd the mounting billows with the clouds;
When, bribing Æolus, she shook the main;
And mov'd rebellion in your watery reign. 1035

With fury she possess'd the Dardan dames
To burn their fleet with execrable flames:
And forc'd Æneas, when his ships were lost,
To leave his followers on a foreign coast:
For what remains, your godhead I implore; 1040
And trust my son to your protecting power.
If neither Jove's nor fate's decree withstand,
Secure his passage to the Latian land.

Then thus the mighty ruler of the main:
What may not Venus hope, from Neptune's reign?

n claims your birth: my late defence
 langer'd fleet, may claim your confidence.
 land than sea, my deeds declare,
 your lov'd Æneas is my care.

 The chearful crew with diligence obey; 1085 }
 They scud before the wind, and sail in open sea. }
 A-head of all the master pilot steers,
 And, as he leads, the following navy veers.

 Thou, Palinurus, art his destin'd prey;
 To thee alone he takes his fatal way.
 Dire dreams to thee, and iron sleep he bears; 1095
 And, lighting on thy prow, the form of Phorbas wears.
 Then thus the traitor god began his tale:

OF THE ÆNEID.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Sibyl foretels Æneas the adventures he should meet with in Italy: she attends him to hell: describing to him the various scenes of that place, and conducting him to his father Anchises: who instructs him in those sublime mysteries of the soul of the world, and the transmigration: and shews him that glorious race of heroes which was to descend from him and his posterity.

HE said, and wept: then spread his sails before
The winds, and reach'd at length the Cuman shore: }

Their anchors dropt, his crew the vessels moor.
They turn their heads to sea, their sterns to land;
And greet, with greedy joy, th' Italian strand.     5
Some strike from clashing flints their fiery seed;
Some gather sticks the kindled flames to feed;
Or search for hollow trees, and fell the woods,
Or trace through vallies the discover'd floods.

Thus,

Thus, while their several charges they fulfil,
The pious prince ascends the sacred hill
Where Phœbus is ador'd; and seeks the shade
Which hides from sight his venerable maid.
Deep in a cave the Sibyl makes abode;
Thence full of fate returns, and of the god.
Through Trivia's grove they walk; and now behold
And enter now the temple roof'd with gold.
When Dædalus, to fly the Cretan shore,
His heavy limbs on jointed pinions bore
(The first who sail'd in air), 'tis sung by fame,
To the Cumæan coast at length he came;
And here alighting, built this costly frame.
Inscrib'd to Phœbus, here he hung on high
The steerage of his wings, that cuts the sky;
Then o'er the lofty gate his art emboss'd
Androgeos' death, and offerings to his ghost:
Seven youths from Athens yearly sent, to meet
The fate appointed by revengeful Crete.
And next to those the dreadful urn was plac'd,
In which the destin'd names by lots were cast:
The mournful parents stand around in tears;
And rising Crete against their shore appears.
There too, in living sculpture, might be seen
The mad affection of the Cretan queen:
Then how she cheats her bellowing lover's eye:
The rushing leap, the doubtful progeny,
The lower part a beast, a man above,
The monument of their polluted love.

Nor far from thence he grav'd the wondrous maze;
 A thousand doors, a thousand winding ways; 40
 Here dwells the monster, hid from human view,
 Not to be found but by the faithful clue:
 Till the kind artist, mov'd with pious grief,
 Lent to the loving maïd this last relief;
 And all those erring paths describ'd so well, 45
 That Theseus conquer'd, and the monster fell.
 Here hapless Icarus had found his part;
 Had not the father's grief restrain'd his art.
 He twice essay'd to cast his son in gold;
 Twice from his hands he drop'd the forming mould. 50

All this with wondering eyes Æneas view'd:
 Each varying object his delight renew'd.
 Eager to read the rest, Achates came,
 And by his side the mad divining dame; }
 The priestess of the god, Deiphobe her name. 55 }
 Time suffers not, she said, to feed your eyes
 With empty pleasures: haste the sacrifice.
 Seven bullocks yet unyok'd, for Phœbus choose,
 And for Diana seven unspotted ewes.
 This said, the servants urge the sacred rites; 60
 While to the temple she the prince invites.
 A spacious cave, within its farthest part,
 Was hew'd and fashion'd by laborious art
 Through the hill's hollow sides: before the place,
 A hundred doors, a hundred entries grace: 65
 As many voices issue; and the sound
 Of Sibyls' words as many times rebound.

Now

Now to the mouth they come: Aloud she cries,
 This is the time; enquire your destinies.
 He comes, behold the god! Thus while she said 70
 (And shivering at the sacred entry staid),
 Her colour chang'd, her face was not the same,
 And hollow groans from her deep spirit came.
 Her hair stood up; convulsive rage possess'd
 Her trembling limbs, and heav'd her labouring breast.
 Greater than human-kind she seem'd to look:
 And, with an accent more than mortal, spoke.
 Her staring eyes with sparkling fury roll;
 When all the god came rushing on her soul.
 Swiftly she turn'd, and foaming as she spoke, 80
 Why this delay? she cried; the powers invoke:
 Thy prayers alone can open this abode,
 Else vain are my demands, and dumb the god.
 She said no more: the trembling Trojans hear;
 O'erspread with a damp sweat, and holy fear. 85
 The prince himself, with awful dread possess'd,
 His vows to great Apollo thus address'd:
 Indulgent god, propitious power to Troy,
 Swift to relieve, unwilling to destroy;
 Directed by whose hand, the Dardan dart 90
 Pierc'd the proud Grecian's only mortal part:
 Thus far, by fate's decrees, and thy commands,
 Through ambient seas, and through devouring sands,
 Our exil'd crew has fought th' Ausonian ground;
 And now, at length, the flying coast is found; 95
 Thus far the fate of Troy, from place to place,
 With fury has pursued her wandering race:

Here

ye powers, and let your vengeance

more, and can no more offend.

sacred maid! inspir'd to see 100 things in dark futurity,

at heaven has promis'd to my fate,

and command the Latian state:

undering gods, and find a place

exiles of the Trojan race. 105

And grateful hands a temple rear to gods, with vows and solemn prayer;

rites, and festivals, and games,

dedic'd to their auspicious names;

you want thy honours in my land, 110

faithful oracles shall stand,

whenever: and every sacred lay,

by my mouth, Apollo shall convey:

reassur'd, by a chosen train

shall sit, and ever shall remain. 115

Commit not thy prophetic mind to waves, the sport of every wind,

nor perse in air our empty fate:

But what the powers ordain, relate.

And in vain, impatient of her load, 120 laid underneath the ponderous god,

she strove to shake him from her breast,

and far superior force he press'd:

his entrance, and, without control,

he organs, and inspires her soul. 125

Now,

Now, with a furious blast, the hundred doors
 Ope of themselves; a rushing whirlwind roars
 Within the cave; and Sibyl's voice restores:

Escap'd the dangers of the watery reign,
 Yet more and greater ills, by land remain; 130
 The coast so long desir'd (nor doubt th' event)
 Thy troops shall reach, but having reach'd, repent,
 Wars, horrid wars I view; a field of blood;
 And Tyber rolling with a purple flood.
 Simois nor Xanthus shall be wanting there; 135
 A new Achilles shall in arms appear:
 And he, too, goddess-born: fierce Juno's hate,
 Added to hostile force, shall urge thy fate.
 To what strange nations shalt not thou resort!
 Driven to solicit aid at every court! 140
 The cause the same which Ilium once oppress'd,
 A foreign mistress and a foreign guest:
 But thou, secure of soul, unbent with woes,
 The more thy fortune frowns, the more oppose:
 The dawns of thy safety shall be shown, 145
 From whence thou least shalt hope, a Grecian town.

Thus, from the dark recess, the Sibyl spoke,
 And the resisting air the thunder broke:
 The cave rebellow'd, and the temple shook.
 Th' ambiguous god, who rul'd her labouring breast,
 In these mysterious words his mind express:
 Some truths reveal'd, in terms involv'd the rest.
 At length her fury fell, her foaming ceas'd,
 And, ebbing in her soul, the god decreas'd.

Then

the chief: No terror to my view, 155 ful face of danger can be new:

 s king with pity could inspire, the shades below redeem his wife; 180
 offering his alternate life,
 : his brother; and can daily go lost, by turns descend below;

Why

Son of the god of winds; none so renown'd,
 The warrior trumpet in the field to found:
 With breathing brags to kindle fierce alarms, 245
 And rouze to dare their fate, in honourable arms.
 He serv'd great Hector; and was ever near,
 Not with his trumpet only, but his spear,
 But, by Pelides' arm when Hector fell,
 He chose Æneas, and he chose as well. 250
 Sworn with applause, and aiming still at more,
 He now provokes the sea-gods from the shore;
 With envy Triton heard the martial found,
 And the bold champion, for his challenge, drown'd.
 Then cast his mangled carcase on the strand; 255
 The gazing crowd around the body stand.
 All weep, but most Æneas mourns his fate,
 And hastens to perform the funeral state.
 In altar-wise a stately pile they rear;
 The basis broad below, and top advanc'd in air. 260
 An ancient wood, fit for the work design'd
 (The shady covert of the savage kind)
 The Trojans found: the founding ax is ply'd:
 Firs, pines, and pitch-trees, and the towering pride
 Of forest ashes, feel the fatal stroke, 265
 And piercing wedges cleave the stubborn oak.
 Huge trunks of trees, fell'd from the steepy crown
 Of the bare mountains, roll with ruin down.
 Arm'd like the rest the Trojan prince appears,
 And, by his pious labour, urges theirs. 270
 Thus while he wrought, revolving in his mind
 The ways to compass what his wish design'd,
 He

his eyes upon the gloomy grove, with vows, implor'd the queen of love:
 thy power, propitious still to me,           275
 my steps to find the fatal tree, deep forest; since the Sibyl's breath
 alas! too true, Misenus' death.
 And he said, when, full before his fight, 280 }
 they came, descending from their airy flight, upon the grassy plain alight. }
 His mother's birds; and thus he pray'd:
 thy guides, with your auspicious aid;
 my footsteps, till the branch be found,
 glittering shadow gilds the sacred ground: 285
 O great parent! with celestial care,
 be present to my prayer.
 Having said, he stopp'd: with watchful sight
 they still the motions of their flight, the course they took, what happy signs they shew; } and, fluttering by degrees, withdrew } far from the place, but still in view:
 and flying, thus they led him on toward lake: whose baleful stench to shun, they urg'd their flight aloft; then stooping low,
 they sought the double tree, that bears the golden bough.
 There the green leaves the glittering shadows glow;
 the sacred oak, the wintery mistleto:
 the proud mother views her precious brood;
 her branches, which she never sow'd.           300
 the glittering, such the ruddy rind,
 the green leaves, that wanton'd in the wind.

He seiz'd the shining bough with griping hold,
 And rent away, with ease, the lingering gold:
 Then to the Sibyl's palace bore the prize. 305
 Mean time, the Trojan troops, with weeping eyes,
 To dead Misenus pay his obsequies. }
 First from the ground a lofty pile they rear,
 Of pitch-trees, oaks, and pines, and unctuous fir:
 The fabric's front, with cypress twigs they strew, 31
 And stick the sides with boughs of baleful yeugh.
 The topmost part, his glittering arms adorn;
 Warm waters, then, in brazen cauldrons borne,
 Are pour'd to wash his body, joint by joint:
 And fragrant oils the stiffen'd limbs anoint. 31
 With groans and cries Misenus they deplore:
 Then on a bier, with purple cover'd o'er,
 The breathless body, thus bewail'd, they lay,
 And fire the pile, their faces turn'd away
 (Such reverend rites their fathers us'd to pay). 320
 Pure oil and incense on the fire they throw,
 And fat of victims, which his friends bestow.
 These gifts, the greedy flames to dust devour;
 Then, on the living coals, red wine they pour:
 And last, the relics by themselves dispose; 32
 Which in a brazen urn the priests inclose.
 Old Chorineus compass'd thrice the crew,
 And dipp'd an olive branch in holy dew;
 Which thrice he sprinkled round, and thrice aloud
 Invok'd the dead, and then dismiss'd the crowd. 33 and Æneas order'd on the shore tomb; whose top a trumpet bore;

 's fauchion, and a seaman's oar.
 his friend interr'd: and deathless fame
 he lofty cape consigns his name. 335 rites perform'd, the prince, without delay,
 the nether world his destin'd way.
 the cape; and downward as it went wide mouth, a rocky rough descent;
 th' access a gloomy grove defends; 340
 th' unnavigable lake extends.
 se unhappy waters, void of light,

 le bullocks, in the yoke untaught, sice the pious hero brought;
 sters pours the wine betwixt their horns; 350
 s the curling hair; that first oblation burns, ming blood: a lamb to hell and night le wool without a streak of white) fers: and, by fate's decree, heifer, Proserpine, to thee.

With holocausts he Plato's altar fills:
 Seven brawny bulls with his own hand he kills:
 Then, on the broiling entrails, oil he pours;
 Which, ointed thus, the raging flame devours:
 Late, the nocturnal sacrifice begun;
 Nor ended, till the next returning sun.
 Then earth began to bellow, trees to dance,
 And howling dogs in glimmering light advance,
 Ere Hecate came: Far hence be souls profane,
 The Sibyl cry'd, and from the grove abstain.
 Now, Trojan, take the way thy fates afford,
 Assume thy courage, and unsheath thy sword.
 She said, and pass'd along the gloomy space,
 The prince pursu'd her steps with equal pace.
 Ye realms, yet unreveal'd to human sight,
 Ye gods, who rule the regions of the night,
 Ye gliding ghosts, permit me to relate
 The mystic wonders of your silent state.
 Obscure they went through dreary shades, that
 Along the waste dominions of the dead:
 Thus wander travellers in woods by night,
 By the moon's doubtful and malignant light:
 When Jove in dusky clouds involves the skies,
 And the faint crescent shoots by fits before their eyes
 Just in the gate, and in the jaws of hell,
 Revengeful cares and sullen sorrows dwell;
 And pale diseases, and repining age;
 Want, fear, and famine's unresisted rage:
 Here toils, and death, and death's half-brother, Forms terrible to view, their centry keep:

rious pleasures of a guilty mind, 390
 auds before, and open force behind:
 ies iron beds, and strife that shakes
 ing tresses, and unfolds her snakes.
 he midst of this infernal road, displays her dusky arms abroad: 395
 l of sleep there hides his heavy head, oty dreams on every leaf are spread.
 us forms unnumber'd spectres more;
 y, and double shapes, besiege the door:
 he passage horrid Hydra stands, 400
 areus with all his hundred hands:
 y, Geryon with his triple frame,
 Chimæra vomits empty flame.
 f unsheath'd his shining steel, prepar'd,
 seiz'd with sudden fear, to force the guard,
 his brandish'd weapon at their face,
 the Sibyl stopp'd his eager pace,
 l him what those empty phantoms were;
 ithout bodies, and impassive air.
 o deep Acheron they take their way, 410
 ouble'd eddies, thick with ooze and clay,
 d aloft, and in Cocytus lost:
 aron stands, who rules the dreary coast;
 god: down from his hoary chin of beard descends; uncomb'd, unclean: 415
 , like hollow furnaces on fire:
 , foul with grease, binds his obscene attire.
 ds his canvas, with his pole he steers;
 ghts of flitting ghosts in his thin bottom bears.

He look'd in years; yet in his years were seen 425
 A youthful vigour, and autumnal green.
 An airy crowd came rushing where he stood,
 Which fill'd the margin of the fatal flood,
 Husbands and wives, boys and unmarried maids,
 And mighty heroes more majestic shades, 435
 And youths, intomb'd before their fathers' eyes.
 With hollow groans, and shrieks, and feeble cries,
 Thick as the leaves in autumn strow the woods:
 Or fowls, by winter forc'd, forsake the floods,
 And wing their hasty flight to happier lands: 430
 Such, and so thick, the shivering army stands;
 And press for passage with extended hands. }

Now these, now those, the surly boatman bore:
 The rest he drove to distance from the shore.
 The hero, who beheld, with wondering eyes, 435
 The tumult mix'd with shrieks, laments, and cries,
 Ask'd of his guide, what the rude concourse meant?
 Why to the shore the thronging people bent?
 What forms of law among the ghosts were us'd?
 Why some were ferry'd o'er, and some refus'd? 440

Son of Anchises, offspring of the gods,
 The Sibyl said, you see the Stygian floods,
 The sacred streams, which heaven's imperial state
 Attests in oaths, and fears to violate.
 The ghosts rejected, are th' unhappy crew. 445
 Depriv'd of sepulchres, and funeral due.
 The boatman Charon; those, the bury'd host,
 He ferries over to the farther coast.

Nor dares his transport vessel cross the waves,
 With such whose bones are not compos'd in graves.
 A hundred years they wander on the shore,
 At length, their penance done, are wafted o'er.
 The Trojan chief his forward pace repress'd;
 Revolving anxious thoughts within his breast.
 He saw his friends, who, whelm'd beneath the waves,
 Their funeral honours claim'd, and ask'd their quiet graves.

The lost Leucaspis in the crowd he knew;
 And the brave leader of the Lycian crew:
 Whom, on the Tyrrhene seas the tempests met;
 The sailors master'd, and the ship o'erfet. 460
 Amidst the spirits Palinurus press'd;
 Yet fresh from life; a new admitted guest.
 Who, while he steering, view'd the stars, and bore
 His course from Africk, to the Latian shore,
 'ell headlong down. The Trojan fix'd his view, 465
 And scarcely through the gloom the fullen shadow knew.
 Then thus the prince: What envious power, O friend;
 Rought your lov'd life to this disastrous end?
 Or Phœbus, ever true in all he said,
 Was, in your fate alone, my faith betray'd. 470
 The god foretold, you should not die, before
 You reach'd, secure from seas, the Italian shore.
 This th' unerring power? The ghost reply'd,
 Or Phœbus flatter'd, nor his answers ly'd;
 Or envious gods have sent me to the deep: 475
 At while the stars, and course of heaven I keep,
 My weary'd eyes were seiz'd with fatal sleep.

I fell; and, with my weight, the helm constrain'd
 Was drawn along, which yet my gripe retain'd.
 Now by the winds, and raging waves, I swear, 480
 Your safety, more than mine, was then my care:
 Left, of the guide bereft, the rudder lost,
 Your ship should run against the rocky coast.
 Three blustering nights, borne by the southern blast,
 I floated, and discover'd land at last: 485
 High on a mountain wave my head I bore;
 Forcing my strength, and gathering to the shore:
 Panting, but past the danger, now I seiz'd
 The craggy cliffs, and my tir'd members eas'd.
 While, cumber'd with my dropping cloaths, I lay, 490
 The cruel nation, covetous of prey,
 Stain'd with my blood th' un hospitable coast:
 And now, by winds and waves, my lifeless limbs are tost:

Which O avert, by yon ethereal light
 Which I have lost, for this eternal night: 495
 Or, if by dearer ties you may be won,
 By your dead fire, and by your living son,
 Redeem from this reproach my wandering ghost,
 Or with your navy seek the Velin coast;
 And in a peaceful grave my corpse compose: 500
 Or, if a nearer way your mother shows,
 Without whose aid, you durst not undertake
 This frightful passage o'er the Stygian lake;
 Lend to this wretch your hand, and waft him o'er
 To the sweet banks of yon forbidden shore. 505 and he said, the prophets began, what shall I say, thou, thus uninterred, to cross the floods,

 the furies, and infernal gods;
 without leave, the dark abodes? } 510
 the term of long, revolving years:
 and the dooming gods, are deaf to tears.
 Misfortune of thy dire misfortune take;
 the gods of heaven, inflicted for thy sake, vengeance shall pursue th' inhuman coast, } 515
 propitiate thy offended ghost,
 in a tomb, with vows, and solemn prayer;
 thy nurse's name the place shall bear.
 Heav'n'd his cares, sooth'd with his future fame,
 would'st thou hear his propagated name. } 520
 Nearer to the Stygian lake they draw, from the shore, the surly boatman saw:
 their passage through the shady wood,
 he mark'd their near approaches to the flood:
 as he call'd aloud, inflam'd with wrath; } 525
 whate'er, who this forbidden path presum'd to tread, I charge thee stand, thy name, and business in the land.
 This is, the realm of night; the Stygian shore:
 conveys no living bodies o'er: } 530
 I pleas'd great Theseus once to bear,
 he could a passage with his pointed spear;
 among Alcides, men of mighty fame;
 and th' immortal gods their lineage came.

In fetters one the barking porter ty'd, 535
 And took him trembling from his sovereign's side:
 Two fought by force to seize his beauteous bride.
 To whom the Sibyl thus: Compose thy mind:
 Nor frauds are here contriv'd, nor force design'd.
 Still may the dog the wandering troops constrain 540
 Of airy ghosts; and vex the guilty train:
 And with her grisly lord his lovely queen remain.
 The Trojan chief, whose lineage is from Jove,
 Much fam'd for arms, and more for filial love,
 Is sent to seek his fire, in your Elyfian grove. 545
 If neither piety, nor heaven's command,
 Can gain his passage to the Stygian strand,
 This fatal present shall prevail at least;
 Then shew'd the shining bough, conceal'd within her vest.

No more was needful, for the gloomy god 550
 Stood mute with awe, to see the golden rod:
 Admir'd the destin'd offering to the queen
 (A venerable gift so rarely seen).
 His fury thus appeas'd, he puts to land;
 The ghosts forsake their seats at his command: 555
 He clears the deck, receives the mighty freight,
 The leaky vessel groans beneath the weight.
 Slowly she sails, and scarcely stems the tides:
 The pressing water pours within her sides.
 His passengers, at length, are waded o'er; 560
 Expos'd in muddy weeds upon the miry shore.
 No sooner landed, in his den they found
 The triple porter of the Stygian found,

Grim Cerberus; who soon began to rear
 His crested snakes, and arm'd his bristling hair. 565
 The prudent Sibyl had before prepar'd
 A sop in honey steep'd to charm the guard.
 Which, mix'd with powerful drugs, she cast before
 His greedy, grinding jaws, just op'd to roar:
 With three enormous mouths he gapes, and fraight,
 With hunger prefs'd, devours the pleasing bait.
 Long draughts of sleep his monstrous limbs enslave;
 He reels, and, falling, fills the spacious cave.
 The keeper charm'd, the chief without delay
 Pass'd on, and took th' irremeable way. 575
 Before the gates, the cries of babes new born,
 Whom fate had from their tender mothers torn,
 Assault his ears: then those whom form of laws
 Condemn'd to die, when traitors judg'd their cause.
 Nor want they lots, nor judges to review 580
 The wrongful sentence, and award a new.
 Minos, the strict inquisitor, appears,
 And lives and crimes, with his assessors, hears.
 Round, in his urn, the blended balls he rolls,
 Absolves the just, and dooms the guilty souls. 585
 The next in place, and punishment, are they
 Who prodigally throw their souls away;
 Fools, who repining at their wretched state,
 And loathing anxious life, suborn'd their fate.
 With late repentance now they would retrieve 590
 The bodies they forsook, and wish to live.
 Their pains and poverty desire to bear,
 To view the light of heaven, and breathe the vital air.
 But

But fate forbids; the Stygian floods oppose,
 And, with nine circling streams, the captive soul incl

Not far from thence, the mournful fields appear
 So call'd, from lovers that inhabit there.

The souls, whom that unhappy flame invades,
 In secret solitude, and myrtle shades,
 Make endless moans, and, pining with desire,
 Lament too late their unextinguish'd fire.

Here Procris, Eriphyle here, he found
 Baring her breast, yet bleeding with the wound
 Made by her son. He saw Pasiphaë there,
 With Phædra's ghost, a foul incestuous pair.

There Laodamia, with Evadne moves:
 Unhappy both, but loyal in their loves.

Cæneus, a woman once, and once a man;
 But ending in the sex she first began.

Not far from these Phænician Dido stood,
 Fresh from her wound, her bosom bath'd in blood.

Whom, when the Trojan hero hardly knew,
 Obscure in shades, and with a doubtful view (Doubtful as he who runs through dusky night,
 Or thinks he sees the moon's uncertain light);

With tears he first approach'd the sullen shade,
 And, as his love inspir'd him, thus he said:

Unhappy queen! then is the common breath.

Of rumour true, in your reported death,

And I, alas, the cause! By heaven, I vow,

And all the powers that rule the realms below,

Unwilling I forsook your friendly state:

Commanded by the gods, and forc'd by fate.

Those gods, that fate, whose irresistible might Have sent me to these regions, void of light: 625 }
 Through the vast empire of eternal night.
 For dar'd I to presume, that, press'd with grief,
 My flight should urge you to this dire relief.
 Stay, stay your steps, and listen to my vows,
 'Tis the last interview that fate allows! 630
 In vain he thus attempts her mind to move,
 With tears and prayers, and late repenting love:
 disdainfully she look'd; then turning round,
 Fix'd her eyes unmov'd upon the ground:
 And what he says, and swears, regards no more, 635
 Than the deaf rocks, when the loud billows roar.
 But whirl'd away, to shun his hateful sight,
 Hid in the forest, and the shades of night.
 Then sought Sichæus, through the shady grove,
 Who answer'd all her cares, and equal'd all her love.
 Some pious tears the pitying hero paid,
 And follow'd with his eyes the sitting shade.
 Then took the forward way, by fate ordain'd,
 And, with his guide, the farther fields attain'd,
 Where, sever'd from the rest, the warrior souls }
     remain'd.

Heroes he met, with Meleager's race,
 The pride of armies, and the soldiers grace; }
 And pale Adrastus with his ghastly face.
 Of Trojan chiefs he view'd a numerous train:
 All much lamented, all in battle slain. 650
 Laucus and Medon, high above the rest,
 Atenor's sons, and Ceres' sacred priest: .

And

And proud Idæus, Priam's charioteer,
 Who shakes his empty reins, and aims his airy spear.
 The gladfome ghosts, in circling troops, attend, 65
 And, with unweary'd eyes, behold their friend.
 Delight to hover near, and long to know
 What business brought him to the realms below.

But Argive chiefs, and Agamemnon's train,
 When his refulgent arms flash'd through the shady plain
 Fled from his well-known face, with wonted fear,
 As when his thundering sword and pointed spear Drove headlong to their ships, and glean'd the routed rear.

They rais'd a feeble cry, with trembling notes;
 But the weak voice deceiv'd their gasping throats.
 Here Priam's son, Deiphobus he found,
 Whose face and limbs were one continued wound.
 Dishonest, with lopp'd arms, the youth appears,
 Spoil'd of his nose, and shorten'd of his ears.
 He scarcely knew him, striving to disown 67
 His blotted form, and blushing to be known,
 And therefore first began: O Teucer's race,
 Who durst thy faultless figure thus deface?
 What heart could wish, what hand inflict, this dire disgrace?

'Twas fam'd, that in our last and fatal night, 69
 Your single prowess long sustain'd the fight:
 Till, tir'd, not forc'd, a glorious fate you chose,
 And fell upon a heap of slaughter'd foes.
 But, in remembrance of so brave a deed,
 A tomb and funeral honours I decreed:

Thrice call'd your manes on the Trojan plains:
 The place your armour and your name retains.
 Your body too I fought; and, had I found,
 Design'd for burial in your native ground.
 The ghost reply'd: Your piety has paid 685
 All needful rites to rest my wandering shade:
 But cruel fate, and my more cruel wife,
 To Grecian swords betray'd my sleeping life.
 These are the monuments of Helen's love:
 The shame I bear below, the marks I bore above. 690
 You know in what deluding joys we past
 The night, that was by heaven decreed our last.
 For, when the fatal horse descending down,
 Pregnant with arms, o'erwhelm'd th' unhappy town,
 She feign'd nocturnal orgies; left my bed, 695
 And, mix'd with Trojan dames, the dances led;
 Then, waving high her torch, the signal made,
 Which rous'd the Grecians from their ambuscade.
 With watching overworn, with cares oppress'd,
 Unhappy I had laid me down to rest; 700 }
 And heavy sleep my weary limbs possess'd.
 Meantime my worthy wife our arms mislay'd;
 And, from beneath my head, my sword convey'd:
 The door unlatch'd; and, with repeated calls,
 Invites her former lord within my walls. 705
 Thus in her crime her confidence she plac'd,
 And with new treasons would redeem the past.
 What need I more? Into the room they ran,
 And meanly murder'd a defenceless man,

Ulysses,

Ulysses, lately born, first led the way: 710
 Avenging power! with justice if I pray,
 That fortune be their own another day!
 But answer you; and in your turn relate,
 What brought you, living to the Stygian state?
 Driven by the winds and errors of the sea, 715
 Or did you heaven's superior doom obey?
 Or tell what other chance conducts your way?
 To view with mortal eyes our dark retreats,
 Tumults and torments of th' infernal seats?
 While thus, in talk, the flying hours they pass, 720
 The sun had smish'd more than half his race:
 And they, perhaps, in words and tears had spent
 The little time of stay, which heaven had lent.
 But thus the Sibyl chides their long delay;
 Night rushes down, and headlong drives the day: 725
 'Tis here, in different paths, the way divides;
 The right, to Pluto's golden palace guides;
 The left to that unhappy region tends,
 Which to the depth of Tartarus descends; 730
 The seat of night profound, and punish'd fiends.
 Then thus Deiphobus: O sacred maid!
 Forbear to chide; and be your will obey'd:
 Lo to the secret shadows I retire,
 To pay my penance till my years expire.
 Proceed, auspicious prince, with glory crown'd, 735
 And born to better fates than I have found.
 He said; and while he said, his steps he turn'd
 To secret shadows, and in silence mourn'd. 740

The hero, looking on the left, espy'd
 A lofty tower, and strong on every side 740
 With treble walls, which Phlegethon furrounds,
 Whose fiery flood the burning empire bounds:
 And, pres'd betwixt the rocks, the bellowing noise }
 refounds.

Wide is the fronting gate, and, rais'd on high
 With adamantine columns, threatens the sky. 745

Vain is the force of man, and heaven's as vain,
 To crush the pillars which the pile sustain.
 Sublime on these a tower of steel is rear'd,
 And dire Tisiphone there keeps the ward.
 Girt in her sanguine gown, by night and day, 750

Observant of the souls that pass the downward way:
 From hence are heard the groans of ghosts, the pains
 Of fouding lashes, and of dragging chains.

The Trojan stood astonish'd at their cries,
 And ask'd his guide, from whence those yells arise?

And what the crimes and what the tortures were,
 And loud laments that rent the liquid air?

She thus reply'd: The chaste and holy race
 Are all forbidden this polluted place.

But Hecate, when she gave to rule the woods,
 Then led me trembling through those dire abodes, }
 And taught the tortures of th' avenging gods.

These are the realms of unrelenting fate:

And awful Rhadamanthus rules the state:

He hears and judges each committed crime; 765

Inquires into the manner, place, and time,

Vol. XXIII,

N

The

The conscious wretch must all his acts reveal:
 Loth to confess, unable to conceal:
 From the first moment of his vital breath,
 To this last hour of unrepenting death. 770
 Straight, o'er the guilty ghost, the fury shakes
 The founding whip, and brandishes her snakes: }
 And the pale sinner, with her sisters, takes. }
 Then, of itself, unfolds th' eternal door:
 With dreadful sounds the brazen hinges roar. 775
 You see, before the gate, what stalking ghost
 Commands the guard, what centries keep the post.
 More formidable Hydra stands within;
 Whose jaws with iron teeth severely grin.
 The gaping gulph, low to the centre lies; 780
 And twice as deep as earth is distant from the skies.
 The rivals of the gods, the Titan race,
 Here sing'd with lightning, roll within th' unfathom'd space.
 Here lie th' Alæan twins (I saw them both),
 Enormous bodies, of gigantic growth; 875
 Who dar'd in fight the thunderer to defy;
 Affect his heaven, and force him from the sky.
 Salmoneus, suffering cruel pains I found,
 For emulating Jove; the rattling sound
 Of mimic thunder, and the glittering blaze 190
 Of pointed lightnings, and their forky rays.
 Through Elis and the Grecian towns he flew:
 Th' audacious wretch four fiery courfers drew
 He wav'd a torch aloft, and, madly vain,
 Sought godlike worship from a servile train.

ol, with horny hoofs to pass arches, of resounding brass;
 der, in its rapid course,
 inimitable force.
 ing of heaven, obscure on high,      800 arm, and launching from the sky bolt, not shaking empty smoke, deep abyss the flaming felon strook.
 was to see, who took his birth
 ; his nursing from the foodful earth.
 antic limbs, with large embrace,
 cres of infernal space.
 ulture in his open'd side,
 beak and cruel talons try'd:
 growing liver digg'd his breast;      810
 liver still supply'd the feast.
 ntrails fruitful to their pains:
 l hunger lasts, th' immortal food remains.
 ithous I could name;
 heffalian chiefs of mighty fame.      815
 air heads a mouldering rock is plac'd,
 s a fall, and shakes at every blast.
 w, on golden beds display'd,
 casts, with regal pomp, are made.
 ' furies by their sides is set,      820
 from their mouths th' untasted meat.
 y touch, her hissing snakes she rears:
 orch, and thundering in their ears.
 who brothers better claim disown,
 arents, and usurp the throne;      825

Defraud their clients, and to lacre fold,
 Sit brooding on unprofitable gold:
 Who dare not give, and ev'n refuse to lend
 To their poor kindred, or a wanting friend;
 Vast is the throng of these; nor less the train 830
 Of lustful youths, for foul adultery slain.
 Hosts of deserters, who their honour sold,
 And basely broke their faith for bribes of gold:
 All these within the dungeon's depth remain,
 Despairing pardon, and expecting pain. 835
 Ask not what pains; nor farther seek to know
 Their process, or the forms of law below.
 Some roll a mighty stone; some laid along,
 And, bound with burning wires, on spokes of wheels are hung.
 Unhappy Theseus, doom'd for ever there, 840
 Is fix'd by fate on his eternal chair:
 And wretched Phlegias warns the world with cries
 (Could warning make the world more just or wise),
 Learn righteousness, and dread th' avenging deities. }
 To tyrants others have their country sold, 845
 Imposing foreign lords, for foreign gold:
 Some have old laws repeal'd, new statutes made;
 Not as the people pleas'd, but as they paid.
 With incest some their daughters bed profan'd.
 All dar'd the worst of ills, and what they dar'd, attain'd.
 Had I a hundred mouths, a hundred tongues,
 And throats of brass, inspir'd with iron lungs,
 I could not half those horrid crimes repeat,
 Nor half the punishments those crimes have met.

But let us haste our voyage to pursue ; 855
 The walls of Pluto's palace are in view :
 The gate, and iron arch above it, stands
 On anvils, labour'd by the Cyclops hands,
 Before our farther way the fates allow,
 Here must we fix on high the golden bough. 860
 She said ; and through the gloomy shades they pass,
 And chose the middle path : arriv'd at last,
 The prince, with living water, sprinkled o'er
 His limbs and body, then approach'd the door.
 Possess'd the porch, and on the front above 865
 He fix'd the fatal bough, requir'd by Pluto's love.
 These holy rites perform'd, they took their way,
 Where long-extended plains of pleasure lay.
 The verdant fields with those of heaven may vie ;
 With æther vested, and a purple sky : 870
 The blissful seats of happy souls below :
 Stars of their own, and their own suns they know.
 Their airy limbs in sports they exercise,
 And, on the green, contend the wrestler's prize.
 Some, in heroic verse, divinely sing,
 Others in artful measures lead the ring.
 The Thracian bard, surrounded by the rest,
 There stands conspicuous in his flowing vest.
 His flying fingers, and harmonious quill, Strike seven distinguish'd notes, and seven at once they fill.
 Here found they Teucer's old heroic race ;
 Born better times, and happier years to grace.

Affaracus and Ius here enjoy
 Perpetual fame, with him who founded Troy.
 The chief beheld their chariots from afar, 88
 Their shining arms, and courfers train'd to war:
 Their lances fix'd in earth, their steeds around,
 Free from their harness, graze the flowery ground.
 The love of horses which they had, alive,
 And care of chariots, after death survive. 89
 Some chearful souls, were feasting on the plain;
 Some did the song, and some the choir maintain:
 Beneath a laurel shade, where mighty Po
 Mounts up to woods above, and hides his head below.
 Here patriots live, who for their country's good, 89½
 In fighting fields, were prodigal of blood;
 Priests of unblemish'd lives here made abode,
 And poets worthy their aspiring god:
 And searching wits, of more mechanic parts,
 Who grac'd their age with new invented arts. 90
 Those who, to worth, their bounty did extend;
 And those who knew that bounty to commend.
 The heads of these with holy fillets bound,
 And all their temples were with garlands crown'd.
 To these, the Sibyl thus her speech address'd; 90½ }
 And first to him surrounded by the rest; }
 Towering his height, and ample was his breast:
 Say, happy souls, divine Musæus say,
 Where lives Anchises, and where lies our way
 To find the hero, for whose only sake 91
 We sought the dark abodes, and cross'd the bitter lake? }
 T

To this the sacred poet thus reply'd,
 In no fix'd place the happy souls reside;
 In groves we live, and lie on mossy beds,
 By crystal streams, that murmur through the meads:
 But pass yon easy hill, and thence descend,
 The path conducts you to your journey's end.
 This said, he led them up the mountain's brow,
 And shews them all the shining fields below;
 They wind the hill, and through the blissful meadows go. 920

But old Anchises, in a flowery vale,
 Review'd his muster'd race, and took the tale.
 Those happy spirits, which, ordain'd by fate,
 For future being, and new bodies wait,
 With studious thought observ'd th' illustrious throng,
 In nature's order as they pass'd along.
 Their names, their fates, their conduct, and their care,
 In peaceful senates, and successful war.
 He, when Æneas on the plain appears,
 Meets him with open arms, and falling tears. 930
 Welcome, he said, the gods undoubted race,
 O long expected to my dear embrace;
 Once more 'tis given me to behold your face!
 The love and pious duty which you pay,
 Have pass'd the perils of so hard a way. 935
 'Tis true, computing times I now believ'd
 The happy day approach'd, nor are my hopes deceiv'd.
 What length of lands, what oceans have you pass'd,
 What storms sustain'd, and on what shores been cast?

How have I fear'd your fate! But fear'd it most 94
 When love affail'd you on the Libyan coast.

To this, the filial duty thus replies: -

Your sacred ghost before my sleeping eyes
 Appear'd; and often urg'd this painful enterprize. -

After long tossing on the Tyrrhene sea, 94

My navy rides at anchor in the bay.

But reach your hand, oh parent shade, nor shun

The dear embraces of your longing son!

He said, and falling tears his face bedew:

Then thrice around his neck his arms he threw: 95

And thrice the flitting shadow slipp'd away,

Like winds, or empty dreams that fly the day.

Now, in a secret vale, the Trojan sees

A separate grove, through which a gentle breeze Plays with a passing breath, and whispers through the trees, }

And just before the confines of the wood,

The gliding Lethe leads her silent flood.

About the boughs an airy nation flew,

Thick as the humming bees, that hunt the golden dew

In summer's heat, on tops of lilies feed, 96

And creep within their bells, to suck the balmy feed.

The winged army roams the field around;

The rivers and the rocks remurmur to the sound.

Æneas wondering stood: then ask'd the cause,

Which to the stream the crowding people draws. 97

Then thus the fire: The souls that throng the flood

Are those, to whom, by fate, are other bodies ow'

In Lethe's lake they long oblivion taste;
 Of future life secure, forgetful of the past.
 Long has my soul desir'd this time and place, 970
 To set before your sight your glorious race.
 That this presaging joy may fire your mind,
 To seek the shores by destiny design'd.
 O Father, can it be, that souls sublime,
 Return to visit our terrestrial clime? 975
 And that the generous mind, releas'd by death,
 Can covet lazy limbs, and mortal breath?
 Anchises, then, in order thus begun
 To clear those wonders to his godlike son:
 Know first, that heaven and earth's compacted frame,
 And flowing waters, and the starry flame,
 And both the radiant lights, one common soul
 Inspires and feeds, and animates the whole.
 This active mind infus'd through all the space,
 Unites and mingles with the mighty mass. 985
 Hence men and beasts the breath of life obtain;
 And birds of air, and monsters of the main.
 Th' ethereal vigour is in all the same,
 And every soul is fill'd with equal flame:
 As much as earthy limbs, and gross alloy 990
 Of mortal members, subject to decay,
 Blunt not the beams of heaven and edge of day. }
 From this coarse mixture of terrestrial parts,
 Desire and fear by turns possess their hearts:
 And grief and joy, nor can the groveling mind, }
 In the dark dungeon of the limbs confin'd,
 Assert the native skies, or own its heavenly kind. }

Not

Nor death itself can wholly wash their stains:
 But long-contracted filth, e'en in the foul, remains.
 The relicks of inveterate vice they wear: 100
 And spots of sin obscene in every face appear.
 For this are various penances injoin'd;
 And some are hung to bleach upon the wind;
 Some plung'd in waters, others purg'd in fires, 100
 Till all the dregs are drain'd, and all the rust expires!
 All have their Manes, and those Manes bear: }
 The few, so cleans'd, to these abodes repair, }
 And breathe, in ample fields, the soft Elyfian air. }
 Then are they happy, when, by length of time,
 The scurf is worn away of each committed crime.
 No speck is left of their habitual stains;
 But the pure æther of the soul remains.
 But when a thousand rolling years are past
 (So long their punishments and penance last);
 Whole droves of minds are, by the driving god, 101
 Compell'd to drink the deep Lethæan flood:
 In large forgetful draughts to steep the cares
 Of their past labours, and their irksome years.
 That, unremembering of its former pain,
 The soul may suffer mortal flesh again. 102
 Thus having said; the father spirit leads
 The priestess and his son through swarms of shades,
 And takes a rising ground, from thence to see
 The long procession of his progeny.
 Survey (pursu'd the fire) this airy throng; 102
 As, offer'd to the view, they pass along.
 Thef

These are th' Italian names, which fate will join
 With ours, and graft upon the Trojan line.
 Observe the youth who first appears in fight,
 And holds the nearest station to the light,      1030
 Already seems to snuff the vital air,
 And leans just forward on a shining spear;
 Silvius is he: thy last-begotten race,
 But first in order sent, to fill thy place.
 An Alban name, but mix'd with Dardan blood: 1035
 Born in the covert of a shady wood:
 Him fair Lavinia, thy surviving wife,
 Shall breed in groves, to lead a solitary life.
 In Alba he shall fix his royal seat:
 And, born a king, a race of kings beget.      1040
 Then Procas, honour of the Trojan name,
 Capys, and Numitor, of endless fame.
 And second Silvius after these appears;
 Silvius Æneas, for thy name he bears,
 For arms and justice equally renown'd:      1045
 Who, late restor'd, in Alba shall be crown'd.
 How great they look, how vigorously they wield
 Their weighty lances, and sustain the shield!
 But they, who crown'd with oaken wreaths appear,
 Shall Gabian walls and strong Fidenæ rear:      1050
 Nomentum, Bola, with Pometia found;
 And raise Colatian towers on rocky ground.
 All these shall then be towns of mighty fame,
 Though now they lie obscure, and lands without a name,

See Romulus the great, born to restore 1
 The crown that once his injur'd grandfire wore.
 This prince, a priestess of your blood shall bear;
 And, like his fire, in arms he shall appear.
 Two rising crests his royal head adorn;
 Born from a god, himself to godhead born. 1
 His fire, already, signs him for the skies,
 And marks the seat amidst the deities.
 Auspicious chief! thy race in times to come
 Shall spread the conquest of imperial Rome.
 Rome, whose ascending towers shall heaven invade
 Involving earth and ocean in her shade.
 High as the mother of the gods in place;
 And proud, like her, of an immortal race.
 Then when in pomp she makes the Phrygian round
 With golden turrets on her temples crown'd, 1
 A hundred gods her sweeping train supply;
 Her offspring all, and all command the sky.
 Now fix your sight, and stand intent, to see
 Your Roman race, and Julian progeny.
 The mighty Cæsar waits his vital hour, 1
 Impatient for the world, and grasps his promis'd power
 But next behold the youth of form divine,
 Cæsar himself, exalted in his line;
 Augustus, promis'd oft, and long foretold,
 Sent to the realm that Saturn rul'd of old; 108
 Born to restore a better age of gold.
 Afric and India shall his power obey,
 He shall extend his propagated sway
 Beyond the solar year, without the starry way. 109

Where Atlas turns the rolling heavens around: 1085
 And his broad shoulders with their lights are crown'd.
 At his fore-seen approach, already quake
 The Caspian kingdoms, and Mæotian lake.
 Their fears behold the tempests from afar,
 And threatening oracles denounce the war. 1090
 Nile hears him knocking at his seven-fold gates,
 And seeks his hidden spring, and fears his nephew fates.
 Nor Hercules more lands or labours knew,
 Not though the brazen-footed hind he slew;
 Freed Erymanthus from the foaming boar, 1095
 And dipp'd his arrows in Lernæan gore.
 Nor Bacchus, turning from his Indian war,
 By tigers drawn triumphant in his car,
 From Nifus' top descending on the plains,
 With curling vines around his purple reins. 1100
 And doubt we yet through dangers to pursue
 The paths of honour, and a crown in view?
 But what's the man, who from afar appears,
 His head with olive crown'd, his hand a censer bears?
 His hoary head and holy vestments bring 1105
 His lost idea back: I know the Roman king.
 He shall to peaceful Rome new laws ordain:
 Call'd from his mean abode, a sceptre to sustain.
 Him Tullus next in dignity succeeds;
 An active prince, and prone to martial deeds. 1110
 He shall his troops for fighting fields prepare,
 Difus'd to toils, and triumphs of the war.
 By dint of sword, his crown he shall increase,
 And scour his armour from the rust of peace.

Whom

Whom Ancus follows, with a fawning air 1115
 But vain within, and proudly popular.
 Next view the Tarquin'kings: th' avenging sword
 Of Brutus justly drawn, and Rome restor'd.
 He first renews the rods, and ax severe;
 And gives the consuls royal robes to wear. 1120
 His sons, who seek the tyrant to sustain,
 And long for arbitrary lords again,
 With ignominy scourg'd, in open fight,
 He dooms to death deserv'd: asserting public right.
 Unhappy man, to break the pious laws 1125
 Of nature, pleading in his children's cause!
 Howe'er the doubtful fact is understood,
 'Tis love of honour, and his country's good: }
 The consul, not the father, sheds the blood. }
 Behold Torquatus the same track pursue; 1130
 And next, the two devoted Decii view.
 The Drusian line, Camillus loaded home
 With standards well redeem'd, and foreign foes o'er-come.
 The pair you see in equal armour shine;
 (Now, friends below, in close embraces join: 1135
 But when they leave the shady realms of night,
 And, cloath'd in bodies, breathe your upper light),
 With mortal heat each other shall pursue:
 What wars, what wounds, what slaughter, shall ensue.
 From Alpine heights the father first descends; 1140 }
 His daughter's husband in the plain attends: }
 His daughter's husband arms his eastern friends. }

Embrace

Embrace again, my sons; be foes no more:
 Nor stain your country with her children's gore.
 And thou, the first, lay down thy lawless claim; 1145
 Thou, of my blood, who bear'st the Julian name.
 Another comes, who shall in triumph ride,
 And to the capitol his chariot guide;
 From conquer'd Corinth, rich with Grecian spoils.
 And yet another, fam'd for warlike toils, 1150
 On Argos shall impose the Roman laws:
 And, on the Greeks, revenge the Trojan cause:
 Shall drag in chains their Achillæan race;
 Shall vindicate his ancestors disgrace: }
 And Pallas, for her violated place. 1155 }
 Great Cato there, for gravity renown'd,
 And conquering Cossus goes with laurels crown'd.
 Who can omit the Gracchi, who declare
 The Scipios' worth, those thunderbolts of war,
 The double bane of Carthage? Who can see, 1160
 Without esteem for virtuous poverty,
 Severe Fabricius, or can cease t' admire
 The Ploughman consul in his coarse attire!
 Tir'd as I am, my praise the Fabii claim;
 And thou, great hero, greatest of thy name, 1165
 Ordain'd in war to save the sinking state,
 And, by delays, to put a stop to fate!
 Let others better mould the running mass
 Of medals, and inform the breathing brass; }
 And, soften into flesh a marble face: 1170 }
 Plead better at the bar; describe the skies,
 And when the stars descend, and when they rise.

But,

But, Rome, 'tis thine alone with awful sway,
 To rule mankind, and make the world obey;
 Disposing peace, and war, thy own majestic way. }
 To tame the proud, the fetter'd slave to free;
 These are imperial arts, and worthy thee.

He paus'd: and while with wondering eyes they view'd
 The passing spirits, thus his speech renew'd:
 See great Marcellus! how, untir'd in toils, 1180

He moves with manly grace, how rich with regal spoils!

He, when his country (threaten'd with alarms)
 Requires his courage, and his conquering arms,
 Shall more than once the Punic bands affright:

Shall kill the Gaulish king in single fight: 1185

Then, to the capitol in triumph move,
 And the third spoils shall grace Feretrian Jove.

Æneas, here, beheld of form divine

A godlike youth, in glittering armour shine;

With great Marcellus keeping equal pace; 1190

But gloomy were his eyes, dejected was his face:

He saw, and, wondering, ask'd his airy guide,

What, and of whence was he, who press'd the hero's side?

His son, or one of his illustrious name,

How like the former, and almost the same: 1195

Observe the crowds that compass him around:

All gaze, and all admire, and raise a shouting sound:

But hovering mists around his brows are spread,

And night, with sable shades, involves his head.

THE SEVENTH BOOK

OF THE

Æ N E I S.

THE ARGUMENT.

King Latinus entertains Æneas, and promises him his only daughter, Lavinia, the heiress of his crown. Turnus, being in love with her, favoured by her mother, and stirred up by Juno and Alecto, breaks the treaty which was made, and engages in his quarrel Mezentius, Camilla, Messapus, and many other of the neighbouring princes; whose forces and the names of their commanders are particularly related.

AND thou, O matron of immortal fame!

Here dying, to the shore hast left thy name;

Cajeta still the place is called from thee,

The nurse of great Æneas' infancy.

Here rest thy bones in rich Hesperia's plains, 5

Thy name ('tis all a ghost can have) remains.

Now, when the prince her funeral rites had paid,

He plough'd the Tyrrhene seas with sails display'd.

From land a gentle breeze arose by night,
 Serenely shone the stars, the moon was bright, 10 }
 And the sea trembled with her silver light.
 Now near the shelves of Circe's shores they run (Circe the rich, the daughter of the sun),
 A dangerous coast: the goddess wastes her days
 In joyous songs, the rocks resound her lays: 15
 In spinning, or the loom, she spends the night,
 And cedar brands supply her father's light.
 From hence were heard (rebellowing to the main)
 The roars of lions that refuse the chain,
 The grunts of bristled boars; and groans of bears, 20
 And herds of howling wolves that stun the sailors ears.
 These from their caverns, at the close of night,
 Fill the sad isle with horror and affright.
 Darkling they mourn their fate, whom Circe's power
 (That watch'd the moon, and planetary hour) 25
 With words and wicked herbs, from human kind
 Had alter'd, and in wicked shapes confin'd.
 Which monsters, lest the Trojans pious host
 Should bear or touch upon th' enchanted coast:
 Propitious Neptune steer'd their course by night, 30
 With rising gales, that sped their happy flight.
 Supply'd with these, they skim the sounding shore,
 And hear the swelling surges vainly roar.
 Now when the rosy morn began to rise,
 And weav'd her saffron streamer through the skies; 35
 When Thetis blush'd in purple, not her own,
 And from her face the breathing winds are blown,
A sudden silence fate upon the sea,

 ping oars, with straggling, urge their way.
 Trojan, from the main, beheld a wood, 40
 tick with shades and a brown horror stood:
 the trees the Tiber took his course, whirlpools dimpled; and with downward force
 o'er the sand along, he took his way,
 d his yellow billows to the sea. 45
 m, and above, and round the wood, ls that haunt the borders of his flood;
 h'd within, or bask'd upon his side,
 ul songs their narrow throats apply'd, ain gives command; the joyful train 50
 rough the gloomy shade, and leave the main.

Erato, thy poet's mind inspire,
 his soul with thy celestial fire.
 hat Latium was: her ancient kings:
 the past, and present state of things: 55
 ft the Trojan fleet Ausonia fought;
 v the rivals lov'd, and how they fought,
 e my theme, and how the war began,
 v concluded by the godlike man.
 all sing of battles, blood, and rage, 60 rinces and their people did engage:
 ighty souls, that, mov'd with mutual hate,
 ng fields pursu'd and found their fate:
 uz'd the Tyrrhene realm with loud alarms, ceful Italy involv'd in arms. 65
 : scene of action is display'd, sing hence, a greater work is weigh'd.

Latinus, old and mild, had long possess'd
 The Latium sceptre, and his people bless'd:
 His father Faunus; a Laurentian dame 70
 His mother, fair Marica was her name.
 But Faunus came from Picus, Picus drew
 His birth from Saturn, if records be true.
 Thus King Latinus, in the third degree,
 Had Saturn author of his family. 75
 But this old peaceful prince, as heaven decreed,
 Was bless'd with no male issue to succeed:
 His sons in blooming youth were snatch'd by fate:
 One only daughter heir'd the royal state.
 Fir'd with her love, and with ambition led, 80
 The neighbouring princes court her nuptial bed.
 Among the crowd, but far above the rest,
 Young Turnus to theauteous maid address'd.
 Turnus, for high descent and graceful mien,
 Was first, and favour'd by the Latian queen: 85
 With him she strove to join Lavinia's hand;
 But dire portents the purpos'd match withstand.
 Deep in the palace, of long growth, there stood
 A laurel's trunk, a venerable wood;
 Where rites divine were paid; whose holy hair 90
 Was kept, and cut with superstitious care.
 This plant Latinus, when his town he wall'd,
 Then found, and from the tree Laurentum call'd:
 And last, in honour of his new abode,
 He vow'd the laurel to the laurel's god, 95
 It happen'd once (a boding prodigy)
 A swarm of bees that cut the liquid sky,

from whence they took their airy flight,
 the topmost branch in clouds alight:
 with their clasping feet together clung, 100
 one cluster from the laurel hung.
 sent Augur prophesy'd from hence:
 on Latian shores a foreign prince!
 the same parts of heaven his navy stands,
 the same parts on earth: his army lands; 105 } when he conquers, and the tower commands. } when fair Lavinia fed the fire
 the gods, and stood beside her fire;
 to relate, the flames involv'd the smoke
 rose, from the sacred altar broke: 110 her dishevel'd hair and rich attire;
 crowns and jewels crackled in the fire:
 whence the fuming trail began to spread,
 the silent glories danc'd about her head.
 a portent the seer with wonder views; 115 refusing thus, his prophecy renews:
 the nymph who scatters flaming fires around,
 shall with honour, shall herself be crown'd;
 promis'd by her irrevocable fate, shall the country waste, and change the state. 120
 frighted with this dire oment, the nymph to his father Faunus went:
 might the shades renown'd for prophecy,
 near Alburnea's sulphurous fountain lie.
 : the Latian and the Sabine land 125
 when distress'd, and thence relief demand.

The priest on skins of offerings takes his care;
 And nightly visions in his slumber sees:
 A swarm of thin aerial shapes appears,
 And, fluttering round his temples, deafs his ears: 139
 These he consults, the future fates to know,
 From powers above, and from the fiends below.
 Here, for the god's advice, Latinus flies,
 Offering a hundred sheep for sacrifice:
 Their woolly fleeces, as the rites requir'd, 138
 He laid beneath him, and to rest retir'd.
 No sooner were his eyes in slumber bound,
 When, from above, a more than mortal sound
 Invades his ears: and thus the vision spoke: }
 Seek not, my feed, in Latian bands to yoke 140 }
 Our fair Lavinia, nor the gods provoke.
 A foreign son upon the shore descends,
 Whose martial fame from pole to pole extends.
 His race in arms, and arts of peace renown'd,
 Not Latium shall contain, nor Europe bound: 145 }
 'Tis theirs what'er the sun surveys around. }
 These answers in the silent night receiv'd,
 The king himself divulg'd, the land believ'd:
 The fame through all the neighbouring nations flew,
 When now the Trojan navy was in view. 150
 Beneath a shady tree the hero spread }
 His table on the turf, with cakes of bread;
 And, with his chiefs, on forest fruits he fed. }
 They fate, and (not without the god's command)
 Their homely fare dispatch'd: the hungry band 155

 k the word, and thus replies:
 g fate with wonder in his eyes)
 O earth! all hail my household gods,
 e destin'd place of your abodes! 165
 Anchises prophesy'd of old,
 our fatal place of rest foretold.
 on a foreign shore, instead of meat,
 ine forc'd, your trenchers you shall eat,
 ase your weary Trojans will attend: 170
 e long labours of your voyage end.
 nber on that happy coast to build:
 ith a trench inclose the fruitful field."
 that famine, this the fatal place, ds the wandering of our exil'd race. 175 to-morrow's dawn, your care employ the land, and where the cities lie,
 t the men: but give this day to joy.
 r to Jove, and after Jove is blest,
 t Anchises to the genial feast: 180
 igh the goblets with a chearful draught;
 e present hour; adjourn the future thought.
 aving said, the hero bound his brows fy branches, then perform'd his vows:

Adoring

Adoring first the genius of the place, 17
 Then earth, the mother of the heavenly race;
 The nymphs, and native godheads yet unknown,
 And night; and all the stars that gild her sable throne
 And ancient Cybel, and Idæan Jove;
 And last his sire below, and mother queen above. 19
 Then heaven's high monarch thunder'd thrice aloud;
 And thrice he shook aloft a golden cloud.
 Soon through the joyful camp a rumour flew:
 The time was come their city to renew:
 Then every brow with chearful green is crown'd, 195
 The feasts are doubled, and the bowls go round.
 When next the rosy morn disclos'd the day,
 The scouts to several parts divide their way,
 To learn the natives names, their towns, explore
 The coast, and trendings of the crooked shore: 200
 Here Tiber flows, and here Numicus stands,
 Here warlike Latins hold the happy lands.
 The pious chief, who sought by peaceful ways
 To found his empire, and his town to raise,
 A hundred youths from all his train selects, 205
 And to the Latian court their course directs
 (The spacious palace where the prince resides):
 And all their heads with wreaths of olives hides.
 They go commission'd to require a peace;
 And carry presents to procure access. 210
 Thus while they speed their pace, the prince designs
 The new-elected seat, and draws the lines:
 The Trojans round the place a rampart cast,
 And palisades about the trenches plac'd.

Mean time the train, proceeding on their way, 215
 From far the town, and lofty towers survey:
 At length approach the walls: without the gate
 They see the boys and Latian youth debate
 The martial prizes on the dusty plain:
 Some drive the cars, and some the coursers rein; 220
 Some bend the stubborn bough for victory:
 And some with darts their active sinews try.
 A posting messenger dispatch'd from hence,
 Of this fair troop, advis'd their aged prince;
 That foreign men, of mighty stature, came; 225
 Uncoath their habit, and unknown their name,
 The king ordains their entrance, and ascends
 His regal seat, surrounded by his friends.
 The palace built by Picus, vast and proud,
 Supported by a hundred pillars stood! 230 }
 And round encompass'd with a rising wood.
 The pile o'erlook'd the town, and drew the sight,
 Surpris'd at once with reverence and delight.
 There kings receiv'd the marks of sovereign power: }
 In state the monarch march'd, the lictors bore 235 }
 Their awful axes, and the rods before.
 Here the tribunal stood, the house of prayer;
 And here the sacred senators repair;
 All at large tables, in long order set,
 A ram their offering, and a ram their meat. 240
 Above the portal, carv'd in cedar wood,
 Plac'd in their ranks, their godlike grandfires stood.
 Old Saturn, with his crooked scythe, on high;
 And Italus, that led the colony:

And

And ancient Janus, with his double face,
 And bunch of keys, the porter of the place.
 There stood Sabinus, planter of the vines;
 On a short pruning-hook his head reclines:
 And studiously surveys his generous wines.
 Then warlike kings, who for their country fought
 And honourable wounds from battle brought.
 Around the posts hung helmets, darts, and spears,
 And captive chariots, axes, shields, and bars,
 And broken beaks of ships, the trophies of the wars.

Above the rest, as chief of all the band.      21
 Was Picus plac'd, a buckler in his hand;
 His other wav'd a long-divining wand.
 Girt in his gabin gown the hero fate:
 Yet could not with his art avoid his fate.
 For Circe long had lov'd the youth in vain,
 Till love, refus'd, converted to disdain:
 Then mixing powerful herbs, with magic art,
 She chang'd his form, who could not change his Constrain'd him in a bird, and made him fly
 With party-colour'd plumes, a chattering-pye.
 In this high temple, on a chair of state,
 The seat of audience, old Latinus fate;
 Then gave admission to the Trojan train,
 And thus, with pleasing accents, he began:
 Tell me, ye Trojans, for that name you own;
 Nor is your course upon our coasts unknown;
 Say what you seek, and whither were you bound.
 Were you by strefs of weather cast a-ground?

ers of the sea are often seen, fatal to miserable men. 275
 your shipping in our ports to lay, disabled in so long a way?
 you want; the Latians you shall find to goodness, but by will inclin'd;
 the time of Saturn's holy reign, 280 able customs we retain.
 kind (but time the tale has worn) is told; that Dardanus, though born explains, yet fought the Phrygian shore, Thracia, Samos call'd before: 285 can Coritum he claim'd his birth.
 when exempt from mortal earth,
 he ascended to his kindred skies,
 and as a god augments their sacrifice.
 Ilioneus made this reply:
 of Faunus' royal family! 290
 every winds to Latium forc'd our way,
 the stars our wandering course betray.
 we fought your shores, and hither bound,
 so long desir'd, at length we found. 295
 sweet homes and ancient realms expell'd;
 the greatest that the sun beheld.
 began our line, who rules above,
 our race, our king descends from Jove:
 where are we come, by his command, 300 admission in your happy land.
 a tempest, from Mycenæ pour'd,
 us, our temples, and our town devour'd;
 What

What was the waste of war, what dire alarms
 Shook Asia's crown with European arms; 305
 Ev'n such have heard, if any such there be,
 Whose earth is bounded by the frozen sea:
 And such as born beneath the burning sky,
 And sultry sun betwixt the tropics lie.
 From that dire deluge, through the watery waste, 310
 Such length of years, such various perils past:
 At last escap'd, to Latium we repair,
 To beg what you without your want may spare;
 The common water, and the common air. }
 Sheds which ourselves will build, and mean abodes,
 Fit to receive and serve our banish'd gods.
 Nor our admission shall your realm disgrace,
 Nor length of time our gratitude efface.
 Besides what endless honour you shall gain
 To save and shelter Troy's unhappy train. 315
 Now, by my sovereign, and his fate, I swear,
 Renown'd for faith in peace, for force in war;
 Oft our alliance other lands desir'd,
 And what we seek of you, of us requir'd.
 Despise not then, that in our hands we bear 325
 These holy boughs, and sue with words of prayer.
 Fate and the gods, by their supreme command,
 Have doom'd our ships to seek the Latian land.
 To these abodes our fleet Apollo sends;
 Here Dardanus was born, and hither tends. 330
 Where Tuscan Tiber rolls with rapid force,
 And where Numicus opens his holy source,

Besides,

r prince presents, with his request,

 ile he spoke, Latinus roll'd around nd fix'd awhile upon the ground.
 em'd, and anxious in his breast;
 sceptre mov'd, or kingly vest:
 ng future things of wondrous weight: 345 empire, and his daughter's fate:

 d yours, and mine, propitious be, 355
 ir purpose with their augury.
 you ask: your presents I receive;
 , and when you please, with ample leave;
 use my kingdom as your own;
 ours, while I command the crown. 360
 wish'd alliance please your king, should not send the peace, but bring:

Then let him not a friend's embraces fear;
 The peace is made when I behold him here.
 Besides this answer, tell my royal guest,
 I add to his commands my own request:
 One only daughter heirs my crown and state,
 Whom, not our oracles, nor heaven, nor fate,
 Nor frequent prodigies, permit to join
 With any native of th' Ausonian line.
 A foreign son-in-law shall come from far (Such is our doom), a chief renown'd in war:
 Whose race shall bear aloft the Latian name,
 And through the conquer'd world diffuse our fame
 Himself to be the man the fates require,
 I firmly judge, and what I judge, desire.
 He said, and then on each bestow'd a steed;
 Three hundred horses, in high stables fed,
 Stood ready, shining all, and smoothly dress'd,
 Of these he chose the fairest and the best,
 To mount the Trojan troop; at his command,
 The steeds caparison'd with purple stand:
 With golden trappings, glorious to behold,
 And champ, betwixt their teeth, the foaming gold
 Then to his absent guest the king decreed
 A pair of courfers born of heavenly breed:
 Who from their nostrils breath'd ethereal fire;
 Whom Circe stole from her celestial fire;
 By substituting mares, produc'd on earth,
 Whose wombs conceiv'd a more than mortal birth
 These draw the chariot which Latinus sends;
 And the rich present to the prince commends.

Sublime on stately steeds the Trojans borne,
To their expecting lord with peace return.

But jealous Juno, from Pachymus' height, 395 }
As she from Argos took her airy flight,
Beheld, with envious eyes, this hateful sight.

She saw the Trojan and his joyful train
Descend upon the shore, desert the main!

Design a town, and, with unhop'd success, 400
Th' ambassadors return with promis'd peace.

Then, pierc'd with pain, she shook her haughty head,
Sigh'd from her inward soul, and thus she said:

O hated offspring of my Phrygian foes!
O fate of Troy, which Juno's fates opposel 405

Could they not fall unpity'd, on the plain,

But slain revive, and taken, 'scape again?

When execrable Troy in ashes lay,

Through fires, and swords, and seas, they forc'd their way.

Then vanquish'd Juno must in vain contend, 410

Her rage disarm'd, her empire at an end.

Breathless and tir'd, is all my fury spent,

Or does my glutted spleen at length relent?

As if 'twere little from their town to chace, 415
I through the seas pursued their exil'd race:

Engag'd the heavens, oppos'd the stormy main;

But billows roar'd, and tempests rag'd in vain.

What have my Scylla's and my Syrtes done,

When these they overpass, and those they shun?

On Tiber's shores they land, secure of fate, 420

Triumphant o'er the storm's and Juno's hate.

Mars could in mutual blood the centaurs bathe,
 And Jove himself gave way to Cynthia's wrath:
 Who sent the tusky boar to Calydon:
 What great offence had either people done? 425
 But I, the consort of the thunderer,
 Have wag'd a long and unsuccessful war:
 With various arts and arms in vain have toil'd,
 And by a mortal man at length am foil'd.
 If native power prevail not, shall I doubt 430
 To seek for needful succour from without?
 If Jove and heaven my just desires deny,
 Hell shall the power of Heaven and Jove supply.
 Grant that the fates have firm'd by their decree,
 The Trojan race to reign in Italy: 435
 At least I can defer the nuptial day,
 And, with protracted wars, the peace delay:
 With blood the dear alliance shall be bought;
 And both the people near destruction brought.
 So shall the son-in-law and father join, 440
 With ruin, war, and waste of either line.
 O fatal maid! thy marriage is endow'd
 With Phrygian, Latian, and Rutilian blood!
 Bellona leads thee to thy lover's hand,
 Another queen brings forth another brand; 445
 To burn with foreign fires her native land!
 A second Paris, differing but in name,
 Shall fire his country with a second flame.
 Thus having said, she sinks beneath the ground
 With furious haste, and shoots the Stygian sound;

To rouze Alecto from th' infernal seat
 Of her dire sisters, and their dark retreat.
 This fury fit for her intent she chose,
 One who delights in wars, and human woes.
 Ev'n Pluto hates his own mis-shapen race 455
 Her sister-furies fly her hideous face:
 So frightful are the forms the monster takes,
 So fierce the hissings of her speckled snakes.
 Her Juno finds, and thus inflames her spite:
 O virgin daughter of eternal night, 460
 Give me this-once thy labour, to sustain
 My right, and execute my just disdain.
 Let not the Trojans, with a feign'd pretence
 Of proffer'd peace, delude the Latian prince:
 Expel from Italy that odious name, 465
 And let not Juno suffer in her fame.
 'Tis thine to ruin realms, o'erturn a state,
 Betwixt the dearest friends to raise debate,
 And kindle kindred blood to mutual hate. }
 Thy hand o'er towns the funeral torch displays, 470
 And forms a thousand ills ten thousand ways.
 Now shake from out thy fruitful breast the seeds
 Of envy, discord, and of cruel deeds:
 Confound the peace establish'd, and prepare
 Their souls to hatred, and their hands to war. 475
 Fear'd as she was with black Gorgonian blood,
 The fury sprang above the Stygian flood:
 And on her wicker wings, sublime through night,
 She to the Latian palace took her flight.

There fought the queen's apartments, stood before
 The peaceful threshold, and besieg'd the door.
 Restless Amata lay, her swelling breast
 Fir'd with disdain for Turnus dispossest,
 And the new nuptials of the Trojan guest. }
 From her black, bloody locks the fury shakes 485
 Her darling plague, the favourite of her snakes:
 With her full force she threw the poisonous dart,
 And fix'd it deep within Amata's heart:
 That thus envenom'd she might kindle rage,
 And sacrifice to strife her house and husband's age.
 Unseen, unfelt, the fiery serpent skims
 Betwixt her linen, and her naked limbs.
 His baleful breath inspiring as he glides,
 Now like a chain around her neck he rides;
 Now like a fillet to her head repairs, 495
 And, with her circling volumes, folds her hairs.
 At first the silent venom slid with ease,
 And seiz'd her cooler senses by degrees;
 Then, ere th' infected mass was fir'd too far,
 In plaintive accents she began the war: 500
 And thus bespoke her husband: Shall, she said,
 A wandering prince enjoy Lavinia's bed?
 If nature plead not in a parent's heart,
 Pity my tears, and pity her desert:
 I know, my dearest lord, the time will come, 505
 You would, in vain, reverse your cruel doom:
 The faithless pirate soon will set to sea,
 And bear the royal virgin far away!

like him, a Trojan guest before,
 of friendship; fought the Spartan shore;
 with'd Helen from her husband bore. } on a king's inviolable word:
 ink on Turnus, her once-plighted lord:
 false foreigner you give your throne,
 wrong a friend, a kinsman, and a son. 515
 your ancient care; and if the god, re, and you, resolve on foreign blood,
 all are foreign, in a larger sense,
 turn your subjects, or deriv'd from hence.
 of the line of Turnus you retrace; 520
 sings from Inachus of Argive race.
 when she saw her reason illy spent,
 would not move him from his fix'd intent,
 but to rage; for now the snake possess'd all parts, and poison'd all her breast; 525 as she runs, with a distracted pace,
 she with horrid howls the public place.
 the young striplings whip the top for sport,
 the smooth pavement of an empty court,
 the wooden engine flies and whirls about, 530
 and, with clamours, of the beardless rout, rush aloud, each other they provoke,
 and their little souls at every stroke:
 strikes the queen, and thus her fury blows
 the crowds, and kindles as she goes. 535 discontent, she strains her malice more,
 adds new ills to those contriv'd before:

She flies the town, and, mixing with the throng
 Of madding matrons, bears the bride along:
 Wandering through woods and wilds, and devi ways,

And with these arts the Trojan match delays.

She feign'd the rites of Bacchus! cry'd aloud,

And to the buxom god the virgin vow'd.

Evoc, O Bacchus! thus began the song,

And Evoc! answer'd all the female throng:

O virgin! worthy thee alone, she cry'd;

O worthy thee alone, the crew reply'd;

For thee she feeds her hair, she leads thy dance,

And with the winding ivy wreaths her lance.

Like fury seiz'd the rest; the progress known, 5

All seek the mountains and forsake the town:

All clad in skins of beasts the javelin bare,

Give to the wanton winds their flowing hair:

And shrieks and shoutings rend the suffering air.

The queen, herself, inspir'd with rage divine, 5

Shook high above her head a flaming pine:

Then roll'd her haggard eyes around the throng,

And sung, in Turnus' name, the nuptial song!

To ye Latian dames, if any here

Hold your unhappy queen, Amata, dear; 5

If there be here, she said, who dare maintain

My right, nor think the name of mother vain,

Unbind your fillets, loose your flowing hair,

And orgies and nocturnal rites prepare.

Amata's breast the fury thus invades, 5

And fires with rage, amid the sylvan shades.

when she found her venom spread so far,
 royal house embroil'd in civil war,
 on her dusky wings she cleaves the skies, seeks the palace where young Turnus lies. 570
 when, as fame reports, was built of old naë, pregnant with almighty gold:
 led her father's rage, and with a train following Argives, through the stormy main,
 by the southern blasts, was fated here to reign. } as Ardua once, now Ardea's name it bears a fair city, now consum'd with years,
 in his lofty palace Turnus lay,
 at the confines of the night and day,
 in sleep: the fury laid aside 580 } took and limbs, and with new methods try'd
 the ugliness of the infernal form to hide.
 Seiz'd on a staff, she takes the trembling mien,
 her face is furrow'd, and her front obscene:
 lined wrinkles on her cheek she draws, 585 }
 she rears her eyes, and toothless are her jaws:
 her curly hair with holy fillets bound,
 her temples with an olive wreath are crown'd.
 Like her, who kept the sacred fane
 so, now she seem'd, and thus began: 590 } arising in a dream, to rouse the careless man.
 Turnus then such endless toil sustain,
 tilling fields, and conquer towns in vain?
 for a Trojan head to wear the prize?
 thy crown, enjoy thy victories? 595 }

The bride and sceptre which thy blood has bought,
 The king transfers, and foreign heirs are fought:
 Go now, deluded man, and seek again
 New toils, new dangers, on the dusty plain.
 Repel the Tuscan foes, their city seize; 600
 Protect the Latians in luxurious ease.
 This dream all-powerful Juno sends; I bear
 Her mighty mandates, and her words you hear.
 Haste, arm your Ardeans, issue to the plain,
 With faith to friend, assault the Trojan train: 605
 Their thoughtless chiefs, their painted ships that lie
 In Tiber's mouth, with fire and sword destroy.
 The Latian king, unless he shall submit,
 Own his old promise, and his new forget;
 Let him, in arms, the power of Turnus prove, 610
 And learn to fear whom he disdains to love.
 For such is heaven's command. The youthful prince
 With scorn reply'd; and made this bold defence:
 You tell me, mother, what I knew before;
 The Phrygian fleet is landed on the shore: 615
 I neither fear, nor will provoke, the war:
 My fate is Juno's most peculiar care,
 But time has made you dote, and vainly tell
 Of arms imagin'd, in your lonely cell:
 Go, be the temple and the gods your care; 620
 Permit the men the thought of peace and war.
 These haughty words Alecto's rage provoke,
 And frighted Turnus trembled as she spoke.
 Her eyes grew stiffen'd and with sulphur burn,
 Her hideous looks, and hellish form return: 625

Her curling snakes with hissings fill the place,
 And open all the furies of her face!
 Then, darting fire from her malignant eyes,
 She cast him backward as he strove to rise,
 And, lingering, fought to frame some new replies. }
 High on her head she rears two twisted snakes;
 Her chain she rattles, and her whip she shakes;
 And, churning bloody foam, thus loudly speaks: }
 Behold whom time has made to dote, and tell
 Of arms, imagin'd in her lonely cell: 635
 Behold the fates' infernal minister;
 War, death, destruction, in my hand I bear.
 Thus having said, her smouldering torch impress'd
 With her full force, she plung'd into his breast.
 Aghast he wak'd, and, starting from his bed, 640
 Cold sweat, in clammy drops, his limbs o'erspread:
 Arms, arms, he cries, my sword and shield prepare;
 He breathes defiance, blood, and mortal war.
 So when with crackling flames a cauldron fries,
 The bubbling waters from the bottom rise: 645
 Above their brims they force their fiery way;
 Black vapours climb aloft, and cloud the day.
 The peace polluted thus, a chosen band
 He first commissions to the Latian land.
 In threatening embassy: then rais'd the rest, 650
 To meet in arms th' intruding Trojan guest:
 To force the foes from the Lavinian shore,
 And Italy's endanger'd peace restore;
 Himself alone, an equal match he boasts,
 To fight the Phrygian and Ausonian hosts, 655
 The

The gods invoc'd, the Rutili prepare
 Their arms, and warm each other to the war.
 His beauty these, and those his blooming age,
 The rest his house, and his own fame engage.
 While Turnus urges thus his enterprize,
 The Stygian fury to the Trojans flies:
 New frauds invents, and takes a steepy stand,
 Which overlooks the vale with wide command;
 Where fair Ascanius and his youthful train,
 With horns and hounds, a hunting match ordain,
 And pitch their toils around the shady plain.
 The fury fires the pack; they snuff, they vent,
 And feed their hungry nostrils with the scent.
 'Twas of a well-grown stag, whose antlers rise
 High o'er his front, his beams invade the skies:
 From this light cause, th' infernal maid prepares
 The country churls to mischief, hate, and wars.
 The stately beast, the two Tyrrhedæ bred,
 Snatch'd from his dam, and the tame youngling
 Their father Tyrrheus did their fodder bring;
 Tyrrheus chief ranger to the Latian king:
 Their sister Sylvia cherish'd with her care
 The little wanton, and did wreaths prepare
 To hang his budding horns: with ribbons ty'd
 His tender neck, and comb'd his filken hide;
 And bath'd his body. Patient of command,
 In time he grew, and growing us'd to hand.
 He waited at his master's board for food;
 Then fought his savage kindred in the wood:

W.

ÆNEID. BOOK VII.

Where, gazing all the day, at night he came 685
To his known lodgings, and his country dame.

This household beast, that us'd the woodland grounds,
Was view'd at first by the young hero's hounds;
As down the stream he swam, to seek retreat
In the cool waters, and to quench his heat, 690

Ascanius, young, and eager of his game,
Soon bent his bow, uncertain in his aim:
But the dire fiend the fatal arrow guides,
Which pierc'd his bowels through his panting sides.

The bleeding creature issues from the floods, 695
Possess'd with fear, and seeks his known abodes;
His old familiar hearth, and household gods.

He falls, he fills the house with heavy groans;
Implores their pity, and his pain bemoans.
Young Sylvia beats her breast, and cries aloud. 700

For succour from the clownish neighbourhood:
The churls assemble; for the fiend who lay
In the close woody covert urg'd their way.
One with a brand, yet burning from the flame;
Trim'd with a knotty club, another came: 705

Whate'er they catch or find, without their care,
Their fury makes an instrument of war.
Corymbus, the foster-father of the beast,
When clench'd a hatchet in his horny fist:

Up held his hand from the descending stroke, 710
And left his wedge within the cloven oak,
To whet their courage, and their rage provoke.
And now the goddess, exercis'd in ill,

Who watch'd an hour to work her impious will,
Ascends

Ascends the roof, and to her crooked horn, 715
 Such as was then by Latian shepherds borne,
 Adds all her breath; the rocks and woods around,
 And mountains, tremble at th' infernal sound.
 The sacred lake of Trivia from afar,
 The Veline fountains, and sulphureous Nar, 720
 Shake at the baleful blast, the signal of the war.
 Young mothers wildly stare, with fear possess'd,
 And strain their helpless infants to their breast.

The clowns, a boisterous, rude, ungovern'd crew,
 With furious haste to the loud summons flew. 725
 The powers of Troy, then issuing on the plain,
 With fresh recruits their youthful chief sustain:
 Nor theirs a raw and unexperienc'd train,
 But a firm body of embattled men.

At first, while fortune favour'd neither side, 730
 The fight with clubs and burning brands was try'd:
 But now, both parties reinforc'd, the fields
 Are bright with flaming swords and brazen shields.
 A shining harvest either host displays,
 And shoots against the sun with equal rays. 735

Thus when a black-brow'd gulf begins to rise,
 White foam at first on the curl'd ocean fries;
 Then roars the main, the billows mount the skies:
 Till, by the fury of the storm full blown,
 The muddy bottom o'er the clouds is thrown. 740

First Almon falls, old Tyrrheus' eldest care,
 Pierc'd with an arrow from the distant war:
 Fix'd in his throat the flying weapon stood,
 And stop'd his breath, and drank his vital blood.

eaps of slain around the body rise; 745 the rest, the rich Galeus lies:
 old man, while peace he preach'd in vain,
 the madness of th' unruly train:
 rds, five bleating flocks, his pastures fill'd;
 ds a hundred yoke of oxen till'd. 750
 while in equal scales their fortune stood,
 ry bath'd them in each other's blood.
 having fix'd the fight, exulting flies,
 ars fulfill'd her promise to the skies,
 so thus she speaks: Behold, 'tis done; 755
 ood already drawn, the war begun;
 scord is complete, nor can they cease
 re debate, nor you command the peace.
 nce the Latian and the Trojan brood asted vengeance, and the sweets of blood, 760 and my power shall add this office more;
 ighbouring nations of th' Ausonian shore ear the dreadful rumour from afar, n'd invasion, and embrace the war.
 Juno thus: The grateful work is done; 765
 eds of discord sow'd, the war begun;
 s, fears, and fury, have possess'd the state,
 x'd the causes of a lasting hate:
 dy Hymen shall th' alliance join t the Trojan and Ausonian line: 770 ou with speed to night and hell repair, t the gods nor angry Jove will bear
 awless wandering walks in upper air.

Leave

DRYDEN'S VIRGIL.

Leave what remains to me, Saturnia said:
 The fullen fiend her sounding wings display'd, 775
 Unwilling left the light, and sought the nether shade.

In midst of Italy, well known to fame,
 There lies a lake, Amsanctus is the name,
 Below the lofty mounts, on either side
 Thick forests the forbidden entrance hide: 780
 Full in the centre of the sacred wood
 An arm arises of the Stygian flood;
 Which, breaking from beneath with bellowing sound,
 Whirls the black waves and rattling stones around.
 Here Pluto pants for breath from out his cell, 785
 And opens wide the grinning jaws of hell.
 To this infernal lake the fury flies;
 Here hides her hated head, and frees the labouring skies.
 Saturnian Juno, now, with double care,
 Attends the fatal process of the war. 790
 The clowns return'd from battle bear the slain,
 Implore the gods, and to their king complain.
 The corpse of Almon and the rest are shown,
 Shrieks, clamours, murmurs, fill the frighted town.
 Ambitious Turnus in the press appears, 795
 And, aggravating crimes, augments their fears:
 Proclaims his private injuries aloud,
 A solemn promise made, and disavow'd;
 A foreign son is sought, and a mix'd mongrel brood.
 Then they, whose mothers, frantic with their fear,
 In woods and wilds the flags of Bacchus bear, 800
 And lead his dances with dishevel'd hair;

Increase

Increase the clamour, and the war demand
 Such was Amata's interest in the land).
 Against the public sanctions of the peace; 805
 Against all omens of their ill success;
 With fates averse, the rout in arms resort,
 To force their monarch, and insult the court.
 Ut, like a rock unmov'd, a rock that braves
 The raging tempest and the rising waves, 810
 Prop'd on himself he stands: his solid sides
 Wash off the sea-weeds, and the sounding tides:
 Flood the pious prince unmov'd: and long ustain'd the madness of the noisy throng.
 But when he found that Juno's power prevail'd, 815
 And all the methods of cool counsel fail'd,
 He calls the gods to witness their offence,
 Disclaims the war, asserts his innocence.
 Hurr'd by fate, he cries, and borne before
 A furious wind, we leave the faithful shore: 820
 More than madmen! you yourselves shall bear
 The guilt of blood and sacrilegious war:
 Thou, Turnus, shalt atone it by thy fate,
 And pray to heaven for peace; but pray too late.
 For me, my stormy voyage at an end, 825
 To the port of death securely tend.
 The funeral pomp which to your kings you pay,
 All I want, and all you take away.
 He said no more, but, in his walls confin'd,
 Set out the woes which he too well divin'd: 830
 Or with the rising storm would vainly strive,
 Or left the helm, and let the vessel drive.

A solemn

A solemn custom was observ'd of old,
 Which Latium held, and now the Romans hold:
 Their standard when, in fighting fields, they rear
 Against the fierce Hyrcanians, or declare
 The Scythian, Indian, or Arabian war:
 Or from the boasting Parthians would regain
 Their eagles lost in Carrhæ's bloody plain:
 Two gates of steel (the name of Mars they bear) 8
 And still are worship'd with religious fear,
 Before his temple stand: the dire abode,
 And the fear'd issues of the furious god,
 Are fenc'd with brazen bolts; without the gates,
 The wary guardian Janus doubly waits. 8
 Then, when the sacred senate votes the wars,
 The Roman consul their decree declares,
 And in his robes the founding gates unbars.
 The youth in military shouts arise,
 And the loud trumpets break the yielding skies. 8
 These rites, of old by sovereign princes us'd,
 Were the king's office, but the king refus'd:
 Deaf to their cries, nor would the gates unbar
 Of sacred peace, or loose th' imprison'd war:
 But hid his head, and, safe from loud alarms, 8
 Abhorr'd the wicked ministry of arms.
 Then heaven's imperious queen shot down from high
 At her approach the brazen hinges fly;
 The gates are forc'd, and every falling bar,
 And, like a tempest, issues out the war. 8
 The peaceful cities of th' Ausonian shore,
 Lull'd in their ease, and undisturb'd before,

Are all on fire; and some, with studious care,
 Their restive steeds in sandy plains prepare:
 Some their soft limbs in painful marches try, 865
 And war is all their wish, and arms the general cry.
 Part scour the rusty shields with seam, and part
 New grind the blunted ax, and point the dart:
 With joy they view the waving ensigns fly,
 And hear the trumpet's clangor pierce the sky. 870
 Five cities forge their arms: th' Atinian powers,
 Antemnæ, Tibur with her lofty towers,
 Ardea the proud, the Crustumerian town:
 All these of old were places of renown.
 Some hammer helmets for the fighting field; 875
 Some twine young fallows to support the shield;
 The croslet some, and some the cuirshes mould,
 With silver plated, and with ductile gold.
 The rustic honours of the scythe and share,
 Give place to swords and plumes, the pride of war. 880
 Old falchions are new temper'd in the fires:
 The sounding trumpet every soul inspires.
 The word is given, with eager speed they lace
 The shining head-piece, and the shield embrace.
 The neighing steeds are to the chariots ty'd; 885
 The trusty weapon fits on every side.
 And now the mighty labour is begun,
 Ye Muses, open all your Helicon.
 Sing you the chiefs that sway th' Ausonian land,
 Their arms, and armies under their command: 890
 What warriors in our ancient clime were bred;
 What soldiers follow'd, and what heroes led.

For well you know, and can record alone,
 What fame to future times conveys but darkly down.
 Mezentius first appear'd upon the plain; 895
 Scorn fate upon his brows, and four disdain:
 Defying earth and heaven: Etruria lost,
 He brings to 'Turnus' aid his baffled host.
 The charming Lausus, full of youthful fire,
 Rode in the rank, and next his sulken fire: 900
 To Turnus only second in the grace
 Of manly mien, and features of the face;
 A skilful horseman, and a huntsman bred,
 With fates averse a thousand men he led:
 His fire unworthy of so brave a son; 905
 Himself well worthy of a happier throne.
 Next Aventinus drives his chariot round
 The Latian plains, with palms and laurels crown'd.
 Proud of his steeds, he smokes along the field,
 His father's hydra fills the ample shield. 910
 A hundred serpents hiss about the brims;
 The son of Hercules he justly seems, }
 By his broad shoulders and gigantic limbs. }
 Of heavenly part, and part of earthly blood,
 A mortal woman mixing with a god. 915
 For strong Alcides, after he had slain
 The triple Geryon, drove from conquer'd Spain
 His captive herds, and thence in triumph led;
 On Tuscan Tiber's flowery banks they fed.
 Then on Mount Aventine, the son of Jove 920
 The priestess Rhea found, and forc'd to love,
 For

For arms his men long piles and javelins bore,
 And poles with pointed steel their foes in battle gore.
 Like Hercules himself, his son appears,
 In savage pomp: a lion's hide he wears; 925
 About his shoulders hangs the shaggy skin,
 The teeth and gaping jaws severely grin.
 Thus like the god his father, homely dress,
 He strides into the hall, a horrid guest.

Then two twin-brothers from fair Tibur came 930
 (Which from their brother Tiburs took the name);
 Fierce Coras, and Catillus, void of fear,
 Arm'd Argive-horse they led, and in the front appear.
 Like cloud-born centaurs, from the mountain's height,
 With rapid course descending to the fight, 935
 They rush along; the rattling woods give way;
 The branches bend before their sweepy sway.

Nor was Præneste's founder wanting there,
 Whom fame reports the son of Mulciber:
 Found in the fire, and foster'd in the plains, 940 }
 A shepherd and a king at once he reigns,
 And leads to Turnus' aid his country swains. }
 His own Præneste sends a chosen band,
 With those who plough Saturnia's Sabine land:
 Besides the succour which old Anian yields, 945
 The rocks of Hernicus, and dewy fields,
 Anagnia fat, and father Amasene,
 A numerous rout, but all of naked men:
 Nor arms they wear, nor swords and bucklers wield,
 Nor drive the chariot through the dusty field; 950

But

But whirl from leathern frings huge balls of lead:

And spoils of yellow wolves adorn their head:

The left foot naked, when they march to fight;

But in a bull's raw hide they sheath the right.

Mefappus next (great Neptune was his fire), 955

Secure from steel, and fated from the fire,

In pomp appears; and with his ardour warms

A heartless train, unexercis'd in arms:

The just Faliscians he to battle brings.

And those who live where lake Ciminia springs; 960

And where Feronia's grove and temple stands,

Who till Fescennian or Flavianian lands:

All these in order march, and marching sing

The warlike actions of their sea-born king.

Like a long team of snowy swans on high, 965

Which clap their wings, and cleave the liquid sky,

Which homeward from their watery pastures borne,

They sing, and Asia's lakes their notes return.

Not one who heard their music from afar,

Would think these troops an army train'd to war: 970

But flocks of fowl, that when the tempests roar,

With their hoarse gabbling seek the silent shore.

Then Clausus came, who led a numerous band

Of troops embody'd, from the Sabine land:

And in himself alone an army brought. 975

'Twas he the noble Claudian race begot:

The Claudian race, ordain'd, in times to come,

To share the greatness of imperial Rome.

He led the Cures forth of high renown,

Mutuscans from their olive-bearing town; 980

And all th' Eretian powers: besides a band
 That follow'd from Velinum's dewy land:
 And Amiternian troops, of mighty fame,
 And mountaineers, that from Severus came.
 And from the craggy cliffs of Tetrica, 985 }
 And those where yellow Tiber takes his way,
 And where Himella's wanton waters play,
 Casperia sends her arms, with those that lie
 By Fabaris, and fruitful Foruli:
 The warlike aids of Horta next appear, 990
 And the cold Nursians come to close the rear:
 Mix'd with the natives born of Latine blood,
 Whom Allia washes with her fatal flood.
 Not thicker billows beat the Libyan main,
 When pale Orion sets in wintery rain; 995
 Or thicker harvest on rich Hermes rise,
 In Lycian fields, when Phœbus burns the skies;
 Can stand these troops: their bucklers ring around;
 Their trampling turns the turf, and shakes the solid ground.
 High in his chariot then Halesus came, 1000
 Foe by birth to Troy's unhappy name:
 From Agamemnon born: to Turnus' aid,
 A thousand men the youthful hero led;
 So till the Massick foil, for wine renown'd,
 And fierce Aruncans from their hilly ground: 1005
 And those who live by Sidicinian shores,
 And where, with shoaly fords, Vulturnus roars;
 And Osea's old inhabitants,
 And rough Saticulans inur'd to wants:

Light demi-lancés from afar they throw, 1010
 Fasten'd with leather thongs, to gall the foe.
 Short crooked swords in cloſer fight they wear,
 And, on their warding arms, like bucklers bear.

Nor, Œbalus, ſhalt thou be left unſung,
 From nymph Semethis and old Telon ſprung: 1015
 Who then in Teleboan Capri reign'd,
 But that ſhort iſle th' ambitious youth diſdain'd;
 And o'er Campania ſtretch'd his ample ſway;
 Where ſwelling Sarnus ſeeks the Tyrrhene ſea:
 O'er Batulum, and where Abella ſees, 1020

From her high towers, the harveſt of her trees.
 And theſe (as was the Teuton uſe of old)
 Wield brazen ſwords, and brazen bucklers hold;
 Sling weighty ſtones when from afar they fight:
 Their caſques are cork, a covering thick and light.

Next theſe in rank, the warlike Uſens went,
 And led the mountain-troops that Nurſia ſent.
 The rude Equicolæ his rule obey'd;
 Hunting their ſport, and plundering was their trade.
 In arms they plough'd, to battle ſtill prepar'd: 1030
 Their ſoil was barren, and their hearts were hard.

Umbro the prieſt, the proud Marrubians led,
 By king Archippus ſent to Turnus' aid;
 And peaceful olives crown'd his hoary head.
 His wand and holy words, the viper's rage, 1040
 And venom'd wound of ſerpents, could aſſuage.
 He, when he pleas'd with powerful juice to ſteep
 Their temples, ſhut their eyes in pleaſing ſleep.

But vain were Marſian herbs, and magic art,
 To cure the wound given by the Dardan dart. 1040
 Yet his untimely fate, th' Angitian woods
 In ſighs remurmur'd to the Fucine floods.
 The ſon of fam'd Hippolytus was there;
 Fam'd as his fire, and as his mother fair.
 Whom in Egerian groves Aricia bore, 1045
 And nurs'd his youth along the marſhy ſhore:
 Where great Diada's peaceful altars flame
 In fruitful fields, and Virbius was his name.
 Hippolytus, as old records have ſaid,
 Was by his ſtepdam ſought to ſhare her bed: 1050
 But when no female arts his mind could move,
 She turn'd to furious hate her impious love.
 Torn by wild horſes on the ſandy ſhore,
 Another's crimes th' unhappy hunter bore;
 Glutſing his father's eyes with guiltleſs gore. 1055 }
 But chafte Diana, who his death deplor'd,
 With Æſculapian herbs his life reſtor'd.
 When Jove, who ſaw from high, with juſt diſdain,
 The dead inſpir'd with vital breath again,
 Struck to the centre with his flaming dart, 1060
 Th' unhappy founder of the god-like art.
 But Trivia kept in ſecret ſhades alone,
 Her care, Hippolytus, to fate unknown;
 And call'd him Virbius in th' Egerian grove:
 Where then he liv'd obſcure, but ſafe from Jove. 1065
 For this, from Trivia's temple and her wood,
 Are courſers driven, who ſhed their maſter's blood; }
 Afrighted by the monſters of the flood,

His son, the second Virbius, yet retain'd
 His father's art, and warrior steeds he rein'd. 1070
 Amid the troops, and like the leading god,
 High o'er the rest in arms the graceful Turnus rode:
 A triple pile of plumes his crest adorn'd,
 On which, with belching flames, Chimæra burn'd:
 The more the kindled combat rises higher, 1075
 The more with fury burns the blazing fire.
 Fair Iō grac'd his shield, but Iō now
 With horns exalted stands, and seems to lowe:
 (A noble charge) her keeper by her side,
 To watch her walks, his hundred eyes apply'd. 1080
 And on the brims her fire, the watery god,
 Roll'd from a silver urn his crystal flood:
 A cloud of foot succeeds, and fills the fields
 With swords and pointed spears, and clattering shields:
 Of Argives, and of old Sicanian bands, 1085
 And those who plough the rich Satulian lands;
 Auruncan youth, and those Sacrana yields,
 And the proud Labicans, with painted shields.
 And those who near Numician streams reside,
 And those whom Tiber's holy forests hide; 1090 }
 Or Circe's hills from the main land divide:
 Where Ufens glide along the lowly lands,
 Or the black water of Pomptina stands.
 Last, from the Volscians fair, Camilla came;
 And led her warlike troops, a warrior dame: 1095
 Unbred to spinning, in the loom unskill'd,
 She chose the nobler Pallas of the field.

Mix'd.

And with the first, the fierce virago fought,
in'd the toils of arms, the danger fought:
ripp'd the winds in speed upon the plain, 1100
o'er the fields, nor hurt the bearded grain:
swept the seas, and as she skim'd along,
flying feet unbath'd on billows hung.
Boys, and women, stupid with surprize, re'er she passes, fix their wandering eyes: 1105 giving they look, and gaping at her sight, our her o'er and o'er with vast delight.
purple habit fits with such a grace her smooth shoulders, and so suits her face:
head with ringlets of her hair is crown'd; 1110
in a golden caul the curls are bound.
shakes her myrtle javelin; and, behind,
Lycian quiver dances in the wind.

THE ARGUMENT.

The war being now begun, both the generals make all possible preparations. Turnus sends to Diomedes. Æneas goes in person to beg succours from Evander, and the Tuscans. Evander receives him kindly, furnishes him with men, and sends his own son Pallas with him. Vulcan, at the request of Venus, makes arms for her son Æneas, and draws on his shield the most memorable actions of his posterity.

WHEN Turnus had assembled all his powers;
His standard planted on Laurentum's towers;
When now the sprightly trumpet, from afar,
Had given the signal of approaching war,
Had rous'd the neighing steeds to scour the fields, 5
While the fierce riders clatter'd on their shields, Trembling with rage, the Latian youth prepare
To join th' allies, and headlong rush to war.

Fierce

Ufens, and Meffapus, led the crowd;
 old Mezentius, who blasphem'd aloud. 10 through the country took their wasteful course;
 lds to forage, and to gather force,
 Æneas to Diomedes they send,
 his aid Ausonia to defend:
 the common danger, and inform 15
 Grecian leader of the growing storm:
 landed on the Latian coast,
 anish'd gods, and with a baffled host:
 w inspir'd to conquest of the state;
 him'd a title from the gods and fate. 20 numerous nations in his quarrel came,
 w they spread his formidable name:
 e design'd, what mischiefs might arise,
 ne favour'd his first enterprize,
 t for him to weigh, whose equal fears, 25
 mmon interest was involv'd in theirs.
 Turnus and th' allies thus urge the war, rojan, floating in a flood of care, } the tempest which his foes prepare, } ay and that he turns his anxious mind; 30
 , and rejects the counsels he design'd;
 s himself, in vain, in every part,
 ves no rest to his distracted heart.
 hen the sun by day, or moon by night,
 on the polish'd brass their trembling light, 35
 ittering species here and there divide, ft their dubious beams from side to side:

Now

Now on the walls, now on the pavement play,
 And to the cieling flash the glaring day.
 'Twas night: and weary nature lull'd asleep 40
 The birds of air, and fishes of the deep;
 And beast, and mortal men: the Trojan chief
 Was laid on Tiber's banks, oppress'd with grief,
 And found in silent slumber late relief. }
 Then through the shadows of the poplar wood 45
 Arose the father of the Roman flood:
 An azure robe was o'er his body spread,
 A wreath of shady reeds adorn'd his head:
 Thus, manifest to fight, the god appear'd,
 And with these pleasing words his sorrow cheer'd: 50
 Undoubted offspring of ethereal race,
 O long expected in this promis'd place,
 Who, through the foes, hast borne thy banish'd gods,
 Restor'd them to their hearths, and old abodes;
 This is thy happy home! The clime where fate 55
 Ordains thee to restore the Trojan state.
 Fear not, the war shall end in lasting peace;
 And all the rage of haughty Juno cease.
 And that this nightly vision may not seem
 Th' effect of fancy, or an idle dream, 60
 A fow beneath an oak shall lie along,
 All white herself, and white her thirty young.
 When thirty rolling years have run their race,
 Thy son, Ascanius, on this empty space
 Shall build a royal town, of lasting fame; 65
 Which from this omen shall receive the name.

Time

shall approve the truth. For what remains, with sure success to crown thy pains, patience next attend. A banish'd band, with Evander from th' Arcadian land, 70
 wanted here; and plac'd on high their walls;
 own the founder Palanteum calls:
 from Pallas, his great grandfire's name:
 fierce Latians old possession claim, ar infesting the new colony; 75
 make thy friends, and on their aid rely.
 free passage I submit my streams:
 son of Venus, from thy pleasing dreams:
 hen the setting stars are lost in day,
 y's power thy just devotion pay. 80
 crifice the wrathful queen appease:
 le at length shall fall, her fury cease:
 ou return'ft victorious from the war,
 thy vows to me with grateful care.
 I am I, whose yellow water flows 85
 these fields, and fattens as it goes:
 y name: among the rolling floods
 'd on earth, esteem'd among the gods.
 my certain feat: in times to come,
 es shall wash the walls of mighty Rome. 90
 ; and plung'd below, while yet he spoke, um Æneas and his sleep forfook.
 and looking up, beheld the skies
 rple blushing and the day arise.
 water in his hollow palm he took 95
 iper's flood; and thus the powers bespoke:

Laurentian

Laurentian nymphs, by whom the streams are fed,
 And father Tiber, in thy sacred bed
 Receive Æneas; and from danger keep.
 Whatever fount, whatever holy deep, 100
 Conceals thy watery stores; where'er they rise,
 And, bubbling from below, salute the skies,
 Thou king of horned floods, whose plenteous urn
 Suffices fatness to the fruitful corn,
 For this thy kind compassion of our woes, 105
 Shall share my morning song, and evening vows.
 But, oh! be present to thy people's aid;
 And firm the gracious promise thou hast made.
 Thus having said, two galleys, from his stores,
 With care he chooses; mans, and fits with oars. 110
 Now on the shore the fatal swine is found:
 Wondrous to tell; she lay along the ground:
 Her well-fed offspring at her udders hung;
 She white herself, and white her thirty young;
 Æneas takes the mother, and her brood, 115
 And all on Juno's altar are bestow'd.
 The following night, and the succeeding day,
 Propitious Tiber smooth'd his watery way:
 He roll'd his river back, and pois'd he stood:
 A gentle swelling, and a peaceful flood. 120
 The Trojans mount their ships; they put from shore:
 Borne on the waves, and scarcely dip an oar.
 Shouts from the land give omen to their course,
 And the pitch'd vessels glide with easy force.
 The woods and waters wonder at the gleam 125
 Of shields, and painted ships, that stem the stream.
 Que

One summer's night, and one whole day they pass
Betwixt the green-wood shades, and cut the liquid glass.

The fiery sun had finish'd half his race,

Look'd back, and doubted in the middle space, 130

When they from far beheld the rising towers,

The tops of sheds, and shepherds lowly bowers:

Thin as they stood, which then of homely clay,

Now rise in marble, from the Roman sway.

These cots (Evander's kingdom, mean and poor) 135

The Trojan saw, and turn'd his ships to shore.

'Twas on a solemn day: th' Arcadian states,

The king and prince without the city gates,

Then paid their offerings in a sacred grove

To Hercules, the warrior son of Jove. 140

Thick clouds of rolling smoke involve the skies;

And fat of entrails on his altar fries.

But when they saw the ships that stem'd the flood,

And glitter'd through the covert of the wood,

They rose with fear, and left th' unfinish'd feast: 145

Till dauntless Pallas re-affur'd the rest

To pay the rites. Himself, without delay,

A javelin seiz'd, and singly took his way.

Then gain'd a rising ground; and call'd from far:

Resolve me, strangers, whence, and what you are;

Your business here, and bring you peace or war? }

High on the stern, Æneas took his stand,

And held a branch of olive in his hand,

While thus he spoke: The Phrygians arms you see,

Expell'd from Troy, provok'd in Italy.

By

By Latian foes, with war unjustly made :
 At first affianc'd, and at last betray'd,
 This message bear: the Trojans and their chief,
 Bring holy peace, and beg the king's relief.
 Struck with so great a name, and all on fire, 160
 The youth replies, Whatever you require,
 Your fame exacts: upon our shores descend,
 A welcome guest, and, what you wish, a friend.
 He said; and downward hastening to the strand,
 Embrac'd the stranger prince, and join'd his hand.
 Conducted to the grove, Æneas broke
 The silence first, and thus the king bespoke:
 Best of the Greeks, to whom, by fate's command,
 I bear these peaceful branches in my hand,
 Undaunted I approach you; though I know 170
 Your birth is Grecian, and your land my foe:
 From Atreus though your ancient lineage came,
 And both the brother-kings your kindred claim,
 Yet, my self-conscious worth, your high renown,
 Your virtue, through the neighbouring nations blown,
 Our fathers mingled blood, Apollo's voice,
 Have led me hither, less by need than choice.
 Our founder Dardanus, as fame has sung,
 And Greeks acknowledge, from Electra sprung:
 Electra from the loins of Atlas came; 180
 Atlas whose head sustains the starry frame.
 Your sire is Mercury; whom long before
 On cold Cyllene's top fair Maja bore.
 Maja the fair, on fame if we rely,
 Was Atlas' daughter, who sustains the sky: 185
 Thus

om one common source our streams divide:
 the Trojan, yours th' Arcadian side.
 y these hopes, I sent no news before,
 'd your leave, nor did your faith implore; }
 e, without a pledge, my own ambassador. } ne Rutilians, who with arms pursue ojan race, are equal foes to you.
 oft expell'd, what farther force can stay for troops from univerfal sway?
 ill they stretch their power athwart the land;
 her sea from side to side command.
 our offer'd faith; and give us thine:
 a generous and experienc'd line:
 it not hearts nor bodies for the war;
 cil cautious, and in fields we dare. 200
 ; and while he spoke, with piercing eyes
 : view'd the man with vast surprize, with his action, ravish'd with his face,
 fwer'd briefly, with a royal grace :
 it leader of the Trojan line, 205
 n the features of thy father shine, recall Anchises, how I see tions, mien, and all my friend in thee!
 ough it be, 'tis fresh within my mind,
 'riam to his sister's court design'd 210
 me visit, with a friendly stay,
 ough th' Arcadian kingdom took his way.
 ast a boy, the callow down began
 e my chin, and call me first a man.
 . XXIII. R I saw

I saw the shining train, with vast delight, 215
 And Priam's goodly person pleas'd my sight;
 But great Anchises, far above the rest,
 With awful wonder fir'd my youthful breast.
 I long'd to join, in friendship's holy bands,
 Our mutual hearts, and plight our mutual hands. 220
 I first accosted him: I sued, I fought,
 And, with a loving force, to Phœsus brought.
 He gave me, when at length constrain'd to go,
 A Lycian quiver, and a Gnoſſian bow;
 A vest embroider'd, glorious to behold, 225
 And two rich bridles, with their bits of gold,
 Which my son's courſers in obedience hold.
 The league you ask I offer, as your right:
 And when to-morrow's sun reveals the light,
 With swift supplies you shall be sent away: 230
 Now celebrate, with us, this solemn day;
 Whose holy rites admit no long delay.
 Honour our annual feast; and take your seat
 With friendly welcome, at a homely treat.
 Thus having said, the bowls (remov'd for fear) 235
 The youths replac'd; and soon restor'd the cheer.
 On sods of turf he set the soldiers round;
 A maple throne, rais'd higher from the ground,
 Receiv'd the Trojan chief: and o'er the bed,
 A lion's shaggy hide for ornament they spread. 240
 The loaves were serv'd in canisters, the wine
 In bowls, the priest renew'd the rites divine:
 Broil'd entrails are their food, and beefs continued
 chine.

But,

ÆNEIS. BOOK VIII.

in the rage of hunger was repress'd, like Evander to his royal guest: 245
 these altars, and this feast, O king, vain fears, or superstition, spring;
 devotion, or from blinder chance;
 or zeal, or brutal ignorance:
 I from danger, with a grateful sense, 250
 yours of a god we recompense.
 How far, yon rock that mates the sky,
 whose feet such heaps of rubbish lie:
 neglected ruin; bleak and bare,
 what erst now it stands, expos'd in air! 255
 Once a robber's den; inclos'd around withing stone, and deep beneath the ground.
 The ster Cacus, more than half a beast,
 hid, impervious to the sun, possess'd.
 The pavement ever foul with human gore; 260 and their mangled members, hung the door.
 His plague begot: and, like his fire,
 would he belch'd, and flakes of livid fire.
 Long expected, cas'd us of our load:
 I might the needful presence of a god. 265
 My going force of Hercules, from Spain, in triumph, from Geryon slain;
 I had the giant, and thrice liv'd in vain. }
 But, the lowing herds, Alcides drove over the bank, to graze the shady grove. 270
 With hope of plunder, and intent to rob, by fraud to circumvent.

The brutal Cacus, as by chance they stray'd,
Four oxen thence, and four fair kine convey'd:
And, lest the printed footsteps might be seen,
He dragg'd them backwards to his rocky den:
The tracts averſe, a lying notice gave,
And led the ſearcher backward from the cave:
Mean time the herdsman hero ſhifts his place,
To find freſh paſture, and untrodden graſs:
The beaſts, who miſ'd their mates, fill'd all aro
With bellowings, and the rocks reſtor'd the ſound
One heifer, who had heard her love complain,
Roar'd from the cave, and made the project vain
Alcides found the fraud: with rage he ſhook,
And toſs'd about his head his knotted oak.
Swift as the winds, or Scythians arrows flight,
He clomb, with eager haſte, th' aërial height.
Then firſt we ſaw the monſter mend his pace:
Fear in his eyes, and paleneſs in his face,
Confes'd the god's approach: trembling he ſprings
As terror had increas'd his feet with wings:
Nor ſtay'd for ſtairs; but down the depth he thruſt
His body; on his back the door he drew.
The door, a rib of living rock; with pains
His father hew'd it out, and bound with iron ch
He broke the heavy links: the mountain clos'd,
And bars and levers to his foe oppos'd.
The wretch had hardly made his dungeon faſt;
The fierce avenger came with bounding haſte:
Survey'd the mouth of the forbidden hold;
And here and there his raging eyes he roll'd.

ush'd his teeth; and thrice he compass'd round ringed speed, the circuit of the ground.
 at the cavern's mouth he pull'd in vain, 305 wanting, thrice desisted from his pain. ted flinty rock, all bare, and black,
 gibbous from behind the mountain's back:
 ravens, all ill omens of the night,
 uilt their nests, and hither wing'd their flight.
 uing head hung threatening o'er the flood,
 dded to the left: the hero stood
 , with planted feet, and, from the right,
 l at the solid stone with all his might.
 eav'd, the fix'd foundations of the rock 315
 ay: heaven echo'd at the rattling shock.
 ing it chok'd the flood: on either side
 nks leap backward, and the streams divide:
 y shrunk upward with unusual dread;
 embling Tiber div'd beneath his bed. 320
 urt of Cacus stands reveal'd to fight; vern glares with new-admitted light.
 t the vapours with a rumbling sound from below, and rend the hollow ground:
 ding flaw succeeds: and, from on high, 325
 ds with hate beheld the nether sky:
 osts repine at violated night,
 rse th' invading sun, and sicken at the fight.
 aceless monster, caught in open day,
 d, and in despair to fly away, 330 horrible from underneath, and fills llow palace with unmanly yells.

The hero stands above; and from afar
 Plies him with darts, and stones, and distant war.
 He, from his nostrils and huge mouth, expires 335
 Black clouds of smoke, amidst his father's fires.
 Gathering, with each repeated blast, the night:
 To make uncertain aim, and erring fight.
 The wrathful god then plunges from above,
 And where in thickest waves the sparkles drove, 340
 Their lights; and wades through fumes, and gropes his
 way:
 Half sing'd, half stifled, till he grasp'd his prey.
 The monster, spewing fruitless flames, he found;
 He squeez'd his throat, he writh'd his neck around, }
 And in a knot his crippled members bound. 345 }
 Then, from their sockets, tore his burning eyes;
 Roll'd on a heap the breathless robber lies.
 The doors, unbarr'd, receive the rushing day,
 And thorough lights disclose the ravish'd prey.
 The bulls redeem'd, breathe open air again: 350
 Next, by the feet, they drag him from his den.
 The wondering neighbourhood, with glad surprise,
 Beheld his shagged breast, his giant size,
 His mouth that flames no more, and his extinguish'd } eyes. }
 From that auspicious day, with rites divine, 355
 We worship at the hero's holy shrine.
 Potitius first ordain'd these annual vows,
 As priests, were added the Pinarian house:
 Who rais'd this altar in the sacred shade,
 Where honours, ever due, for ever shall be paid. 360

For these deserts, and this high virtue shown,
 Ye warlike youths, your heads with garlands crown.
 Fill high the goblets with a sparkling flood:
 And, with deep draughts, invoke our common god.
 This said, a double wreath Evander twin'd: 365
 And poplars, black and white, his temples bind.
 Then brims his ample bowl: with like design
 The rest invoke the god, with sprinkled wine,
 Mean time the sun descended from the skies;
 And the bright evening-star began to rise. 370
 And now the priests, Potitius at their head,
 In skins of beasts invol'd, the long procession led;
 Held high the flaming tapers in their hands,
 As custom had prescrib'd their holy bands:
 Then with a second course the tables load; 375
 And with full chargers offer to the god.
 The Salii sing, and cense his altars round
 With Saban smoke; their heads with poplar bound.
 One choir of old, another of the young;
 To dance, and bear the burden of the song. 380
 The lay records the labour, and the praise,
 And all th' immortal acts of Hercules.
 First, how the mighty babe, when swath'd in bands,
 The serpents strangled with his infant hands.
 Then, as in years and matchless force he grew, 385
 Th' Oechalian walls, and Trojan overthrew.
 Besides a thousand hazards they relate,
 Procur'd by Juno's, and Euristheus' hate.
 Thy hands, unconquer'd hero, could subdue
 The cloud-born Centaurs, and the monster crew. 390

Nor thy resistless arm the bull withstood:
 Nor he the roaring terror of the wood.
 The triple porter of the Stygian feat,
 With lolling tongue, lay sawning at thy feet:
 And, seiz'd with fear, forgot thy mangled meat. }
 Th' infernal waters trembled at the fight;
 Thee, god, no face of danger could affright;
 Not huge Typhœus, nor th' unnumber'd snake,
 Increas'd with hissing heads, in Lerna's lake.
 Hail Jove's undoubted son! an added grace 400
 To heaven, and the great author of thy race,
 Receive the grateful offerings, which we pay,
 And smile propitious on thy solemn day.
 In numbers, thus, they sung: above the rest,
 The den, and death of Cacus crown the feast. 405
 The woods to hollow vales convey the sound;
 The vales to hills, and hills the notes rebound.
 The rites perform'd, the chearful train retire.
 Betwixt young Pallas, and his aged sire
 The Trojan pass'd, the city to survey; 410
 And pleasing talk beguil'd the tedious way.
 The stranger cast around his curious eyes:
 New objects viewing still, with new surprize.
 With greedy joy enquires of various things:
 And afts and monuments of ancient kings. 415
 Then thus the founder of the Roman towers:
 These woods were first the seat of sylvan powers,
 Of nymphs and fawns, and savage men, who took
 Their birth from trunks of trees and stubborn oak.

Nor

Nor law they knew, nor manners, nor the care
 Of labouring oxen, nor the shining share: }
 Nor arts of gain, nor what they gain'd to spare. }
 Their exercise the chace: the running flood Supply'd their thirst; the trees supply'd their food.
 Then Saturn came, who fled the power of Jove, 425
 Robb'd of his realms, and banish'd from above.
 The men, dispers'd on hills, to towns he brought;
 And laws ordain'd, and civil customs taught:
 And Latium call'd the land where safe he lay
 From his unduteous son, and his usurping sway. 430
 With his mild empire peace and plenty came:
 And hence the golden times deriv'd their name.
 A more degenerate and discolour'd age
 Succeeded this, with avarice and rage.
 Th' Ausonians, then, and bold Sicanians came; 435
 And Saturn's empire often chang'd the name.
 Then kings, gigantic Tiberis, and the rest,
 With arbitrary sway, the land oppress'd.
 For Tiber's flood was Albula before;
 Till, from the tyrant's fate, his name it bore. 440
 I last arriv'd, driv'n from my native home,
 By fortune's power, and fate's resistless doom.
 Long toss'd on seas, I fought this happy land:
 Warn'd by my mother nymph, and call'd by heaven's command. 445
 Thus, walking on, he spoke: and shew'd the gate,
 Since call'd Carmental by the Roman state;
 Where stood an altar, sacred to the name
 Of old Carmenta, the prophetic dame:

Who

Who to her son foretold th' Æthenean race,
 Sublime in fame, and Rome's imperial place. 450
 Then shews the forest, which in after-times,
 Fierce Romulus, for perpetrated crimes,
 A sacred refuge made: with this, the shrine
 Where Pan below the rocks had rites divine.
 Then tells of Argus' death, his murder'd guest, 455
 Whose grave and tomb his innocence attest.
 Thence, to the steep Tarpeian rock he leads;
 Now roof'd with gold; then thatch'd with homely reeds.

A reverend fear (such superstition reigns
 Among the rude) ev'n then possess'd the swains. 460
 Some god they knew, what god they could not tell,
 Did there amidst the sacred horror dwell.
 Th' Arcadians thought him Jove; and said they saw
 The mighty thunderer with majestic awe;
 Who shook his shield, and dealt his bolts around;
 And scatter'd tempests on the teeming ground.
 Then saw two heaps of ruins; once they stood
 Two stately towns, on either side the flood.
 Saturnia's and Janicula's remains:
 And either place the founder's name retains. 470
 Discouring thus together, they resort
 Where poor Evander kept his country court.
 They view'd the ground of Rome's litigious hall,
 Once oxen low'd, where now the lawyers bawl.
 Then, stooping, through the narrow gates they press'd,
 When thus the king address'd his Trojan guest:

Mean

as it is, this palace, and this door,
 'd Alcides, then a conqueror.
 o be poor: accept our homely food feasted him; and emulate a god. 480 underneath a lowly roof he led eary prince; and laid him on a bed:
 iffing leaves, with hides of bears o'erspread. }
 v night had shed her silver dews around, ith her sable wings embrac'd the ground, 485
 love's fair goddess, anxious for her son, tumults rising, and new wars begun)
 'd with her husband, in his golden bed, hese alluring words invokes his aid;
 hat her pleasing speech his mind may move, 490
 s each accent with the charms of love:
 cruel fate conspir'd with Grecian powers,
 el with the ground the Trojan towers;
 ot aid th' unhappy to restore;
 id the succour of thy skill implore; 495
 rg'd the labours of my lord in vain,
 ing empire longer to sustain.
 h I much ow'd to Priam's house; and more nger of Æneas did deplore.
 w, by Jove's command, and fate's decree, 500
 ce is doom'd to reign in Italy;
 umber suit I beg thy needful art,
 propitious power that rules my heart!
 her knees a suppliant for her son:
 etis and Aurora thou wert won

To forge impenetrable shields; and grace,
With fated arms, a less illustrious race.
Behold, what haughty nations are combin'd
Against the relics of the Phrygian kind:
With fire and sword my people to destroy;
And conquer Venus twice, in conquering Troy.
She said; and straight her arms, of snowy hue,
About her unresolving husband threw.
Her soft embraces soon infuse desire:
His bones and marrow sudden warmth inspire;
And all the godhead feels the wonted fire.
Not half so swift the rattling thunder flies,
Or forky lightnings flash along the skies.
The goddess, proud of her successful wiles,
And conscious of her form, in secret smiles.
Then thus, the power obnoxious to her charms,
Panting, and half dissolving in her arms:
Why seek you reasons for a cause so just:
Or your own beauties, or my love distrust?
Long since, had you requir'd my helpful hand,
Th' artificer and art you might command,
To labour arms for Troy; nor Jove, nor Fate,
Confin'd their empire to so short a date:
And, if you now desire new wars to wage,
My skill I promise, and my pains engage.
Whatever melting metals can conspire,
Or breathing bellows, or the forming fire,
Is freely your's: your anxious fears remove:
And think no task is difficult to love.

ÆNEIS. BOOK VIII. 353

he spoke: and, eager of her charms, 533
 h'd the willing goddess to his arms;
 er lap infus'd, he lay possess'd efire, and sunk to pleasing rest.
 en the night her middle race had rode,
 first slumber had refresh'd the god; 540
 : when early housewives leave the bed;
 ing embers on the hearth they spread;
 e lamp, and call the maids to rise, vning mouths, and with half-open'd eyes;

 rrupted keep their nuptial bed.

 l to Vulcan's name an isle there lay, Sicilia's coasts and Lipara, igh on smoking rocks; and deep below,
 v caves, the fires of Ætna glow.
 :lops here their heavy hammers deal; 555
 okes and hissings of tormented steel
 d around: the boiling waters roar;
 sky flames through fuming tunnels soar.
 the father of the fire, by night,
 i the brown air precipitates his flight. 560 eternal anvils here he found thren beating, and the blows go round:
 f pointless thunder now there lies:
 heir hands, to ripen for the skies:

These

These darts for angry Jove they daily cast; 584
 Consum'd on mortals with prodigious waste.
 Three ways of writhin rain, of fire three more,
 Of winged southern winds, and cloudy store
 As many parts, the dreadful mixture frame:
 And fears are added, and avenging flame. 570
 Inferior ministers for Mars repair
 His broken axle-trees and blunted war:
 And send him forth again with furbish'd arms,
 To wake the lazy war, with trumpets loud alarms.
 The rest refresh the scaly snakes that fold 575
 The shield of Pallas, and renew their gold.
 Full on the crest the Gorgon's head they place,
 With eyes that roll in death, and with distorted face.
 My sons, said Vulcan, set your talks aside;
 Your strength, and master-skill, must now be try'd.
 Arms for a hero forge: arms that require
 Your force, your speed, and all your forming fire.
 He said: they set their former work aside,
 And their new toils with eager haste divide.
 A flood of molten silver, brass, and gold, 585
 And deadly steel in the large furnace roll'd;
 Of this their artful hands a shield prepare;
 Alone sufficient to sustain the war.
 Seven orbs within a spacious round they close!
 One stirs the fire, and one the bellows blows. 590
 The hissing steel is in the smithy drown'd;
 The grot with beaten anvils groans around.
 By turns their arms advance, in equal time:
 By turns their hands descend, and hammers chime. . .
 They

in the glowing mass with crooked tongs:
 by work proceeds with rustic songs.
 at the Lemnian god's command, they urge labours thus, and ply th' Æolian forge, cheerful morn salutes Evander's eyes;
 the song of chirping birds invite to rise. 609
 he leaves his lowly bed; his buskins meet his ancles; sandals sheath his feet:
 he hangs his trusty sword upon his side;
 from his shoulder throws a panther's hide, and sends his kennel dogs before their master press'd: 605
 he is guard'd thus, he seeks his kingly guest.
 He asks of promis'd aid, he mends his pace;
 he stands Æneas in the middle space.
 Pallas did his fathers steps attend;
 and Æchates waited on his friend. 610
 Both in their hands: a secret seat they choose;
 and Æchates first their former talk renews.
 O wretched prince, I never can believe thy Trojan empire lost, while you survive.
 And th' assistance of a faithful friend: 615
 what succours I can send.
 My row kingdom, here the Tiber bounds;
 on her side the Latian state surrounds;
 our walls, and wastes our fruitful grounds. }
 My eighty nations I prepare to join 620 to yours, and aid your just design.
 I come, as by your better genius sent;
 my fortune seems to favour your intent.

Not

Not far from hence there stands a hilly town,
 Of ancient building and of high renown; 625
 Torn from the Tuscans by the Lydian race;
 Who gave the name of Cære to the place
 Once Agyllina call'd: it flourish'd long
 In pride of wealth, and warlike people strong:
 Till curs'd Mezentius, in a fatal hour, 630
 Assum'd the crown, with arbitrary power.
 What words can paint those execrable times;
 The subjects sufferings, and the tyrant's crimes!
 That blood, those murders, O ye gods! replace
 On his own head, and on his impious race: 635
 The living, and the dead, at his command
 Were coupled, face to face, and hand to hand:
 Till, chok'd with stench, in loath'd embraces ty'd,
 The lingering wretches pin'd away, and dy'd.
 Thus plung'd in ills, and meditating more; 640
 The people's patience try'd, no longer bore
 The raging monster: but with arms beset
 His house, and vengeance and destruction threat.
 They fire his palace: while the flame ascends,
 They force his guards, and execute his friends. 645
 He cleaves the crowd; and, favour'd by the night,
 To Turnus' friendly court directs his flight.
 By just revenge the Tuscans set on fire,
 With arms their king to punishment require:
 Their numerous troops, now muster'd on the strand,
 My counsel shall submit to your command.
 Their navy swarms upon the coast: they cry
 To hoist their anchors; but the gods deny.

icient augur, skill'd in future fate,
 hofe foreboding words refrains their hate: 655
 ve in arms, ye Lydian blood, the flower
 fcan youth, and choice of all their power, juft revenge againft Mezentius arms,
 k your tyrant's death by lawful arms;
 this; no native of our land may lead 660 owerful people: feek a foreign head.
 d with thefe words, in camps they ftill abide;
 ait, with longing looks, their promis'd guide.
 n, the Tufcan chief, to me has fent crown, and every regal ornament: 665
 opele join their own with his defire;
 ll; my conduct, as their king, require.
 e chill blood that creeps within my veins,
 ge, and lifelefs limbs unfit for pains, foul confcious of its own decay, 670
 forc'd me to refufe imperial fway.
 illas were more fit to mount the throne;
 oald, but he's a Sabine mother's fon;
 alf a native: but in you combine ily vigour, and a foreign line. 675
 : fate and fmiling fortune fhew the way,
 : the ready path to fovereign fway.
 aff of my declining days, my fon,
 nake your good or ill fuccels his own.
 iting fields from you fhall learn to dare: 680
 erve the hard apprenticeship of war.
 matchlefs courage and your conduct view;
 arly fhall begin t'admire and copy you.
 L. XXIII. S Besides,

Besides, two hundred horse he shall command:
 Though few, a warlike and well-chosen band. 685
 These in my name are lifted: and my son
 As many more has added in his own.
 Scarce had he said: Achates and his guest,
 With down-cast eyes, their silent grief express:
 Who, short of succours, and in deep despair, 690
 Shook at the dismal prospect of the war.
 But his bright mother, from a breaking cloud,
 To cheer her issue, thunder'd thrice aloud.
 Thrice forky lightning flash'd along the sky,
 And Tyrrhene trumpets thrice were heard on high.
 Then, gazing up, repeated peals they hear:
 And, in a heaven serene, resplendent arms appear;
 Reddening the skies, and glittering all around,
 The temper'd metals clash, and yield a silver sound.
 The rest stood trembling, struck with awe divine. 700
 Æneas only conscious to the sign,
 Presag'd th' event; and joyful view'd, above,
 Th' accomplish'd promise of the queen of love.
 Then, to th' Arcadian king: This prodigy
 (Dismiss your fear) belongs alone to me. 705
 Heaven calls me to the war: th' expected sign
 Is given of promis'd aids, and arms divine.
 My goddess-mother, whose indulgent care
 Forefaw the dangers of the growing war,
 This omen gave; when bright Vulcanian arms, 710
 Fated from force of steel by Stygian charms,
 Suspended, shone on high: she then forefhow'd
 Approaching fights, and fields to float in blood.

Turnus shall dearly pay for faith forsworn:
 And corpse and swords, and shields on Tiber borne,
 Shall choke his flood: now sound the loud alarms,
 And Latian troops prepare your perjur'd arms.
 He said, and, rising from his homely throne,
 The solemn rites of Hercules begun:
 And on his altars wak'd the sleeping fires: 720
 Then chearful to his household gods retires.
 There offers chosen sheep: th' Arcadian king
 And Trojan youth the same oblations bring.
 Next of his men, and ships, he makes review,
 Draws out the best and ablest of the crew. 725
 Down with the falling stream the refuse run,
 To raise with joyful news his drooping son.
 Steeds are prepar'd to mount the Trojan band,
 Who wait their leader to the Tyrrhene land.
 A sprightly courser, fairer than the rest, 730
 The king himself presents his royal guest.
 A lion's hide his back and limbs infold,
 Precious with studded works, and paws of gold.
 Fame through the little city spreads aloud
 Th' intended march, amid the fearful crowd: 735
 The matrons beat their breasts; dissolve in tears;
 And double their devotion in their fears.
 The war at hand appears with more affright:
 And rises every moment to the fight.
 Then, old Evander, with a close embrace, 740 Strain'd his departing friend; and tears o'erflow his face.

Would heaven, said he, my strength and youth rec
Such as I was beneath Præneste's wall,
Then when I made the foremost foes retire,
And set whole heaps of conquer'd shields on fire;
When Herilus in single fight I slew,
Whom with three lives Feronia did endure:
And thrice I sent him to the Stygian shore;
Till the last ebbing soul return'd no more:
Such if I stood renew'd, not these alarms,
Nor death, should rend me from my Pallas' arms:
Nor proud Mezentius thus unpunish'd boast,
His rapes and murders on the Tuscan coast.
Ye gods! and mighty Jove, in pity bring Relief, and hear a father, and a king.
If fate and you reserve those eyes to see
My son return with peace and victory;
If the lov'd boy shall bless his father's fight;
If we shall meet again with more delight;
Then draw my life in length, let me sustain,
In hopes of his embrace, the worst of pain.
But if your hard decrees, which, O! I dread,
Have doom'd to death his undeserving head,
This, O this very moment, let me die;
While hopes and fears in equal balance lie.
While yet possess of all his youthful charms,
I strain him close within these aged arms:
Before that fatal news my soul shall wound!
He said, and swooning, sunk upon the ground:
His servants bore him off; and softly laid
His languish'd limbs upon his homely bed.

The horsemen march; the gates are open'd wide;
 Æneas at their head, Achates by his side.
 Next these the Trojan leaders rode along,
 Last, follows in the rear, th' Arcadian throng. 775
 Young Pallas shone conspicuous o'er the rest;
 Gilded his arms, embroider'd was his vest.
 So, from the seas, exerts his radiant head
 The star, by whom the lights of heaven are led:
 Shakes from his rosy locks the pearly dew; 780
 Dispels the darkness, and the day renews.
 The trembling wives, the walls and turrets crowd;
 And follow, with their eyes, the dusty cloud:
 Which winds disperse by fits; and shew from far
 The blaze of arms, and shields, and shining war. 785
 The troops, drawn up in beautiful array,
 O'er healthy plains pursue the ready way.
 Repeated peals of shouts are heard around:
 The neighing coursers answer to the sound;
 And shake with horny hoofs the solid ground. 790 }
 A greenwood shade, for long religion known,
 Stands by the streams that wash the Tuscan town;
 Incompass'd round with gloomy hills above,
 Which add a holy horror to the grove.
 The first inhabitants, of Grecian blood, 795
 That sacred forest to Sylvanus vow'd:
 The guardian of their flocks and fields; they pay
 Their due devotions on his annual day.
 Not far from hence, along the river's side,
 In tents secure, the Tuscan troops abide! 800

By Tarchon led. Now, from a rising ground,
 Æneas cast his wondering eyes around;
 And all the Tyrrhene army had in fight,
 Stretch'd on the spacious plains from left to right.
 Thither his warlike train the Trojan led: 805
 Refresh'd his men, and weary horses fed.

Mean-time the mother-goddess, crown'd with charms,

Breaks through the clouds, and brings the fated arms.
 Within a winding vale she finds her son,
 On the cool river's banks, retir'd alone. 810
 She shews her heavenly form without disguise,
 And gives herself to his desiring eyes.

Behold, she said, perform'd in every part,
 My promise made; and Vulcan's labour'd art.
 Now seek, secure, the Latian enemy; 815
 And haughty Turnus to the field defy.

She said: and having first her son embrac'd,
 The radiant arms beneath an oak she plac'd.
 Proud of the gift, he roll'd his greedy sight
 Around the work, and gaz'd with vast delight. 820

He lifts, he turns, he poises, and admires
 The crested helm, that vomits radiant fires:
 His hands the fatal sword and corslet hold:
 One keen with temper'd steel, one stiff with gold.
 Both ample, flaming both, and beamy bright: 825
 So shines a cloud, when edg'd with adverse light.

He shakes the pointed spear: and longs to try
 The plaited cushions on his manly thigh:

But

most admires the shield's mysterious mould,
 | Roman triumphs rising on the gold. 830
 these, emboss'd, the heavenly smith had wrought
 t in the rolls of future time untaught) wars in order, and the race divine warriors, issuing from the Julian line.
 cave of Mars was dress'd with mossy greens: 835
 e, by the wolf, was laid the martial twins:
 pid on her swelling dugs they hung;
 foster-dam loll'd out her fawning tongue:
 r suck'd secure, while bending back her head, ick'd their tender limbs; and form'd them as they fed.

far from hence new Rome appears, with games
 cted for the rape of Sabine dames.
 pit rebounds with shrieks: a war succeeds,
 reach of public faith, and unexampled deeds.
 for revenge the Sabine troops contend: 845
 Romans there with arms the prey defend.
 y'd with tedious war, at length they cease;
 both the kings and kingdoms plight the peace.
 riendly chiefs, before Jove's altar stand;
 arm'd, with each a charger in his hand: 850
 ted fow for sacrifice is led;
 imprecations on the perjur'd head.
 this the traitor Metius, stretch'd between fiery steeds, is dragg'd along the green;
 ullus' doom: the brambles drink his blood; 855
 his torn limbs are left, the vultures' food.

There Porfenna to Rome proud Tarquin brings;
 And would by force restore the banish'd kings.
 One tyrant for his fellow-tyrant fights:
 The Roman youth assert their native rights. 860
 Before the town the Tuscan army lies:
 To win by famine, or by fraud surprize.
 Their king, half threatening, half disdain'g, stood:
 While Cocles broke the bridge; and stemm'd the flood:
 The captive maids there tempt the raging tide: 865
 Spac'd from their chains, with Clelia for their guide,
 High on a rock heroic Manlius stood;
 To guard the temple, and the temple's god.
 Then Rome was poor; and there you might behold
 The palace thatch'd with straw, now roof'd with gold. 870
 The silver goose before the shining gate
 There flew; and, by her cackle, sav'd the state.
 She told the Gauls approach: th' approaching Gauls,
 Obscure in night, ascend, and seize the walls.
 The gold, difsembled well their golden hair: 875
 And golden chains on their white necks they wear.
 Gold are their vests: long Alpine spears they wield:
 And their left arm sustains a length of shield.
 Hard by, the leaping Salian priests advance:
 And naked through the streets the mad Luperci dance
 In caps of wool. The targets dropt from heaven:
 Here modest matrons in soft litters driven,
 To pay their vows in solemn pomp appear:
 And odorous gums in their chaste hands they bear.

ice remov'd, the Stygian seats are seen: 885
 f the damn'd, and punish'd Cataline:
 on a rock the traitor; and around ries hissing from the nether ground.
 rom these, the happy souls he draws,
 ato's holy ghost dispensing laws. 890
 t the quarters flows a golden sea:
 ming surges, there, in silver play.
 ncing dolphins, with their tails, divide ittering waves, and cut the precious tide.
 he main, two mighty fleets engage 895
 brazen beaks oppos'd with equal rage.
 i surveys the well-disputed prize:
 e's watery plain with foamy billows fries.
 Cæsar, on the stern, in armour bright,
 eads the Romans and their gods to fight: 900
 amy temples shoot their flames afar;
 er his head is hung the Julian star.
 a seconds him, with prosperous gales;
 with propitious gods, his foes affails.
 l crown, that binds his manly brows, 905
 ppy fortune of the fight foreshows.
 g'd on the line oppos'd, Antonius brings ian aids, and troops of eastern kings.
 rabians near, and Bactrians from afar,
 gues discordant, and a mingled war. 910
 rich in gaudy robes, amidst the strife, fate follows him; th' Egyptian wife.
 g they fight: with oars, and forky prows,
 oth is gather'd; and the water glows.

It seems as if the Cyclades again 915
 Were rooted up, and jostled in the main;
 Or floating mountains, floating mountains meet:
 Such is the fierce encounter of the fleet.
 Fire-balls are thrown; and pointed javelins fly:
 The fields of Neptune take a purple dye. 920
 The queen herself, amidst the loud alarms,
 With cymbals tofs'd her fainting soldiers warms.
 Fool as she was; who had not yet divin'd
 Her cruel fate; nor saw the snakes behind.
 Her country gods, the monsters of the sky, 925
 Great Neptune, Pallas, and love's queen, defy.
 The dog Anubis barks, but barks in vain;
 Nor longer dares oppose th' æthereal train.
 Mars, in the middle of the shining shield,
 Is grav'd, and strides along the liquid field. 930
 The Diræ soufe from heaven, with swift descent:
 And Discord, dy'd in blood, with garments rent,
 Divides the peace: her steps Bellona treads,
 And shakes her iron rod above their heads.
 This seen, Apollo, from his Actian height, 935
 Pours down his arrows: at whose winged flight
 The trembling Indians and Egyptians yield:
 And soft Sabæans quit the watery field.
 The fatal mistress hoists her silken sails:
 And, shrinking from the fight, invokes the gales.
 Aghast she looks; and heaves her breast for breath:
 Panting, and pale with fear of future death.
 The god had figur'd her, as driven along
 By winds and waves, and scudding through the throng.

Just opposite, sad Nilus opens wide 945
 His arms, and ample bosom, to the tide.
 And spreads his mantle o'er the winding coast;
 In which he wraps his queen, and hides the flying host.
 The victor, to the god his thanks express'd:
 And Rome triumphant, with his presence blest'd.
 Three hundred temples in the town he plac'd;
 With spoils and altars every temple grac'd.
 Three shining nights, and three succeeding days,
 The fields resound<sup>d</sup> with shouts, the streets with praise, }
 The domes with songs, the theatres with plays.
 All altars flame: before each altar lies,
 Drench'd in his gore, the destin'd sacrifice.
 Great Cæsar sits sublime upon his throne;
 Before Apollo's porch, of Parian stone:
 Accepts the presents vow'd for victory; 960.
 And hangs the monumental crown on high.
 Vast crowds of vanquish'd nations march along,
 Various in arms, in habit, and in tongue.
 Here Mulciber assigns the proper place
 For Carians, and th' ungirt Numidian race; 965.
 Then ranks the Thracians in the second row;
 And Scythians, expert in dart and bow.
 And here the tam'd Euphrates humbly glides:
 And there the Rhine submits her swelling tides.
 And proud Araxes, whom no bridge could bind,
 The Danes' unconquer'd offspring march behind; }
 And Morini, the last of human kind.

These

These figures, on the shield divinely wrought,
By Vulcan labour'd, and by Venus brought,
With joy and wonder fill the hero's thought. 975
Unknown the names, he yet admires the grace;
And bears aloft the fame and fortune of his race.

Æneas, gone to seek th' Arcadian prince,
 Has left the Trojan camp without defence; 10
 And, short of succours there, employs his pains
 In parts remote to raise the Tuscan swains:
 Now snatch an hour that favours thy designs,
 Unite thy forces, and attack their lines.

This said, on equal wings she pois'd her weight, 15
 And form'd a radiant rainbow in her flight.

The Daunian hero lifts his hands and eyes,
 And thus invokes the goddess as she flies:
 Iris, the grace of heaven, what power divine
 Has sent thee down, through dusky clouds to shine? 20
 See they divide! immortal day appears;
 And glittering planets dancing in their spheres!
 With joy, these happy omens I obey;
 And follow to the war, the god that leads the way.

Thus having said, as by the brook he stood, 25
 He scoop'd the water from the crystal flood;
 Then, with his hands, the drops to heaven he throws,
 And loads the powers above with offer'd vows.

Now march the bold confederates through the plain;
 Well hors'd, well clad, a rich and shining train: 30
 Messapus leads the van; and in the rear,
 The sons of Tyrrheus in bright arms appear.
 In the main battle, with his flaming crest,
 The mighty Turnus towers above the rest:
 Silent they move; majestically flow,
 Like ebbing Nile, or Ganges in his flow. 35
 The Trojans view the dusty cloud from far;
 And the dark menace of the distant war.

Cæcus from the rampire saw it rise,
 Blackening the fields, and thickening through the skies.
 Then, to his fellows, thus aloud he calls:
 What rolling clouds, my friends, approach the walls?
 Arm, arm, and man the works: prepare your spears
 And pointed darts; the Latian host appears!
 Thus warn'd, they shut their gates; with shouts ascend
 The bulwarks, and, secure, their foes attend.
 For their wise general, with foreseeing care,
 Had charg'd them, not to tempt the doubtful war:
 Nor, though provok'd, in open fields advance;
 But close within their lines attend their chance: 50
 Unwilling, yet they keep the strict command;
 And fourly wait in arms the hostile band.
 The fiery Turnus flew before the rest,
 A pyc-ball'd steed of Thracian strain he prefs'd;
 His helm of massy gold; and crimson was his crest. }
 With twenty horse to second his designs,
 An unexpected foe, he fac'd the lines.
 Is there, he said, in arms who bravely dare
 His leader's honour, and his danger, share;
 Then, spurring on, his brandish'd dart he threw, 60
 In sign of war; applauding shouts ensue.
 Amaz'd to find a dastard race that run
 Behind the rampires, and the battle shun,
 He rides around the camp, with rolling eyes,
 And stops at every post; and every passage tries. 65
 So roams the nightly wolf about the fold,
 Wet with descending showers, and stiff with cold;
 He

He howls for hunger, and he grins for pain;
 His gnashing teeth are exercis'd in vain:
 And, impotent of anger, finds no way 70
 In his distended paws to grasp the prey.
 The mothers listen; but the bleating lambs
 Securely swig the dug beneath the dams.
 Thus ranges eager Turnus o'er the plain,
 Sharp with desire, and furious with disdain: 75
 Surveys each passage with a piercing sight;
 To force his foes in equal field to fight.
 Thus, while he gazes round, at length he spies
 Where, fenc'd with strong redoubts, their navy lies;
 Close underneath the walls: the washing tide 80
 Secures from all approach this weaker side.
 He takes the wish'd occasion; fills his hand
 With ready fires, and shakes a flaming brand:
 Urg'd by his presence, every soul is warm'd,
 And every hand with kindled fire is arm'd. 85
 From the fir'd pines the scattering sparkles fly;
 Fat vapours mix'd with flames involve the sky.
 What power, O Muses, could avert the flame
 Which threaten'd, in the fleet, the Trojan name!
 Tell: for the fact, through length of time obscure, 90
 Is hard to faith; yet shall the fame endure.
 'Tis said that, when the chief prepar'd his flight,
 And fell'd his timber from Mount Ida's height,
 The grandam goddess then approach'd her son,
 And with a mother's majesty begun: 95
 Grant me, she said, the sole request I bring,
 Since conquer'd heaven has own'd you for its king:

On Ida's brows, for ages past, there stood,
 With firs and maples fill'd, a shady wood:
 And on the summit rose a sacred grove, 100
 Where I was worship'd with religious love;
 These woods, that holy grove, my long delight,
 I gave the Trojan prince to speed his flight.
 Now fill'd with fear, on their behalf I come;
 Let neither winds o'erfet, nor waves intomb, 105
 The floating forests of the sacred pine;
 But let it be their safety to be mine.
 Then thus reply'd her awful son; who rolls
 The radiant stars, and heaven and earth controls:
 How dare you, mother, endless date demand, 110
 For vessels moulded by a mortal hand?
 What then is fate? Shall bold Æneas ride,
 Of safety certain, on th' uncertain tide?
 Yet what I can, I grant: when, wafted o'er,
 The chief is landed on the Latian shore, 115
 Whatever ships escape the raging storms,
 At my command shall change their fading forms
 To nymphs divine; and plow the watery way,
 Like Dotis and the daughters of the sea.
 To seal his sacred vow, by Styx he swore, 120
 The lake with liquid pitch, the dreary shore;
 And Phlegethon's innavigable flood,
 And the black regions of his brother god: }
 He said; and shook the skies with his imperial nod. }
 And now, at length, the number'd hours were come,
 Prefix'd by fate's irrevocable doom,

When the great mother of the gods was free
 To save her ships, and finish Jove's decree.
 First, from the quarter of the morn, there sprung,
 A light that sing'd the heavens, and shot along: 130
 Then from a cloud, fring'd round with golden fires,
 Were timbrels heard, and Berecynthian choirs:
 And last a voice, with more than mortal sounds,
 Both hosts, in arms oppos'd, with equal horror wound.
     O Trojan race, your needless aid forbear; 135
 And know my ships are my peculiar care.
 With greater ease the bold Rutulian may,
 With hissing brands, attempt to burn the sea,
 Than singe my sacred pines. But you, my charge,
 Loos'd from your crooked anchors, launch at large,
 Exalted each a nymph: forsake the sand,
 And swim the seas, at Cybele's command.
 No sooner had the goddesses ceas'd to speak,
 When lo, th' obedient ships their haufers break;
 And, strange to tell, like dolphins in the main, 145
 They plunge their prows, and dive, and spring again:
 As many beauteous maids the billows sweep,
 As rode before tall vessels on the deep.
 The foes surpriz'd with wonder, stood aghast,
 Messapus curb'd his fiery courser's haste; 150
 Old Tiber roar'd; and raising up his head,
 Call'd back his waters to their oozy bed.
 Turnus alone, undaunted, bore the shock;
 And with these words his trembling troops bespoke:
 These monsters for the Trojan's fate are meant, 155
 And are by Jove for black presages sent.

Let all the Tuscans all th' Arcadians join,
 Nor these, nor those, shall frustrate my design.
 Let them not fear the treasons of the night;
 The robb'd palladium, the pretended flight:
 Our onset shall be made in open light. 190
 No wooden engine shall their town betray,
 Fires they shall have around, but fires by day.
 No Grecian babes before their camp appear,
 Whom Hector's arms detain'd to the tenth tardy year.
 Now, since the sun is rolling to the west, 195
 Give me the silent night to needful rest:
 Refresh your bodies, and your arms prepare:
 The morn shall end the small remains of war.
 The post of honour to Messapus falls,
 To keep the nightly guard; to watch the walls; 200
 To pitch the fires at distances around,
 And close the Trojans in their scanty ground.
 Twice seven Rutulian captains ready stand:
 And twice seven hundred horse their chiefs command
 All clad in shining arms the works invest; 20
 Each with a radiant helm, and waving crest.
 Stretch'd at their length, they press the grassy ground
 They laugh, they sing, the jolly bowls go round:
 With lights and chearful fires renew the day;
 And pass the wakeful night in feasts and play. 21
 The Trojans, from above, their foes beheld;
 And with arm'd legions all the rampires fill'd:
 Seiz'd with affright, their gates they first explore;
 Join works to works with bridges; tower to tower:

Th

Thus all things needful for defence abound;
 Mnestheus and brave Serethus walk the round:
 Commission'd by their absent prince to share
 The common danger, and divide the care,
 The soldiers draw their lots; and, as they fall,
 By turns relieve each other on the wall. 220

Nigh were the foes their utmost guards advance
 To watch the gate, was warlike Nifus' chance.
 His father Hyrticus of noble blood;
 His mother was a huntress of the wood;
 And sent him to the wars; well could he bear 225
 His lance in fight, and dart the flying spear:
 But, better skill'd unerring shafts to send,
 Beside him stood Euryalus his friend.

Euryalus, than whom the Trojan host
 No fairer face, or sweeter air could boast. 230
 Scarce had the down to shade his cheeks begun;
 One was their care, and their delight was one.
 One common hazard in the war they shar'd;
 And now were both, by choice, upon the guard.

Then Nifus, thus: Or do the gods inspire 235
 This warmth, or make we gods of our desire?
 A generous ardour boils within my breast,
 Eager of action, enemy to rest;
 This urges me to fight, and fires my mind,
 To leave a memorable name behind. 240

Thou seest the foe secure. how faintly shine
 Their scatter'd fires! the most in sleep supine
 Along the ground, an easy conquest lie;
 The wakeful few the flaming flaggon ply:

All hush around. Now hear what I revolve; 245
 A thought unripe, and scarcely yet resolve.
 Our absent prince both camp and council mourn;
 By message both would hasten his return:
 If they confer what I demand on thee
 (For fame is recompence enough for me), 250
 Methinks beneath yon hill, I have espy'd
 A way that safely will my passage guide.
 Euryalus stood listening while he spoke;
 With love of praise, and noble envy struck;
 Then to his ardent friend expos'd his mind: 255 }
 All this alone, and leaving me behind,
 Am I unworthy, Nifus, to be join'd?
 Think'st thou I can my share of glory yield,
 Or send thee unassisted to the field?
 Not so my father taught my childhood arms; 260
 Born in a siege, and bred among alarms;
 Nor is my youth unworthy of my friend,
 Nor of the heaven-born hero I attend.
 The thing call'd life, with ease I can disclaim;
 And think it over-sold to purchase fame. 265
 Then Nifus, thus: Alas! thy tender years
 Would minister new matter to my fears:
 So may the gods, who view this friendly strife,
 Restore me to thy lov'd embrace with life,
 Condemn'd to pay my vows (as sure I trust) 270
 This thy request is cruel and unjust.
 But if some chance, as many chances are,
 And doubtful hazards in the deeds of war;

should reach my head, there let it fall, spare thy life; I would not perish all. 275 gloomy youth deserves a longer date;
 thou to mourn thy love's unhappy fate:
 for my mangled body from the foe;
 give it back, and funeral rites bestow.
 Hard fortune shall those dues deny, 280
 grant at least an empty tomb supply.
 Let not the widow's tears renew;
 Let a mother's curse my name pursue;
 Ours parent, who, for love of thee,
 from the coasts of friendly Sicily, 285 is committing to the seas and wind, every weary matron staid behind.
 Euryalus: You plead in vain,
 that protract the cause you cannot gain:
 Time delays, but haste. With that he wakes 290 each to his office takes.
 Hard reliev'd, the generous couple went to the council at the royal tent.
 Whom nature else forgot their daily care;
 To share, the common gift of nature, share: 295
 the Trojan peers, who wakeful fate had sent to council for th' endanger'd state.
 To give a message to their absent chief;
 To seek their distress, and beg a swift relief.
 In the camp a silent seat they chose, 300 and their clamour, and secure from foes, on their left arms their ample shields they bear,
 on their right reclin'd upon the bending spear.

Now Nifus and his friend approach the guard,
 And beg admiffion, eager to be heard; } 305
 Th' affair important, not to be deferr'd.
 Afcanius bids them be conducted in;
 Ordering the more experienc'd to begin.
 Then Nifus thus: Ye fathers, lend your ears,
 Nor judge our bold attempt beyond our years. } 310
 The foe, fecurely drench'd in fleep and wine,
 Neglect their watch; the fires but thinly fhine:
 And where the fmoke in cloudy vapours flies,
 Covering the plain, and curling to the fkie,
 Betwixt two paths, which at the gate divide, } 315
 Clofe by the fea, a paffage we have fpy'd,
 Which will our way to great Æneas guide.
 Expect each hour to fee him fafe again,
 Loaded with fpoils of foes in battle flain.
 Snatch we the lucky minute while we may: } 320
 Nor can we be miftaken in the way;
 For, hunting in the vales, we both have feen
 The rifing turrets, and the fream between:
 And know the winding courfe, with every ford.
 He ceas'd: and old Alethes took the word. } 325
 Our country gods, in whom our trust we place
 Will yet from ruin fave the Trojan race:
 While we behold fuch dauntlefs worth appear
 In dawning youth, and fouls fo void of fear.
 Then into tears of joy the father broke; } 330
 Each in his longing arms by turns he took:
 Panted, and paus'd; and thus again he fpoke: }

And last, a Latian field with fruitful plains,
 And a large portion of the king's domains.
 But thou, whose years are more to mine ally'd,
 No fate my vow'd affection shall divide 365
 From thee, heroic youth; be wholly mine:
 Take full possession; all my soul is thine.

One faith, one fame, one fate, shall both attend;
 My life's companion, and my bosom friend;
 My peace shall be committed to thy care, 370
 And to thy conduct my concerns in war.

Then thus the young Euryalus reply'd:
 Whatever fortune, good or bad, betide,
 The same shall be my age, as now my youth;
 No time shall find me wanting to my truth. 375

This only from your goodness let me gain
 (And this ungranted, all rewards are vain):
 Of Priam's royal race my mother came,
 And sure the best that ever bore the name:
 Whom neither Troy, nor Sicily could hold 380
 From me departing, but, o'erspent, and old,
 My fate she follow'd; ignorant of this,
 Whatever danger, neither parting kiss,
 Nor pious blessing taken, her I leave;
 And, in this only act of all my life deceive. 385

By this right hand, and conscious night, I swear,
 My soul so sad a farewell could not bear.
 Be you her comfort; fill my vacant place
 (Permit me to presume so great a grace).
 Support her age, forsaken and distress'd; 390
 That hope alone will fortify my breast

the worst of fortunes, and of fears,
 the mov'd assistants melt in tears.
 Ascanius (wonder-struck to see the sign of his filial piety): 395
 the beginnings, in so green an age,
 the faith, which I again engage.
 For all the dues shall justly claim
 I; and only want the name.
 My event thy bold attempt shall have, 400
 to have borne a son so brave.
 My head, a sacred oath, I swear, for us'd it) what returning here with success, I for thyself prepare, should thou fail, shall thy lov'd mother share. 405
 ; and, weeping while he spoke the word,
 his broad belt he drew a shining sword, set it with gold. Lycaon made,
 his ivory scabbard sheath'd the blade:
 his gift: great Menestheus gave his friend his side, his body to defend:
 Alethes furnish'd him beside,
 his own trusty helm, of temper try'd.
 When arm'd they went. The noble Trojans wait ing forth, and follow to the gate. 415
 Their oaths and vows, above the rest appears so manly far beyond his years.
 Their cares committed to their care,
 their ships in winds were lost, and flitting air.
 In niches first they pass'd; then took their way their proud foes in pitch'd pavilions lay;

To many fatal, ere themselves were slain :
 They found the careless host dispers'd upon the plain.
 Who, gorg'd, and drunk with wine, supinely snore:
 Unharnas'd chariots stand along the shore: 42
 Amidst the wheels and reins, the goblet by,
 A medley of debauch and war they lie.
 Observing Nisus shew'd his friend the fight;
 Behold a conquest gain'd without a fight.
 Occasion offers, and I stand prepar'd; 43
 There lies our way; be thou upon the guard,
 And look around, while I securely go,
 And hew a passage through the sleeping foe.
 Softly he spoke; then, striding, took his way,
 With his drawn sword, where haughty Rhamnes lay:
 His head rais'd high, on tapestry beneath,
 And heaving from his breast, he drew his breath:
 A king and prophet by king Turnus lov'd;
 But fate by prescience cannot be remov'd;
 Him, and his sleeping slaves, he slew. Then spies 44
 Where Rhemus, with his rich retinue, lies:
 His armour-bearer first, and next he kills
 His charioteer, intrench'd betwixt the wheels;
 And his lov'd horses: last invades their lord;
 Full on his neck he drives the fatal sword: 44
 The gasping head flies off; a purple flood
 Flows from the trunk, that welters in the blood:
 Which, by the spurning heels, dispers'd around,
 The bed besprinkles, and bedews the ground.
 Lamus the bold, and Lamyrus the strong, 45
 He slew; and then Serranus fair and young.

From dice and wine the youth retir'd to rest,
 And puff'd the fummy god from out his breast:
 Ev'n then he dreamt of drink and lucky play;
 More lucky had it lasted till the day. 455

The famish'd lion thus, with hunger bold,
 O'erleaps the fences of the nightly fold;
 And tears the peaceful flocks; with silent awe
 Trembling they lie, and pant beneath his paw.

Nor with less rage Euryalus employs 460
 The wrathful sword, or fewer foes destroys:
 But on th' ignoble crowd his fury flew:
 He Fadius, Hebeſus, and Rhætus flew.

Oppress'd with heavy sleep the former fall,
 But Rhætus, wakeful, and observing all, 465
 Behind a spacious jar he slink'd for fear:
 The fatal iron found, and reach'd him there.

For, as he rose, it pierc'd his naked side,
 And, reeking, thence return'd in crimson dy'd.
 The wound pours out a stream of wine and blood: 470
 The purple soul comes floating in the flood.

Now where Messapus quarter'd they arrive;
 The fires were fainting there, and just alive.
 The warrior-horses tied in order fed;
 His observ'd the discipline, and said, 475

Your eager thirst of blood may both betray;
 And see the scatter'd streaks of dawning day,
 Due to nocturnal thefts: no more, my friend,
 Here let our glutt'd execution end:

Advance through slaughter'd bodies we have made: 480
 He bold Euryalus, though loth, obey'd.

Of arms, and arras, and of plate they find
 A precious load; but these they leave behind.
 Yet, fond of gaudy spoils, the boy would stay
 To make the rich caparison his prey, } 485
 Which on the steed of conquer'd Rhamnes lay.
 Nor did his eyes less longingly behold
 The girdle belt, with nails of burnish'd gold.
 This present Cedicus the rich bestow'd
 On Remulus, when friendship first they vow'd: } 490
 And absent, join'd in hospitable ties;
 He dying, to his heir bequeath'd the prize:
 Till by the conquering Ardean troops oppress'd,
 He fell; and they the glorious gift possess'd.
 These glittering spoils (now made the victor's gain)
 He to his body suits; but suits in vain.
 Messapus' helm he finds among the rest,
 And laces on, and wears the waving crest.
 Proud of their conquest, prouder of their prey,
 They leave the camp, and take the ready way. } 500
 But far they had not pass'd, before they spy'd
 Three hundred horse with Volscens for their guide.
 The queen a legion to king Turnus sent,
 But the swift horse the slower foot prevent: }
 And now, advancing, fought the leader's tent. } 505
 They saw the pair; for through the doubtful shade
 His shining helm Euryalus betray'd,
 On which the moon with full reflection play'd. }
 'Tis not for nought, cry'd Volscens, from the crowd,
 These men go there; then rais'd his voice aloud: } 510

 ightless force to free the captive boy: 540

Or desperate should he rush and lose his life,
 With odds oppress, in such unequal strife?
 Resolv'd at length, his pointed spear he took;
 And casting on the moon a mournful look,
 Guardian of groves, and goddess of the night, 545
 Fair queen, he said, direct my dart aright:
 If e'er my pious father for my sake,
 Did grateful offerings on thy altars make;
 Or I increas'd them with my sylvan toils,
 And hung the holy roofs with savage spoils,
 Give me to scatter these. Then from his ear
 He pois'd, and aim'd, and launch'd the trembling spear.
 The deadly weapon, hissing from the grove,
 Impetuous on the back of Sulmo drove;
 Pierc'd his thin armour, drank his vital blood, 555
 And in his body left the broken wood.
 He staggers round; his eye-balls roll in death,
 And with short sobs he gasps away his breath.
 All stand amaz'd; a second javelin flies
 With equal strength, and quivers through the skies:
 This through thy temples, Tagus, forc'd the way,
 And in the brain-pan warmly buried lay.
 Fierce Volscens foams with rage, and gazing round,
 Descry'd not him who gave the fatal wound:
 Nor knew to fix revenge: But thou, he cries, 565
 Shalt pay for both, and at the prisoner flies
 With his drawn sword. Then struck with deep despair,
 That cruel fight the lover could not bear:
 But from his covert rush'd in open view,
 And sent his voice before him as he flew:

he cry'd, turn all your swords alone
 he fact confests'd, the fault my own.
 r could nor durst, the guiltless youth;
 and stars, bear witness to the truth!
 crime (if friendship can offend) 575
 ch love to his unhappy friend.

he speaks; the sword, which fury guides,
 ith full force, had pierc'd his tender sides.
 l the beauteous youth; the yawning wound
 it a purple stream, and stain'd the ground.
 r neck reclines upon his breast,
 r flower by the keen share oppres'd:
 uite poppy sinking on the plain,
 avy head is overcharg'd with rain.

and rage, and vengeance justly vow'd, 585
 fus headlong on the hostile crowd:
 he seeks: on him alone he bends;
 k, and bor'd, by his surrounding friends,
 e pres'd; and kept him still in fight;
 rl'd aloft his sword with all his might: 590
 ing steel descended while he spoke is wide mouth, and through his weazen
 oke:

flew; and, staggering on the plain,
 nming eyes he fought his lover slain:
 et on his bleeding bosom fell; 595
 n death to be reveng'd so well.
 y friends! for, if my verse can give life, your fame shall ever live:

Fix'd as the capitol's foundation lies;
 And spread where'er the Roman eagle flies! 600

The conquering party first divide the prey,
 Then their slain leader to the camp convey.
 With wonder, as they went, the troops were fill'd,
 To see such numbers whom so few had kill'd.

Serranus, Rhamnes, and the rest they found: 605 }
 Vast crowds the dying and the dead surround:
 And the yet reeking blood o'erflows the ground. }

All knew the helmet which Messapus lost;
 But mourn'd a purchase that so dear had cost.
 Now rose the ruddy morn from Tithon's bed; 610
 And, with the dawn of day, the skies o'erspread.
 Nor long the sun his daily course withheld,
 But added colours to the world reveal'd.

When early Turnus, wakening with the light,
 All clad in armour, calls his troops to fight. 615

His martial men with fierce harangues he fir'd;
 And his own ardour in their souls inspir'd.

This done, to give new terror to his foes,
 The heads of Nifus, and his friend he shows,
 Rais'd high on pointed spears: a ghastly fight; 620
 Loud peals of shouts ensue, and barbarous delight.

Meantime the Trojans run, where danger calls:
 They line their trenches, and they man their walls:
 In front extended to the left they stood:
 Safe was the right surrounded by the flood. 625

But casting from their towers a frightful view,
 They saw the faces which too well they knew;

then disguis'd in death, and smear'd all o'er the obscene, and dropping putrid gore, thy fame, through the sad city bears 630
 mournful message to the mother's ears:
 cold benumbs her limbs: she shakes:
 shecks the blood, her hand the web forfakes.
 she the rampires round amidst the war,
 she sees the flying darts: she rends her hair, 635 }
 she with loud laments the liquid air.
 When, my lov'd Euryalus appears!
 she looks the prop of my declining years!
 she on this face my famish'd eyes I fed!
 she unlike the living is the dead! 640
 sheild'st thou leave me, cruel, thus alone,
 she kind kifs from a departing son!
 she, no last adieu before he went,
 she foreboding hour to slaughter sent!
 she on the ground, and pressing foreign clay, 645
 she an dogs and fowls he lies a prey!
 she I near to close his dying eyes,
 she on his wounds, to weep his obsequies:
 she about his corpse his crying friends,
 she on the mantle (made for other ends) 650
 she dear body, which I wove with care,
 she on my daily pains, or nightly labour spare.
 she shall I find his corpse? What earth sustains she look dismember'd, and his cold remains?
 she, alas! I left my needful ease, 655
 she on my life to winds, and winter seas!

If any pity touch Rutulian hearts,
 Here empty all your quivers, all your darts:
 Or if they fail, thou Jove conclude my woe,
 And send me thunder-struck to shades below! 660

Her shrieks and clamours pierce the Trojans ears,
 Unman their courage, and augment their fears:
 Nor young Ascanius could the fight sustain,
 Nor old Ilioneus his tears restrain:
 But Aëtor and Idæus, jointly sent, 665
 To bear the madding mother to her tent.

And now the trumpets, terribly from far,
 With rattling clangor, rouse the sleepy war.
 The soldiers shouts succeed the brazen sounds
 And heaven, from pole to pole, their noise rebounds.
 The Volscians bear their shields upon their head, 671
 And, rushing forward, form a moving shed;
 These fill the ditch; those pull the bulwarks down:
 Some raise the ladders; others scale the town.

But where void spaces on the walls appear, 675
 Or thin defence, they pour their forces there.
 With poles and missive weapons, from afar,
 The Trojans keep aloof the rising war.

Taught by their ten years siege defensive fight,
 They roll down ribs of rocks, and unresisted weight:
 To break the penthouse with the ponderous blow;
 Which yet the patient Volscians undergo.

But could not bear th' unequal combat long;
 For where the Trojans find the thickest throng,
 The ruin falls: their shatter'd shields give way, 685
 And their crush'd heads became an easy prey.

They

They shrink for fear, abated of their rage, for longer dare in a blind fight engage;
 contented now to gall them from below
 With darts and slings, and with the distant bow. 690

Elsewhere Mezentius, terrible to view, blazing pine within the trenches threw.
 It brave Messapus, Neptune's warlike son, roke down the palisades, the trenches won,
 and loud for ladders calls to scale the town. 695 }

Calliope begin: ye sacred nine,
 inspire your poet in his high design;
 do sing what slaughter manly Turnus made:
 'thas souls he sent below the Stygian shade:
 'thas fame the soldiers with their captain share, 700
 and the vast circuit of the fatal war.

Or you in singing martial facts excel;
 you best remember; and alone can tell.

There stood a tower, amazing to the sight, built up of beams; and of stupendous height; 705 its art, and the nature of the place, conspir'd to furnish all the strength that war requir'd.

To level this, the bold Italians join;

the wary Trojans obviate their design:

With weighty stones o'erwhelm'd their troops below,
 root through the loop-holes, and sharp javelins throw.
 Turnus, the chief, toss'd from his thundering hand,
 gainst the wooden walls, a flaming brand:

Stuck, the fiery plague: the winds were high;
 the planks were season'd, and the timber dry. 715

Contagion caught the posts: it spread along,
 Scorch'd, and to distance drove the scatter'd throng.
 The Trojans fled; the fire pursu'd amain,
 Still gathering fast upon the trembling train;
 Till, crowding to the corners of the wall, 720
 Down the defence, and the defenders fall.
 The mighty flaw makes heaven itself resound,
 The dead and dying Trojans strew the ground.
 The tower that follow'd on the fallen crew,
 Whelm'd o'er their heads, and bury'd whom it slew:
 Some stuck upon the darts themselves had sent;
 All the same equal ruin underwent.

Young Lycus and Helenor only 'scape; ●
 Sav'd how they know not, from the steepy leap.
 Helenor, elder of the two; by birth, 730
 On one side royal, one a son of earth,
 Whom, to the Lydian king, Lycimnia bare,
 And sent her boasted bastard to the war
 A privilege which none but freemen share) }
 Slight were his arms, a sword and silver shield, 735
 No marks of honour charg'd its empty field.
 Light as he fell, so light the youth arose,
 And, rising, found himself amidst his foes.
 Nor flight was left, nor hopes to force his way;
 Embolden'd by despair, he stood at bay: 740
 And like a stag, whom all the troop surrounds
 Of eager huntsmen, and invading hounds,
 Resolv'd on death, he dissipates his fears,
 And bounds aloft against the pointed spears:

So

o dares the youth, secure of death, and throws 745 his dying body on his thickest foes.

But Lycus, swifter of his feet by far,
runs, doubles, winds, and turns, amidst the war:
rings to the walls, and leaves his foes behind,
and snatches at the beam he first can find. 750

Looks up, and leaps aloft at all the stretch, hopes the helping hand of some kind friend to reach.

But Turnus follow'd hard his hunted prey his spear had almost reach'd him in the way, short of his reins, and scarce a span behind): 755

Oh, said the chief, though fleetest than the wind, would'st thou presume to 'scape when I pursue?

He said, and downward by the feet he drew the trembling dastard: at the tug he falls,

as if ruins come along, rent from the smoking walls.

As if on some silver swan, or timorous hare, 761

as when the eagle's bird comes sou'ring down from upper air;

as when his crooked talons trust the fearful fray:

He runs out of sight she soars, and wings her way.

As he seizes the grim wolf the tender lamb, 765

as when the lion vain laments by the bleating dam.

Then rushing onward, with a barbarous cry,

as if the troops of Turnus to the combat fly.

As if the ditch with faggots fill'd, the daring foe

as if he cast his brands to the steepy turrets throw. 770

As when Pelion, as bold Lucetius came to force the gate, and feed the kindling flame, as if he'd down the fragment of a rock so right,

as if he'd rush'd him double underneath the weight.

Two more young Liger and Afylas flew; 775 }
 To bend the bow young Liger better knew : } Afylas best the pointed javelin threw.
 Brave Cæneas laid Ortygius on the plain;
 The victor Cæneas was by Turnus slain.
 By the same hand, Clonius and Itys fall, 780
 Sagar and Ida, standing on the wall.
 From Capys' arms his fate Privernus found;
 Hurt by Themilla first; but slight the wound;
 His shield thrown by, to mitigate the smart,
 He clapp'd his hand upon the wounded part: 785
 The second shaft came swift and unesp'y'd,
 And pierc'd his hand, and nail'd it to his side:
 Transfix'd his breathing lungs, and beating heart;
 The soul came issuing out, and hiss'd against the dart.
 The son of Arcens shone amid the rest, 790
 In glittering armour and a purple vest.
 Fair was his face, his eyes inspiring love,
 Bred by his father in the Martian grove:
 Where the fat altars of Palicus flame,
 And sent in arms to purchase early fame. 795
 Him when he spy'd from far, the Thuscan king
 Laid by the lance, and took him to the sling:
 Thrice whirl'd the thong around his head, and threw:
 The heated lead half melted as it flew:
 It pierc'd his hollow temples and his brain; 800
 The youth came tumbling down, and spurn'd the plain.
 Then young Ascanius, who before this day
 Was wont in woods to shoot the savage prey,

First

irst bent in martial strife the twanging bow ;
 and exercis'd against a human foe. 805
 With this bereft Numanus of his life,
 Who Turnus' younger sister took to wife.
 'roud of his realm, and of his royal bride,
 'aunting before his troops, and lengthen'd with a }
     a stride,
 At these insulting terms the Trojans he defy'd: 810 }
 'twice conquer'd cowards, now your shame is shown,
 oop'd up a second time within your town!
 Who dare not issue forth in open field,
 At hold your walls before you for a shield.
 Thus threat you war, thus our alliance force! 815
 That gods, what madness hither steer'd your course!
 You shall not find the sons of Atreus here,
 Nor need the frauds of sly Ulysses fear.
 Long from the cradle, of a sturdy brood,
 We bear our new-born infants to the flood; 820
 Here bath'd amid the stream, our boys we hold,
 With winter harden'd, and inur'd to cold.
 They wake before the day to range the wood,
 Ere they eat, nor taste unconquer'd food.
 Sports but what belong to war they know, 825
 To break the stubborn colt, to bend the bow.
 Their youth, of labour patient, earn their bread;
 Hardly they work, with frugal diet fed.
 From ploughs and harrows sent to seek renown,
 They fight in fields, and storm the shaken town. 830
 No part of life from toils of war is free;
 No change in age, or difference in degree.

We plough, and till in arms; our oxen feel,
 Instead of goads, the spur, and pointed steel:
 Th' inverted lance makes furrows in the plain; 835
 Ev'n time, that changes all, yet changes us in vain:
 The body, not the mind: nor can control
 Th' immortal vigour, or abate the foul.
 Our helms defend the young, disguise the grey:
 We live by plunder, and delight in prey. 840
 Your vests embroider'd with rich purple shine;
 In sloth you glory, and ♀ dances join.
 Your vests have sweeping sleeves: with female pride
 Your turbans underneath your chins are ty'd.
 Go Phrygians, to your Dindymus agen; 845
 Go, less than women, in the shapes of men;
 Go, mix'd with eunuchs, in the mother's rites,
 Where with unequal sound the flute invites.
 Sing, dance, and howl, by turns, in Ida's shade;
 Refign the war to men, who know the martial trade.
 This foul reproach Ascanius could not bear 851
 With patience, or a vow'd revenge forbear.
 At the full stretch of both his hands, he drew,
 And almost join'd the horns of the tough eugh.
 But first, before the throne of Jove he stood: 855
 And thus with lifted hands invoc'd the god:
 My first attempt, great Jupiter, succeed;
 An annual offering in thy grove shall bleed:
 A snow-white steer before thy altar led,
 Who like his mother bears aloft his head, 860
 But with his threatening brows, and bellowing stands,
 And dares the fight, and spurns the yellow sands. [love

Love bow'd the heavens, and lent a gracious ear,
 And thunder'd on the left, amidst the clear.
 He bent at once the bow; and swiftly flies 865
 The feather'd death, and hisses through the skies.
 He pierc'd through both his temples forc'd the way:
 He fell on the ground Numanus lay.
 Now, vain boaster, and true valour scorn;
 O Phrygians, twice subdued, yet make this third Return. 870

Numanus said no more: the Trojans shake
 The heavens with shouting, and new vigour take.
 Apollo then bestrode a golden cloud,
 To view the feats of arms, and fighting crowd;
 Thus the beardless victor, he bespoke aloud: 875
 Advance, illustrious youth; increase in fame,
 And wide from east to west extend thy name.
 The praise of gods thyself; and Rome shall owe
 To thee, a race of demigods below.
 This is the way to heaven: the powers divine, 880
 From this beginning date the Julian line.
 To thee, to them, and their victorious heirs,
 Conquer'd war is due: and the vast world is theirs.
 My name is too narrow for thy name. He said,
 And plunging downward, shot his radiant head; 885
 He pierc'd the breathing air that broke his flight,
 And from his beams, a man to mortal fight.
 Butes' form he took, Anchises' squire,
 He left to rule Ascanius, by his fire;
 His wrinkled visage, and his hoary hairs, 890
 His mien, his habit, and his arms he wears;
 Thus salutes the boy, too forward for his years:

Suffice

Suffice it thee, thy father's worthy son,
 The warlike prize thou hast already won :
 The god of archers gives thy youth a part 895
 Of his own praise; nor envies equal art.
 Now tempt the war no more. He said, and flew Obscure in air, and vanish'd from their view.
 The Trojans, by his arms, their patron know;
 And hear the twanging of his heavenly bow. 900
 Then duteous force they use, and Phœbus' name,
 To keep from fight the youth too fond of fame.
 Undaunted they themselves no danger shun :
 From wall to wall the shouts and clamours run:
 They bend their bows; they whirl their slings around: }
 Heaps of spent arrows fall, and strew the ground; }
 And helmets, and shields, and rattling arms resound. }
 The combat thickens like the storm that flies
 From westward, when the showery kids arise:
 Or pattering hail comes pouring on the main, 910
 When Jupiter descends in harden'd rain:
 Or bellowing clouds burst with a stormy sound,
 And with an armed winter strew the ground.
 Pand'rus and Bitias, thunder-bolts of war,
 Whom Hiera to bold Alcanor bare 915
 On Ida's top, two youths of height and size,
 Like firs that on their mother-mountain rise;
 Prefuming on their force, the gates unbar,
 And of their own accord invite the war.
 With fates averse, against their king's command, 920
 Arm'd on the right and on the left they stand,
 And

And flank the passage: shining steel they wear,
 And waving crests above their heads appear.
 Thus two tall oaks, that Padus' banks adorn,
 Lift up to heaven their leafy heads unshorn;      925
 And overpres'd with nature's heavy load,
 Dance to the whistling winds, and at each other nod.
 In flows a tide of Latians, when they see
 The gate set open, and the passage free.
 Bold Quercens, with rash Tmarus rushing on,      930
 Equicolas, who in bright armour shone,
 And Hæmon first, but soon repuls'd they fly,
 Or in the well-defended pass they die.
 These with success are fir'd, and those with rage;
 And each, on equal terms at length, engage.      935
 Drawn from their lines, and issuing on the plain,
 The Trojans hand to hand the fight maintain.

Fierce Turnus in another quarter fought,
 When suddenly th' unhop'd-for news was brought;
 The foes had left the fastness of their place,      940
 Prevail'd in fight, and had his men in chace.
 He quits th' attack, and, to prevent their fate,
 Runs, where the giant brothers guard the gate.
 The first he met, Antiphates the brave,
 But base-begotten on a Theban slave;      945
 Sarpedon's son he slew: the deadly dart Found passage through his breast, and pierc'd his heart.
 Fix'd in the wound th' Italian cornel stood;
 Warm'd in his lungs, and in his vital blood.

Aphidnus

Aphidnus next, and Erymanthus dies, 950 }
 And Meropes, and the gigantic size
 Of Bitias, threatening with his ardent eyes. }
 Not by the feeble dart he fell oppress'd,
 A dart were lost within that roomy breast,
 But from a knotted lance, large, heavy, strong; 955
 Which roar'd like thunder as it whirl'd along:
 Not two bull-hides th' impetuous force withhold;
 Nor coat of double mail, with scales of gold.
 Down sunk the monster-bulk, and press'd the ground:
 His arms and clattering shield on the vast body found.
 Not with less ruin, than the Bajan mole
 (Rais'd on the seas the surges to control),
 At once comes tumbling down the rocky wall,
 Prone to the deep the stones disjointed fall
 Off the vast pile; the scatter'd ocean flies; 965
 Black sands, discolour'd froth, and mingled mud arise.
 The frighted billows roll, and seek the shores:
 Then trembles Prochyta, then Ischia roars:
 Typhœus thrown beneath, by Jove's command,
 Astonish'd at the flaw that shakes the land, 970
 Soon shifts his weary side, and, scarce awake,
 With wonder feels the weight press lighter on his back.
 The warrior-god the Latian troops inspir'd;
 New strung their sinews, and their courage fir'd,
 But chills the Trojan hearts with cold affright: 975
 Then black despair precipitates their flight.
 When Pandarus beheld his brother kill'd,
 The town with fear, and wild confusion fill'd.

He turns the hinges of the heavy gate
 With both his hands; and adds his shoulders to the weight. 980

Some happier friends within the walls inclos'd;
 The rest shut out, to certain death expos'd.
 Fool as he was, and frantic in his care,
 T' admit young Turnus, and include the war.
 He thrust amid the crowd, securely bold; 985

Like a fierce tiger pent amid the fold.
 Too late his blazing buckler they descry;
 And sparkling fires that shot from either eye:
 His mighty members, and his ample breast,
 His rattling armour, and his crimson crest. 990

Far from that hated face the Trojans fly;
 All but the fool who sought his destiny.
 Mad Pandarus steps forth, with vengeance vow'd
 For Bitias' death, and threatens thus aloud:
 These are not Ardea's walls, nor this the town 995
 Amata proffers with Lavinia's crown:

'Tis hostile earth you tread; of hope bereft,
 No means of safe return by flight are left,
 To whom, with countenance calm, and soul sedate,
 Thus Turnus: Then begin; and try thy fate: 1000
 My message to the ghost of Priam bear,
 Tell him a new Achilles sent thee there.

A lance of tough ground-ash the Trojan threw,
 Tough in the rind, and knotted as it grew;
 With his full force he whirl'd it first around; 1005
 But the soft yielding air receiv'd the wound:

Imperial

Imperial Juno turn'd the course before,
 And fix'd the wandering weapon in the door.

But hope not thou, said Turnus, when I strike,
 To shun thy fate; our force is not alike: 1010
 Nor thy steel temper'd by the Lemnian god:
 Then, rising, on his utmost stretch he stood;
 And aim'd from high: the full descending blow
 Cleaves the broad front, and beardless cheeks in two:
 Down sinks the giant, with a thundering sound,
 His ponderous limbs oppres the trembling ground; }
 Blood, brains, and foam, gush from the gaping }
 wound.

Scalp, face, and shoulders, the keen steel divides;
 And the shar'd visage hangs on equal sides.
 The Trojans fly from their approaching fate: 1020
 And had the victor then secur'd the gate,
 And to his troops without unclos'd the bars,
 One lucky day had ended all his wars.
 But boiling youth, and blind desire of blood,
 Push on his fury to pursue the crowd; 1025
 Hamstring'd behind, unhappy Gyges dy'd;
 Then Phalaris is added to his side:
 The pointed javelins from the dead he drew,
 And their friends arms against their fellows threw.
 Strong Halys stands in vain; weak Phlegys flies;
 Saturnia, still at hand, new force and fire supplies.
 Then Halius, Prytanis, Alcander fall
 (Engag'd against the foes, who scal'd the wall):
 But whom they fear'd without, they found within:
 At last, though late, by Linceus he was seen: 1035
 He

: calls new succours, and assaults the prince;
 t weak his force, and vain is their defence.
 im'd to the right, his sword the hero drew,
 id at one blow the bold aggressor flew.
 : joints the neck; and with a stroke so strong, 1040
 ie helm flies off; and bears the head along.
 xt him, the huntsman Amycus he kill'd, darts envenom'd, and in poison skill'd.
 en Clytius fell beneath his fatal spear,
 d Cretus, whom the Muses held so dear: 1045
 : fought with courage, and he sung the fight:
 ms were his business, verses his delight.
 The Trojan chiefs behold, with rage and grief, eir slaughter'd friends, and hasten their relief.
 ld Mnestheus rallies first the broken train, 1050
 om brave Seresthus and his troop sustain.
 save the living, and revenge the dead,
 ainst one warrior's arm all Troy they led.
 void of sense and courage, Mnestheus cry'd,
 ere can you hope your coward heads to hide? 1055
 , where beyond these rampires can you run!
 e man, and in your camp inclos'd, you shun!
 ll then a single sword such slaughter boast,
 d pass unpunish'd from a numerous host?
 :faking honour, and renouncing fame, 1060
 ur gods, your country, and your king, you shame.
 This just reproach their virtue does excite,
 ey stand, they join, they thicken to the fight.
 Now Turnus doubts, and yet disdains to yield;
 : with slow paces measures back the field; 1065

And inches to the walls, where Tiber's tide,
 Washing the camp, defends the weaker side.
 The more he loses, they advance the more;
 And tread in every step he trod before:
 They shout, they bear him back, and whom by might
 They cannot conquer, they oppress with weight.

As, compass'd with a wood of spears around,
 The lordly lion still maintains his ground;
 Grins horrible, retires, and turns again;
 Threats his distended paws, and shakes his mane:
 He loses while in vain he presses on,
 Nor will his courage let him dare to run;
 So Turnus fares, and, unresolv'd of flight,
 Moves tardy back, and just recedes from fight.
 Yet twice, enrag'd, the combat he renews, 1080
 Twice breaks, and twice his broken foes pursues:
 But now they swarm; and, with fresh troops supply'd,
 Come rolling on, and rush from every side.
 Nor Juno, who sustain'd his arms before,
 Dares with new strength suffice th' exhausted store.
 For Jove, with four commands, sent Iris down,
 To force th' invader from th' affrighted town.

With labour spent, no longer can he wield
 The heavy falchion, or sustain the shield:
 O'erwhelm'd with darts, which from afar they fling,
 The weapons round his hollow temples ring:
 His golden helm gives way: with stony blows
 Batter'd, and flat, and beaten to his brows,
 His crest is rash'd away; his ample shield
 Is falsify'd, and round with javelins fill'd. 1095
 The

e foe now faint; the Trojans overwhelm:
Mnestheus lays hard load upon his helm.
Sweat succeeds, he drops at every pore,
driving dust his cheeks are pasted o'er.
Shorter every gasp he takes, 1100 vain efforts and hurtless blows he makes.
As he was, at length, he leap'd from high;
'd in the flood, and made the waters fly.
Jelly god the welcome burden bore,
Wip'd the sweat, and wash'd away the gore: 1105 gently wafts him to the farther coast;
ends him safe to cheer his anxious host.

THE TENTH BOOK
OF THE ÆNEID.

THE ARGUMENT.

Jupiter, calling a council of the gods, forbids them to engage in either party. At Æneas's return, there is a bloody battle: Turnus killing Pallas; Æneas, Lausus, and Mezentius. Mezentius is described as an atheist; Lausus as a pious and virtuous youth: the different actions and death of these two are the subject of a noble episode.

THE gates of heaven unfold; Jove summons all
 The gods to council in the common hall.
 Sublimely seated, he surveys from far
 The fields, the camp, the fortune of the war;
 And all th' inferior world: from first to last §
 The sovereign senate in degrees are plac'd.
 Then thus th' almighty fire began: Ye gods,
 Natives, or denizens, of blest abodes;

From

rom whence these murmurs, and this change of mind, his backward fate from what was first design'd? 10
 Why this protracted war? When my commands pronounc'd a peace, and gave the Latian lands.
 What fear or hopes on either part divides
 our heavens, and arms our powers on different sides?
 A lawful time of war at length will come 15 }
 Nor need your haste anticipate the doom }
 When Carthage shall contend the world with Rome: } shall force the rigid rocks, and Alpine chains;
 and like a flood come pouring on the plains:
 Then is your time for faction and debate, 20
 or partial favour, and permitted hate.
 Let now your immature diffension cease:
 be quiet, and compose your souls to peace.
 Thus Jupiter in few unfolds the charge:
 but lovely Venus thus replies at large: 25
 O power immense, eternal energy!
 (For to what else protection can we fly?)
 dost thou the proud Rutulians, how they dare in fields, unpunish'd, and insult my care?
 How lofty Turnus vaunts amidst his train, 30
 his shining arms triumphant on the plain?
 Ev'n in their lines and trenches they contend;
 and scarce their walls the Trojan troops defend:
 The town is fill'd with slaughter, and o'erflows,
 With a red deluge, their increasing moats. 35
 Eneas, ignorant, and far from thence,
 has left a camp expos'd, without defence.

This endless outrage shall they still sustain?
 Shall Troy renew'd be forc'd, and fired again?
 A second siege my banish'd issue fears, 40
 And a new Diomed in arms appears.
 One more audacious mortal will be found;
 And I thy daughter wait another wound.
 Yet if, with fates averse, without thy leave,
 The Latian lands my progeny receive, 45
 Bear they the pains of violated law,
 And thy protection from their aid withdraw.
 But if the gods their sure success foretel,
 If those of heaven consent with those of hell,
 To promise Italy; who dare debate 50
 The power of Jove, or fix another fate?
 What should I tell of tempests on the main,
 Of Æolus usurping Neptune's reign?
 Of Iris sent, with Bacchanalian heat,
 T' inspire the matrons, and destroy the fleet. 55
 Now Juno to the Stygian sky descends,
 Solicits hell for aid, and arms the fiends.
 That new example wanted yet above:
 An act that well became the wife of Jove.
 Alecto, rais'd by her, with rage inflames 60
 The peaceful bosoms of the Latian dames.
 Imperial sway no more exalts my mind
 (Such hopes I had indeed, while heaven was kind);
 Now let my happier foes possess my place,
 Whom Jove prefers before the Trojan race; 65
 And conquer they, whom you with conquest grace. } Since

 indignation swell'd Saturnia's heart:

What with more decence were in silence kept,
 And but for this unjust reproach had slept.
 Did god, or man, your favourite son advise,
 With war unhop'd the Latians to surprize?
 By fate you boast, and by the gods decree, 100
 He left his native land for Italy:
 Confess the truth; by mad Cassandra, more
 Than Heaven, inspir'd, he sought a foreign shore!
 Did I persua'de to trust his second Troy
 To the raw conduct of a beardless boy? 105
 With walls unfinish'd, which himself forsakes,
 And through the waves a wandering voyage takes?
 When have I urg'd him meanly to demand
 The Tuscan aid, and arm a quiet land?
 Did I or Iris give this mad advice? 110
 Or made the fool himself the fatal choice?
 You think it hard, the Latians should destroy
 With swords your Trojans, and with fires your Troy:
 Hard and unjust indeed, for men to draw
 Their native air, nor take a foreign law: 115
 That Turnus is permitted still to live,
 To whom his birth a god and goddess give:
 But yet 'tis just and lawful for your line,
 To drive their fields, and force with fraud to join.
 Realms not your own, among your clans divide, 120
 And from the bridegroom tear the promis'd bride:
 Petition, while you public arms prepare;
 Pretend a peace, and yet provoke a war.
 'Twas given to you, your darling son to shrowd,
 To draw the dastard from the fighting crowd; 125 }
 And for a man obtend an empty cloud.

And the hush'd waves lie flatted on the main).

Cœlestials! your attentive ears incline;
Since, said the god, the Trojans must not join 160
In wish'd alliance with the Latian line;
Since endless jarrings, and immortal hate,
Tend but to discompose our happy state;
The war henceforward be resign'd to Fate,
Each to his proper fortune stand or fall, 165
Equal and unconcern'd I look on all.

Rutulians, Trojans, are the same to me;
And both shall draw the lots their fates decree.
Let these assault, if Fortune be their friend;
And if she favours those, let those defend: 170
The Fates will find their way. The Thunderer said;
And shook the sacred honours of his head;
Attesting Styx, th' inviolable flood,
And the black regions of his brother god:
Trembled the poles of Heav'n; and earth confess'd
the nod: 175

This end the fissions had: the senate rise,
And to his palace wait their sovereign through the skies.

Mean time, intent upon their siege, the foes
Within their walls the Trojan host inclose:
They wound, they kill, they watch at every gate: 180
Renew the fires, and urge their happy fate.

Th' Æneans wish in vain their wonted chief,
Hopeless of flight, more hopeless of relief;
Thin on the towers they stand; and ev'n those few,
A feeble, fainting, and dejected crew: 185

 Turnus from the camp he cast with shame. 215

Thus

Thus mortal war was wag'd on either side.
 Mean time the hero cuts the nightly tide:
 For, anxious, from Evander when he went,
 He fought the Tyrrhene camp, and Tarchon's tent;
 Expos'd the cause of coming to the chief; 220
 His name and country told, and ask'd relief:
 Propos'd the terms; his own small strength declar'd,
 What vengeance proud Mezentius had prepar'd:
 What Turnus, bold and violent, design'd;
 Then shew'd the slippery state of human kind, 225
 And fickle Fortune; warn'd him to beware:
 And to his wholesome counsel added prayer.
 Tarchon, without delay, the treaty signs:
 And to the Trojan troops the Tuscan joins.

They soon set sail; nor now the Fates withstand; 230
 Their forces trusted with a foreign hand.
 Æneas leads; upon his stern appear
 Two lions carv'd, which rising Ida bear;
 Ida, to wandering Trojans ever dear. }
 Under their grateful shade Æneas fate, 235
 Revolving war's events, and various fate.
 His left young Pallas kept, fix'd to his side,
 And oft' of winds inquir'd, and of the tide:
 Oft' of the stars, and of their watery way;
 And what he suffer'd both by land and sea. 240

Now, sacred sisters, open all your spring:
 The Tuscan leaders, and their army sing;
 Which follow'd great Æneas to the war:
 Their arms, their numbers, and their names, declare.

A thou-

A thousand youths brave Mafficus obey, 245
 Born in the Tiger, through the foaming sea;
 From Afium brought, and Cofa, by his care;
 For arms, light quivers, bows and shafts they bear.
 Fierce Abas next, his men bright armour wore;
 His stern, Apollo's golden statue bore. 250
 Six hundred Populonea sent along,
 All skill'd in martial exercise, and strong.
 Three hundred more for battle Ilva joins,
 An isle renown'd for steel, and unexhausted mines.
 Afylas on his prow the third appears. 255
 Who heaven interprets, and the wandering stars;
 From offer'd entrails prodigies expounds,
 And peals of thunder, with presaging sounds.
 A thousand spears in warlike order stand,
 Sent by the Pisans under his command. 260
 Fair Astur follows in the watery field,
 Proud of his manag'd horse, and painted shield,
 Gravifca, noisom from the neighbouring fen,
 And his own Cœre, sent three hundred men:
 With those which Minio's fields, and Pyrgi gave; 265
 All bred in arms, unanimous and brave.
 Thou, Muse, the name of Cinyras renew;
 And brave Cupavo follow'd but by few:
 Whose helm confess'd the lineage of the man,
 And bore, with wings display'd, a silver swan. 270
 Love was the fault of his fam'd ancestry,
 Whose forms and fortunes in his ensigns fly.
 For Cynus lov'd unhappy Phaeton,
 And sung his loss in poplar groves alone;

Beneath

Beneath the sister shades to sooth his grief: 275

Heaven heard his song, and hasten'd his relief;

And chang'd to snowy plumes his hoary hair,

And wing'd his flight, to chant aloft in air.

His son Cupavo brush'd the briny flood:

Upon his stern a brawny Centaur stood, 280

Who heav'd a rock, and threatening still to throw,

With lifted hands, alarm'd the seas below:

They seem to fear the formidable fight,

And roll'd their billows on, to speed his flight.

Ocnus was next, who led his native train 285

Of hardy warriors through the watery plain,

The son of Manto, by the Tuscan stream,

From whence the Mantuan town derives the name,

An ancient city, but of mix'd descent,

Three several tribes compose the government: 290

Four towns are under each; but all obey

The Mantuan laws, and own the Tuscan sway.

Hate to Mezentius arm'd five hundred more,

Whom Mincius from his fire Benacus bore;

(Mincius with wreaths of reeds his forehead cover'd

These grave Auletes leads. A hundred sweep,

With stretching oars, at once the glassy deep:

Him, and his martial train, the Triton bears,

High on his poop the sea-green god appears:

Frowning he seems his crooked shell to sound, 300

And at the blast the billows dance around.

A hairy man above the waste he shows,

A porpoise tail beneath his belly grows;

And

s a fish: his breast the waves divides,
 h and foam augment the murmuring tides. 305
 irty ships transport the chosen train, r's relief, and scour the briny main.
 was the world forsaken by the sun,
 be half her nightly race had run.
 ful chief, who never clos'd his eyes, 310
 he rudder holds, the sails supplies.
 f Nereids meet him on the flood,
 own galleys, hewn from Ida's wood:
 as many nymphs the sea they sweep,
 before tall vessels on the deep. 315
 ow him from afar; and in a ring
 e ship that bore the Trojan king.
 e, whose voice excell'd the rest,
 e waves advanc'd her snowy breast.
 t hand stops the stern, her left divides 320
 ing ocean, and corrects the tides:
 e for all the choir; and thus began aking words to warn th' unknowing man:
 r lov'd lord? O goddess-born! awake, very sail, pursue your watery track; 325
 e your course. Your navy once were we, t's height descending to the sea:
 nus, as at anchor fix'd we stood,
 to violate our holy wood.
 s'd from shore we fled his fires profane 330 } ngly we broke our master's chain); }
 e have fought you through the Tuscan main. }

The

The mighty mother chang'd our forms to these,
 And gave us life immortal in the seas.
 But young Ascanius, in his camp distress'd, 335
 By your insulting foes is hardly press'd ;
 Th' Arcadian horsemen, and Etrurian host,
 Advance in order on the Latian coast :
 To cut their way the Daunian chief designs,
 Before their troops can reach the Trojan lines. 340
 Thou, when the rosy morn restores the light,
 First arm thy soldiers for th' ensuing fight ;
 Thyself the fated sword of Vulcan wield,
 And bear aloft th' impenetrable shield.
 To-morrow's sun, unless my skill be vain, 345
 Shall see huge heaps of foes in battle slain.
 Parting, she spoke ; and, with immortal force,
 Push'd on the vessel in her watery course,
 (For well she knew the way) impell'd behind,
 The ship flew forward, and outstript the wind. 350
 The rest make up : unknowing of the cause,
 The chief admires their speed, and happy omens draws.

Then thus he pray'd, and fix'd on heaven his eyes :
 Hear thou, great mother of the deities,
 With turrets crown'd, (on Ida's holy hill, 355 Fierce tigers, rein'd and curb'd, obey thy will).
 Firm thy own omens, lead us on to fight,
 And let thy Phrygians conquer in thy right.

He said no more. And now renewing day
 Had chac'd the shadows of the night away. 360
 He

He charg'd the foldiers with preventing care,
 Their flags to follow, and their arms prepare;
 Warn'd of th' ensuing fight, and bade them hope the } war.

Now, from his lofty poop, he view'd below,
 His camp encompass'd, and th' inclosing foe. 365
 His blazing shield embrac'd, he held on high;
 The camp receive the sign, and with loud shouts reply.
 Hope arms their courage: from their towers they throw
 Their darts with double force, and drive the foe.
 Thus, at the signal given, the cranes arise 370
 Before the stormy south, and blacken all the skies.

King Turnus wonder'd at the fight renew'd;
 Till, looking back, the Trojan fleet he view'd;
 The seas with swelling canvass cover'd o'er;
 And the swift ships descending on the shore. 375
 The Latians saw from far, with dazzled eyes,
 The radiant crest that seem'd in flames to rise,
 And dart diffusive fires around the field;
 And the keen glittering of the golden shield.
 Thus threatening comets, when by night they rise, 380
 Shoot sanguine streams, and sadden all the skies:
 So Sirius, flashing forth sinister lights,
 Pale human-kind with plagues and with dry famine
 frights.

Yet Turnus, with undaunted mind, is bent
 To man the shores, and hinder their descent: 385
 And thus awakes the courage of his friends.
 What you so long have wish'd, kind fortune sends:

In ardent arms to meet th' invading foe :
 You find, and find him at advantage now,
 Yours is the day, you need but only dare : 390
 Your swords will make you masters of the war.
 Your fires, your fons, your houses, and your lands,
 And dearest wives, are all within your hands.
 Be mindful of the race from whence you came;
 And emulate in arms your father's fame. 395
 Now take the time, while staggering yet they stand
 With feet unfirm ; and prepossess the strand :
 Fortune befriends the bold. No more he said,
 But balanc'd whom to leave, and whom to lead :
 Then these elects, the landing to prevent ; 400
 And those he leaves, to keep the city pent.
 Mean time the Trojan sends his troops ashore :
 Some are by boats expos'd, by bridges more.
 With labouring oars they bear along the strand,
 Where the tide languishes, and leap a-land. 405
 Tarchon observes the coast with careful eyes,
 And where no ford he finds, no water fries,
 Nor billows with unequal murmur roar,
 But smoothly slide along, and swell the shore :
 That course he steer'd, and thus he gave command,
 Here ply your oars, and at all hazard land :
 Force on the vessel, that her keel may wound
 This hated foil, and furrow hostile ground.
 Let me securely land, I ask no more,
 Then sink my ships, or shatter on the shore. 415
 This fiery speech inflames his fearful friends,
 They tug at every oar ; and every stretcher bends :

They run their ships aground, the vessels knock,
 (Thus forc'd ashore) and tremble with the shock.
 Farchon's alone was lost, and stranded flood, 420 stuck on a bank, and beaten by the flood.
 She breaks her back, the loosen'd sides give way,
 And plunge the Tuscan soldiers in the sea.
 Their broken oars and floating planks withstand
 Their passage, while they labour to the land; 425 }
 And ebbing tides bear back upon th' uncertain sand. }

Now Turnus leads his troops, without delay,
 Advancing to the margin of the sea.
 The trumpets sound: Æneas first assail'd
 The clowns new-rais'd and raw; and soon prevail'd. 430
 Great Theron fell, an omen of the fight:
 Great Theron large of limbs, of giant height.
 He first in open fields defy'd the prince,
 But armour scal'd with gold was no defence
 Against the fated sword, which open'd wide 435
 His plated shield, and pierc'd his naked side.

Next, Lycas fell; who, not like others born,
 Was from his wretched mother ripp'd and torn:
 Sacred, O Phœbus! from his birth to thee,
 For his beginning life from biting steel was free. 440
 Nor far from him was Gyas laid along,
 Of monstrous bulk; with Cisseus fierce and strong;
 Vain bulk and strength; for when the chief assail'd,
 Nor valour, nor Herculean arms, avail'd;
 Nor their fam'd father, wont in war to go 445
 With great Alcides, while he toil'd below,

The noisy Pharos next receiv'd his death,
 Æneas with'd his dart, and stopp'd his bawling breath.
 Then wretched Cydon had receiv'd his doom,
 Who courted Clytius in his beardless bloom, 450
 And fought with lust obscene polluted joys:
 The Trojan sword had cur'd his love of boys,
 Had not his seven bold brethren stopp'd the course
 Of the fierce champion, with united force.
 Seven darts are thrown at once, and some rebound 455
 From his bright shield, some on his helmet sound:
 The rest had reach'd him, but his mother's care
 Prevented those, and turn'd aside in air.

The prince then call'd Achates, to supply
 The spears that knew the way to victory. 460
 Those fatal weapons, which, inur'd to blood,
 In Grecian bodies under Ilium stood:
 Not one of those my hand shall toss in vain
 Against our foes, on this contended plain,
 He said: then seiz'd a mighty spear, and threw; 465
 Which, wing'd with fate, through Mæon's buckler flew;
 Pierc'd all the brazen plates, and reach'd his heart:
 He stagger'd with intolerable smart.
 Alcanor saw; and reach'd, but reach'd in vain,
 His helping hand, his brother to sustain. 470
 A second spear, which kept the former course,
 From the same hand, and sent with equal force,
 His right arm pierc'd, and, holding on, bereft
 His use of both, and pinion'd down his left.
 Then Numitor, from his dead brother, drew 475
 Th' ill-omen'd spear, and at the Trojan threw:

Preventing

Preventing Fate directs the lance awry,
 Which, glancing, only mark'd Achates' thigh.
 In pride of youth the Sabine Clausus came,
 And from afar at Dryops took his aim. 480
 The spear flew hissing through the middle space,
 And pierc'd his throat, directed at his face:
 It stopp'd at once the passage of his wind,
 And the free soul to sitting air resign'd:
 His forehead was the first that struck the ground; 485
 Life-blood and life rush'd mingled through the wound.
 He slew three brothers of the Borean race,
 And three, whom Ismarus, their native place,
 Had sent to war, but all the sons of Thrace. }
 Halesus next, the bold Aurunci leads; 490
 The son of Neptune to his aid succeeds,
 Conspicuous on his horse: on either hand
 These fight to keep, and those to win the land.
 With mutual blood th' Ausonian foil is dy'd,
 While on its borders each their claim decide. 495
 As wintery winds, contending in the sky,
 With equal force of lungs their titles try:
 They rage, they roar; the doubtful rack of heaven
 Stands without motion, and the tide undriven:
 Each bent to conquer, neither side to yield; 500
 They long suspend the fortune of the field.
 Both armies thus perform what courage can:
 Foot fet to foot, and mingled man to man.
 But in another part, th' Arcadian horse,
 With ill-success engage the Latin force, 505

For where th' impetuous torrent, rushing down,
 Huge craggy stones, and rooted trees had thrown,
 They left their coursers, and, unus'd to fight
 On foot, were scatter'd in a shameful flight.
 Pallas, who with disdain and grief had view'd 510
 His foes pursuing, and his friends pursu'd,
 Us'd threatnings mix'd with prayers, his last resource;
 With these to move their minds, with those to fire their force.

Which way, companions! whither would you run?
 By you yourselves, and mighty battles won; 515
 By my great fire, by his establish'd name,
 And early promise of my future fame;
 By my youth emulous of equal right,
 To share his honours, shun ignoble flight.
 Trust not your feet; your hands must hew your way Through yon black body, and that thick array:
 'Tis through that forward path that we must come:
 There lies our way, and that our passage home.
 Nor powers above, nor destinies below,
 Oppress our arms; with equal strength we go; 525 }
 With mortal hands to meet a mortal foe.
 See on what foot we stand: a scanty shore;
 The sea behind, our enemies before:
 No passage left, unless we swim the main;
 Or, forcing these, the Trojan trenches gain. 530
 This said, he strode with eager haste along,
 And bore amidst the thickest of the throng,
 Lagos, the first he met, with fate to foe,
 Had heav'd a stone of mighty weight to throw;

Stooping,

Stooping, the spear descended on his chine, 535
 Just where the bone distinguish'd either loin:
 It stuck so fast, so deeply bury'd lay,
 That scarce the victor forc'd the steel away.

Hisbon came on, but while he mov'd too slow
 To wish'd revenge, the prince prevents his blow; 540
 For, warding his at once, at once he press'd;
 And plung'd the fatal weapon in his breast.
 Then lewd Anchemolus he laid in dust,
 Who stain'd his stepdam's bed with impious lust.
 And after him the Daunian twins were slain, 545
 Laris and Thimbrus, on the Latian plain:
 So wondrous like in feature, shape, and size,
 As caus'd an error in their parents' eyes.
 Grateful mistake! but soon the sword decides
 The nice distinction, and their fate divides. 550
 For Thimbrus' head was lopp'd: and Laris' hand,
 Dismember'd, fought its owner on the strand:
 The trembling fingers yet the fauchion strain,
 And threaten still th' intended stroke in vain.

Now, to renew the charge, th' Arcadians came: }
 Sight of such acts, and sense of honest shame, }
 And grief, with anger mix'd, their minds inflame. }
 Then with a casual blow was Rhæteus slain,
 Who chanc'd, as Pallas threw, to cross the plain!
 The flying spear was after Ilus sent, 560
 But Rhæteus happen'd on a death unmeant:
 From Teuthras and from Tyrus while he fled,
 The lance, athwart his body, laid him dead.

Roll'd from his chariot with a mortal wound,
 And intercepted fate, he spurn'd the ground. 565

As, when in summer welcome winds arise,
 The watchful shepherd to the forest flies,
 And fires the midmost plants; contagion spreads,
 And catching flames infect the neighbouring heads;
 Around the forest flies the furious blast, 570
 And all the leafy nation sinks at last;
 And Vulcan rides in triumph o'er the waste;
 The pastor, pleas'd with his dire victory,
 Beholds the fatiate flames in sheets ascend the sky:
 So Pallas' troops their scatter'd strength unite; 575
 And, pouring on their foes, their prince delight.

Halefus came, fierce with desire of blood
 (But first collected in his arms he stood);
 Advancing then he ply'd the spear so well,
 Ladon, Demodochus, and Pheres, fell: 580
 Around his head he tofs'd his glittering brand,
 And from Strymonius hew'd his better hand,
 Held up to guard his throat: then hurl'd a stone
 At Thoas' ample front, and pierc'd the bone:
 It struck beneath the space of either eye, 585
 And blood, and mingled brains, together fly.
 Deep skill'd in future fates, Halefus' fire
 Did with the youth to lonely groves retire:
 But, when the father's mortal race was run,
 Dire Destiny laid hold upon the son, 590
 And haul'd him to the war: to find beneath
 Th' Evandrian spear a memorable death,

Pallas

Pallas th' encounter seeks; but, ere he throws,
 To Tuscan Tiber thus address'd his vows:
 O sacred stream, direct my flying dart, 595
 And give to pass the proud Halesus' heart:
 His arms and spoils thy holy oak shall bear.
 Pleas'd with the bribe, the god receiv'd his prayer;
 For, while his shield protects a friend distress'd,
 The dart came driving on, and pierc'd his breast. 600

But Lausus, no small portion of the war,
 Permits not panick fear to reign too far,
 Caus'd by the death of so renown'd a knight;
 But by his own example cheers the fight.
 Fierce Abas first he slew; Abas, the stay 605
 Of Trojan hopes, and hindrance of the day.
 The Phrygian troops escap'd the Greeks in vain,
 They, and their mix'd allies, now load the plain.
 To the rude shock of war both armies came,
 The leaders equal, and their strength the same. 610
 The rear so press'd the front, they could not wield
 Their angry weapons, to dispute the field.
 Here Pallas urges on, and Lausus there,
 Of equal youth and beauty both appear,
 But both by Fate forbid to breathe their native air. }
 Their congress in the field great Jove withstands,
 Both doom'd to fall, but fall by greater hands.

Mean time Juturna warns the Daunian chief
 Of Lausus' danger, urging swift relief.
 With his driven chariot he divides the crowd, 620
 And, making to his friends, thus calls aloud:

Let

Let none presume his needless aid to join;
 Retire, and clear the field, the fight is mine:
 To this right hand is Pallas only due:
 Oh were his father here my just revenge to view! 635
 From the forbidden space his men retir'd,
 Pallas their awe and his stern words admir'd,
 Survey'd him o'er and o'er with wondering sight,
 Struck with his haughty mien, and towering height.
 Then to the king; your empty vaunts forbear; 630
 Success I hope, and Fate I cannot fear.
 Alive or dead, I shall deserve a name:
 Jove is impartial, and to both the same,
 He said, and to the void advanc'd his pace;
 Pale horror fate on each Arcadian face. 635
 Then Turnus, from his chariot leaping light,
 Address'd himself on foot to single fight.
 And, as a lion, when he spies from far
 A bull that seems to meditate the war,
 Bending his neck, and spurning back the sand, 640
 Runs roaring downward from his hilly stand:
 Imagine eager Turnus not more slow,
 To rush from high on his unequal foe.
 Young Pallas, when he saw the chief advance
 Within due distance of his flying lance, 645
 Prepares to charge him first, resolv'd to try
 If Fortune would his want of force supply;
 And thus to Heaven and Hercules address'd:
 Alcides, once on earth Evander's guest,
 His son adjures you by those holy rites, 650
 That hospitable board, those genial nights;

Assist my great attempt to gain this prize,
 And let proud Turnus view, with dying eyes,
 His ravish'd spoils. 'Twas heard, the vain request;
 Alcides mourn'd; and stifled sighs within his breast.
 Then Jove, to sooth his sorrow, thus began:

|  |   |
|--|---|
| Short bounds of life are set to mortal man;          | } |
| 'Tis virtue's work alone to stretch the narrow span. |   |

So many sons of gods in bloody fight,
 Around the walls of Troy, have lost the light: 660
 My own Sarpedon fell beneath his foe,
 Nor I, his mighty fire, could ward the blow.
 Ev'n Turnus shortly shall resign his breath;
 And stands already on the verge of death.
 This said, the god permits the fatal fight, 665
 But from the Latian fields averts his fight.
 Now with full force his spear young Pallas threw;
 And, having thrown, his shining fauchion drew:
 The steel just graz'd along the shoulder joint,
 And mark'd it slightly with the glancing point. 670
 Fierce Turnus first to nearer distance drew,
 And pois'd his pointed spear before he threw:
 Then, as the winged weapon whizz'd along,
 See now, said he, whose arm is better strung.
 The spear kept on the fatal course, unstay'd 675
 By plates of iron, which o'er the shield were laid:
 Through folded brags and tough bull-hides it pass'd,
 His croset pierc'd, and reach'd his heart at last.
 In vain the youth tugs at the broken wood,
 The soul comes issuing with the vital blood: 680
 He

He falls: his arms upon his body found;
And with his bloody teeth he bites the ground.

Turnus bestrode the corpse: Arcadians hear,
Said he; my message to your master bear:
Such as the fire deserv'd, the son I send: 685
It costs him dear to be the Phrygians' friend.
The lifeless body, tell him, I bestow,
Unask'd, to rest his wandering ghost below.
He said, and trampled down with all the force
Of his left foot, and spurn'd the wretched corpse: 690

Then snatch'd the shining belt, with gold inlaid;
The belt Eurycion's artful hands had made:
Where fifty fatal brides, express'd to fight,
All, in the compass of one mournful night,
Depriv'd their bridegrooms of returning light. 695

In an ill hour insulting Turnus tore
Tho'è golden spoils, and in a worse he wore.
O mortals! blind in fate, who never know
To bear high fortune, or endure the low!
The time shall come, when Turnus, but in vain, 700
Shall with untouch'd the trophies of the slain:
Shall with the fatal belt were far away;
And curse the dire remembrance of the day.

The sad Arcadians from th' unhappy field,
Bear back the breathless body on a shield. 705
O grace and grief of war! at once restor'd
With praises to thy fire, at once deplor'd.
One day first sent thee to the fighting field,
Beheld whole heaps of foes in battle kill'd;
One day beheld thee dead, and borne upon thy shield. }

This

dismal news, not from uncertain fame, and spectators, to the hero came :
 friends upon the brink of ruin stand,
 is reliev'd by his victorious hand.
 whirls his sword around, without delay,      715
 hews through adverse foes an ample way ;
 and fierce Turnus, of his conquest proud :
 der, Pallas, all that friendship ow'd urge deserts, are present to his eyes ;
 slighted hand, and hospitable ties.      720
 our sons of Sulmo, four whom Ufens bred, took in fight, and living victims led,
 lease the ghost of Pallas ; and expire crifice, before his funeral fire.
 Iagus next he threw : he stoop'd below      725 flying spear, and shun'd the promis'd blow.
 I, creeping, clasp'd the hero's knees, and pray'd :
 Ioung Iulus, by thy father's shade, are my life, and send me back to see onging fire, and tender progeny.      730 thy house I have, and wealth untold, Iver ingots, and in bars of gold :
 these, and fums besides, which see no day,
 ransom of this one poor life shall pay.
 survive, shall Troy the less prevail?      735
 Igle soul's too light to turn the scale.
 aid. The hero sternly thus reply'd :
 bars, and ingots, and the fums beside,
 e for thy children's lot. Thy Turnus broke ules of war, by one relentless stroke,      740
 When

When Pallas fell: so deems, nor deems alone,
 My father's shadow, but my living son.
 Thus having said, of kind remorse bereft,
 He seiz'd his helm, and dragg'd him with his left:
 Then with his right-hand, whilst his neck he wreath'd,
 Up to the hilts his shining fauchion sheath'd.

Apollo's priest, Hæmonides, was near,
 His holy fillets on his front appear;
 Glittering in arms he shone amidst the crowd;
 Much of his god, more of his purple proud: 750
 Him the fierce Trojan follow'd through the field,
 The holy coward fell: and, forc'd to yield,
 The prince stood o'er the priest; and at one blow
 Sent him an offering to the shades below.
 His arms Scæthus on his shoulders bears, 755
 Design'd a trophy to the god of wars.

Vulcanian Cæculus renews the fight;
 And umbro born upon the mountain's height.
 The champion cheers his troops t' encounter those;
 And seeks revenge himself on other foes. 760
 At Anxur's shield he drove, and at the blow
 Both shield and arm to ground together go.
 Anxur had boasted much of magic charms,
 And thought he wore impenetrable arms;
 So made by mutter'd spells: and from the spheres 765
 Had life secur'd in vain, for length of years.
 Then Tarquitus the field in triumph trod;
 A nymph his mother, and his sire a god.
 Exulting in bright arms, he braves the prince;
 With his portended lance he makes defence: 770

Bears

ack his feeble foe; then, pressing on,
 his better hand, and drags him down.
 'er the prostrate wretch, and as he lay,
 es inventing, and prepar'd to pray,
 ff his head; the trunk a moment stood, 775
 nk; and roll'd along the sand in blood.
 vengeful victor thus upbraids the slain;
 e, proud man, unpity'd on the plain:
 e, inglorious, and without a tomb,
 n thy mother, and thy native home: 780 to savage beasts, and birds of prey;
 wn for food to' monsters of the sea.
 ycas and Antæus next he ran,
 iefs of Turnus, and who led his van,
 d for fear; with these he chac'd along, 785 }
 the yellow-lock'd, and Numa strong, eat in arms, and both were fair and young: } was son to Volscens lately slain,
 h surpassing all the Latian train, }
 Amycla fix'd his silent easy reign. 790 } as Ægean, when with heaven he strove, pposite in arms to mighty Jove;
 ill his hundred hands, provok'd the war,
 the forky lightning from afar:
 mouths his flaming breath expires, 795
 h for flash returns, and fires for fires:
 ight-hand as many swords he wields,
 es the thunder on as many shields:
 rength like his the Trojan hero stood,
 n the fields with falling crops were strowd, }
 nce his sauchion found the taste of blood. }

With

With fury scarce to be conceiv'd, he flew Against Niphæus, whom four courfers drew.
 They, when they see the fiery chief advance,
 And pushing at their chests his pointed lance, 805
 Wheel'd with so swift a motion, mad with fear,
 They drew their master headlong from the chair:
 They stare, they start, nor stop their course, before
 They bear the bounding chariot to the shore.

Now Lucagus and Liger scour the plains, 810
 With two white steeds, but Liger holds the reins,
 And Lucagus the lofty seat maintains. }
 Bold brethren both, the former wav'd in air
 His flaming sword; Æneas couch'd his spear,
 Unus'd to threats, and more unus'd to fear. 815 }
 Then Liger thus. Thy confidence is vain
 To 'scape from hence, as from the Trojan plain:
 Nor these the steeds which Diomedè bestrode,
 Nor this the chariot where Achilles rode:
 Nor Venus' veil is here, nor Neptune's shield: 820
 Thy fatal hour is come; and this the field.
 Thus Liger vainly vaunts: the Trojan peer
 Return'd his answer with his flying spear.
 As Lucagus to lash his horses bends,
 Prone to the wheels, and his left foot protends, 825
 Prepar'd for fight, the fatal dart arrives,
 And through the border of his buckler drives;
 Pass'd through, and pierc'd his groin; the deadly wound,
 Cast from his chariot, roll'd him on the ground.
 Whom thus the chief upbraids with scornful spight; 830
 Blame not the slowness of your steeds in flight;

Vain

shadows did not force their swift retreat :
 1 yourself forfake your empty feat.
 I, and seiz'd at once the loosen'd rein iger lay already on the plain 835 fame shock); then, stretching out his hands, creant thus his wretched life demands :
 y thyself, O more than mortal man!
 and him from whom thy breath began,
 orm'd thee thus divine, I beg thee spare 840
 rfeit life, and hear thy suppliant's prayer.
 uch he spoke; and more he would have said,
 : stern hero turn'd aside his head,
 it him short: I hear another man,
 lk'd not thus before the fight began; 845
 ke your turn: and, as a brother should,
 your brother to the Stygian flood:
 hrough his breast his fatal sword he sent,
 e foul issued at the gaping vent.
 ms the skies, and torrents tear the ground, 850
 ag'd the prince, and scatter'd deaths around:
 ith Ascanius, and the Trojan train,
 rom the camp, so long besieg'd in vain.
 me the king of gods and mortal man onference with his queen, and thus began: 855 er-goddeſs, and well-pleaſing wife, ink you Venus' aid ſupports the ſtrife;
 s her Trojans, or themſelves alone born valour force their fortune on?
 erce in fight, with courage undecay'd! 860
 if ſuch warriors want immortal aid,

To whom the goddesses with the charming eyes,
 Soft in her tone, submissively replies.
 Why, O my sovereign lord, whose frown I fear,
 And cannot, unconcern'd, your anger bear; 865
 Why urge you thus my grief? when if I still (As once I was) were mistress of your will,
 From your almighty power, your pleasing wife
 Might gain the grace of lengthening Turnus' life;
 Securely snatch him from the fatal fight; 870
 And give him to his aged father's fight.
 Now let him perish, since you hold it good,
 And glut the Trojans with his pious blood.
 Yet from our lineage he derives his name,
 And in the fourth degree from god Pylumus came!
 Yet he devoutly pays you rites divine,
 And offers daily incense at your shrine.

Then shortly thus the sovereign god reply'd;
 Since in my power and goodness you confide;
 If for a little space, a lengthen'd span, 880
 You beg reprieve for this expiring man:
 I grant you leave to take your Turnus hence,
 From instant fate, and can so far dispense.
 But if some secret meaning lies beneath,
 To save the short-liv'd youth from destin'd death: 885
 Or if a farther thought you entertain,
 To change the fates; you feed your hopes in vain.

To whom the goddesses thus, with weeping eyes:
 And what if that request your tongue denies,
 Your heart should grant; and not a short reprieve, 890
 But length of certain life to Turnus give?

Now

speedy death attends the guiltless youth, refusing foul divines with truth,
 O! I wish might err through causeless fears, you (for you have power) prolong his years. 895
 As having said, involv'd in clouds, she flies, gives a storm before her through the skies.
 He descends, alighting on the plain,
 the fierce foes a dubious fight maintain.
 Condens'd, a spectre soon she made, 900
 that Æneas was, such seem'd the shade.
 And with Dardan arms, the phantom bore aloft, a plummy crest he wore:
 and appear'd a shining sword to wield,
 that sustain'd an imitated shield: 905
 In manly mien he stalk'd along the ground;
 muted voice bely'd, nor vaunting sound
 vaunting ghosts appear to waking sight,
 (as awful visions in our dreams by night).
 The spectre seems the Daunian chief to dare, 910 and wishes his empty sword in air:
 advancing Turnus hurl'd his spear;
 the phantom wheel'd, and seem'd to fly for fear.
 But Turnus thought the Trojan fled, that vain hopes his haughty fancy fed. 915
 "O coward, (thus he calls aloud, and he spoke to wind, and chac'd a cloud;) .
 forsake your bride! Receive from me
 the land you fought so long by sea.
 And, brandishing at once his blade, 920
 he nimbly on his feet
 the tiger pace pursu'd the flying shade.

By chance a ship was fasten'd to the shore,
 Which from old Clusium king Ofinius bore:
 The plank was ready laid for safe ascent;
 For shelter there the trembling shadow bent, 925 }
 And skipp'd, and sculk'd, and under hatches went. } Exulting Turnus, with regardless haste,
 Ascends the plank, and to the galley pass'd.
 Scarce had he reach'd the prow, Saturnia's hand
 The haulfers cuts, and shoots the ship from land. 930
 With wind in poop, the vessel ploughs the sea,
 And measures back with speed her former way.
 Meantime Æneas seeks his absent foe,
 And sends his slaughter'd troops to shades below.

The guileful phantom now forsook the shroud, 935
 And flew sublime, and vanish'd in a cloud.
 Too late young Turnus the delusion found,
 Far on the sea, still making from the ground.
 Then, thankless for a life redeem'd by shame,
 With sense of honour stung, and forfeit fame, 940
 Fearful besides of what in fight had pass'd,
 His hands and haggard eyes to heaven he cast.
 O Jove! he cry'd, for what offence have I
 Deserv'd to bear this endless infamy?
 Whence am I forc'd, and whither am I borne, 945
 How, and with what reproach shall I return!
 Shall ever I behold the Latian plain,
 Or see Laurentum's lofty towers again?
 What will they say of their deserting chief?
 The war was mine, I fly from their relief: 950

I led

I led to slaughter, and in slaughter leave;
 And ev'n from hence their dying groans receive.
 Here, over-match'd in fight, in heaps they lie,
 There scatter'd o'er the fields ignobly fly.
 Gape wide, O earth! and draw me down alive, 955 }
 Or, oh, ye pitying winds! a wretch relieve; }
 On sands or shelves the splitting vessel drive:
 Or set me shipwreck'd on some desert shore,
 Where no Rutulian eyes may see me more;
 Unknown to friends, or foes, or conscious Fame, 960
 Left she should follow, and my flight proclaim!

Thus Turnus rav'd, and various fates revolv'd,
 The choice was doubtful, but the death resolv'd.
 And now the sword, and now the sea took place:
 That to revenge, and this to purge disgrace. 965
 Sometimes he thought to swim the stormy main,
 By stretch of arms the distant shore to gain:
 Thrice he the sword assay'd, and thrice the flood;
 But Juno, mov'd with pity, both withstood:
 And thrice repress'd his rage: strong gales supply'd,
 And push'd the vessel o'er the swelling tide.
 At length she lands him on his native shores,
 And to his father's longing arms restores.

Meantime, by Jove's impulse, Mezentius arm'd,
 Succeeding Turnus, with his ardor warm'd 975
 His fainting friends, reproach'd their shameful flight,
 Repell'd the victors, and renew'd the fight.
 Against their king the Tuscan troops conspire,
 Such is their hate, and such their fierce desire

Of wish'd revenge: on him, and him alone, 980
 All hands employ'd, and all their darts are thrown.
 He, like a solid rock by seas inclos'd,
 To raging winds and roaring waves oppos'd;
 From his proud summit looking down, disdains
 Their empty menace, and unmov'd remains. 985
 Beneath his feet fell haughty Hebrus dead,
 Then Latagus; and Palmus as he fled:
 At Latagus a weighty stone he flung,
 His face was flatted, and his helmet rung.
 But Palmus from behind receives his wound, 990
 Hamstring'd he falls, and grovels on the ground:
 His crest and armour, from his body torn,
 Thy shoulders, Lausus, and thy head adorn.
 Evas and Mymas, both of Troy, he slew,
 Mymas his birth from fair Theano drew. 995
 Born on that fatal night, when, big with fire,
 The queen produc'd young Paris to his fire.
 But Paris in the Phrygian fields was slain;
 Unthinking Mymus, on the Latian plain.
 And as a savage boar on mountains bred, 1000
 With forest mast and fattening marshes fed;
 When once he sees himself in toils inclos'd,
 By huntsmen and their eager hounds oppos'd,
 He whets his tusks, and turns, and dares the war;
 Th' invaders dart their javelins from afar; 1005
 All keep aloof, and safely shout around,
 But none presumes to give a nearer wound.
 He frets and froths, erects his bristled hide,
 And shakes a grove of lances from his side:

Not otherwise the troops, with hate inspir'd 1010
 And just revenge, against the tyrant fir'd;
 Their darts with clamour at a distance drive,
 And only keep the languish'd war alive.

From Coritus came Acron to the fight,
 Who left his spouse betroth'd, and unconsummated night.
 Mezentius sees him through the squadrons ride,
 Proud of the purple favours of his bride.

Then, as a hungry lion, who beholds
 A gamefome goat who frisks about the folds,
 Or beamy stag that grazes on the plain; 1020
 He runs, he roars, he shakes his rising mane;
 He grins, and opens wide his greedy jaws,
 The prey lies panting underneath his paws;
 He fills his famish'd maw, his mouth runs o'er
 With unchew'd morsels, while he churns the gore:
 So proud Mezentius rushes on his foes,
 And first unhappy Acron overthrows:
 Stretch'd at his length, he spurns the swarthy ground,
 The lance, besmear'd with blood, lies broken in the
 wound.

Then with disdain the haughty victor view'd 1030
 Orodes flying, nor the wretch pursu'd:
 Nor thought the dastard's back deserv'd a wound,
 But running gain'd th' advantage of the ground.
 Then, turning short, he met him face to face,
 To give his victory the better grace. 1035
 Orodes falls, in equal fight oppress'd:
 Mezentius fix'd his foot upon his breast,

And rested lance: and thus aloud he cries,
 Lo here the champion of my rebels lies.
 The fields around with Iö Pæan ring, 1040
 And peals of shouts applaud the conquering king.
 At this the vanquish'd, with his dying breath,
 Thus faintly spoke, and prophesy'd in death:
 Nor thou, proud man, unpunish'd shalt remain;
 Like death attends thee on this fatal plain. 1045
 'Then, sourly smiling, thus the king reply'd:
 For what belongs to me, let Jove provide;
 But die thou first, whatever chance ensue.
 He said, and from the wound the weapon drew:
 A hovering mist came swimming o'er his fight, 1050
 And seal'd his eyes in everlasting night.
 By Cadicus, Alcathous was slain;
 Sacrator laid Hydaspes on the plain:
 Orfès the strong to greater strength must yield:
 He, with Parthenius, were by Rapo kill'd. 1055
 Then brave Messapus Ericetes slew,
 Who from Lycaon's blood his lineage drew.
 But from his headstrong horse his fate he found,
 Who threw his master as he made a bound;
 The chief, alighting, stuck him to the ground. 1060
 Then Clonius hand in hand, on foot affails,
 The Trojan sinks, and Neptune's son prevails.
 Agis the Lycian, stepping forth with pride,
 To single fight the boldest foe defy'd;
 Whom Tuscan Valerus by force o'ercame, 1065
 And not bely'd his mighty father's fame.

Salius

Salus to death the great Antronus sent,
 But the same fate the victor underwent;
 Slain by Nealees' hand, well skill'd to throw
 The flying dart, and draw the far-deceiving bow. 1070

Thus equal deaths are dealt with equal chance;
 By turns they quit their ground, by turns advance:
 Victors, and vanquish'd, in the various field,
 Nor wholly overcome, nor wholly yield.
 The gods from heaven survey the fatal strife, 1075
 And mourn the miseries of human life.

Above the rest two Goddesses appear
 Concern'd for each: here Venus, Juno there:
 Amidst the crowd infernal Atè shakes
 Her scourge aloft, and crest of hissing snakes. 1080

Once more the proud Mezentius with disdain
 Brandish'd his spear, and rush'd into the plain:
 Where towering in the midmost ranks he stood,
 Like tall Orion stalking o'er the flood:
 When with his brawny breast he cuts the waves, 1085
 His shoulders scarce the topmost billow laves.
 Or like a mountain-ash, whose roots are spread,
 Deep fix'd in earth, in clouds he hides his head.

The Trojan prince beheld him from afar,
 And dauntless undertook the doubtful war. 1090
 Collected in his strength, and like a rock,
 Pois'd on his base, Mezentius stood the shock.
 He stood, and, measuring first with careful eyes
 The space his spear could reach, aloud he cries;
 My strong right-hand, and sword, assist my stroke;
 (Those only gods Mezentius will invoke)

His armour, from the Trojan pirate torn,
 By my triumphant Laufus shall be worn.
 He said, and with his utmost force he threw
 The massy spear, which, hissing as it flew, 1100
 Reach'd the celestial shield that stopp'd the course;
 But glancing thence, the yet-unbroken force
 Took a new bent obliquely, and betwixt
 The sides and bowels fam'd Anthores fix'd.
 Anthores had from Argos travell'd far, 1105
 Alcides' friend, and brother of the war:
 Till, tir'd with toils, fair Italy he chose,
 And in Evander's palace sought repose:
 Now falling by another wound, his eyes
 He cast to heaven, on Argos thinks, and dies. 1110

The pious Trojan then his javelin sent.
 The shield gave way: through treble plates it went
 Of solid brass, of linen trebly roll'd,
 And three bull-hides which round the buckler roll'd.
 All these it pass'd, resistless in the course, 1115
 Transpierc'd his thigh, and spent its dying force.
 The gaping wound gush'd out a crimson flood;
 The Trojan, glad with sight of hostile blood,
 His fauchion drew, to closer fight address'd,
 And with new force his fainting foe oppress'd. 1120

His father's peril Laufus view'd with grief,
 He sigh'd, he wept, he ran to his relief:
 And here, heroic youth, 'tis here I must
 To thy immortal memory be just;
 And sing an act so noble and so new, 1125
 Posterity will scarce believe 'tis true.

Pain'd

Pain'd with his wound, and useleſs for the fight,
 The father fought to ſave himſelf by flight:
 Incumber'd, ſlow he dragg'd the ſpear along, 1130
 Which pierc'd his thigh, and in his buckler hung,
 The pious youth, reſolv'd on death, below
 The liſted ſword ſprings forth, to face the foe; }
 Protects his parent, and prevents the blow. }
 Shouts of applauſe ran ringing through the field,
 To ſee the ſon the vanquiſh'd father ſhield: 1135
 All fir'd with generous indignation ſtrive;
 And, with a ſtorm of darts, at diſtance drive
 The Trojan chief: who, held at bay from far,
 On his Vulcanian orb ſuſtain'd the war.

As when thick hail comes rattling in the wind, 1140
 The ploughman, paſſenger, and labouring hind,
 For ſhelter to the neighbouring covert fly;
 Or hous'd, or ſafe in hollow caverns lie;
 But, that o'erblown, when heaven above them ſmiles,
 Return to travel, and renew their toils; 1145
 Æneas, thus o'erwhelm'd on ev'ry ſide,
 The ſtorm of darts, undaunted, did abide;
 And thus to Laufus loud with friendly threatening }
 cry'd:

Why wilt thou ruſh to certain death, and rage
 In raſh attempts, beyond thy tender age, 1150
 Betray'd by pious love? Nor thus forborn
 The youth deſiſts, but with inſulting ſcorn
 Provokes the lingering prince, whoſe patience, tir'd,
 Gave place, and all his breaſt with fury fir'd.

For

For now the Fates prepar'd their sharpen'd sheers; 1155
 And lifted high the flaming sword appears,
 Which full descending, with a frightful sway,
 Through shield and corset forc'd th' impetuous way, }
 And buried deep in his fair bosom lay.
 The purple streams through the thin armour strove,
 And drench'd th' embroider'd coat his mother wove;
 And life at length forsook his heaving heart,
 Loth from so sweet a mansion to depart.

But when, with blood and paleness all o'erspread,
 The pious prince beheld young Lausus dead; 1165
 He griev'd, he wept, the sight an image brought
 Of his own filial love; a sadly pleasing thought!
 Then stretch'd his hand to hold him up, and said,
 Poor hapless youth! what praises can be paid
 To love so great, to such transcendent store 1170
 Of early worth, and sure presage of more!
 Accept whate'er Æneas can afford:
 Untouch'd thy arms, untaken be thy sword!
 And all that pleas'd thee living, still remain
 Inviolatè, and sacred to the slain! 1175
 Thy body on thy parents I bestow,
 To rest thy soul, at least if shadows know,
 Or have a sense of human things below. }
 There to thy fellow-ghosts with glory tell,
 'Twas by the great Æneas' hand I fell. 1180
 With this his distant friends he beckons near,
 Provokes their duty, and prevents their fear:
 Himself assist to lift him from the ground,
 With clotted locks, and blood that well'd from out the
 wound,

Mean time his father, now no father, stood, 1185
 And wash'd his wounds by Tiber's yellow flood:
 Oppress'd with anguish, panting, and o'erspent,
 His fainting limbs against an oak he leant.
 A bough his brazen helmet did sustain,
 His heavier arms lay scatter'd on the plain: 1190
 A chosen train of youth around him stand,
 His drooping head was rested on his hand:
 His grisly beard his pensive bosom fought,
 And all on Lausus ran his restless thought.
 Careful, concern'd his danger to prevent, 1195
 He much enquir'd, and many a message sent
 To warn him from the field: alas! in vain;
 Behold his mournful followers bear him slain:
 O'er his broad shield still gush'd the yawning wound,
 And drew a bloody trail along the ground. 1200
 Far off he heard their cries, far off divin'd
 The dire event with a foreboding mind.
 With dust he sprinkled first his hoary head,
 Then both his lifted hands to heaven he spread;
 Last the dear corpse embracing, thus he said: 1205 }
 What joys, alas! could this frail being give,
 That I have been so covetous to live?
 To see my son, and such a son, resign
 His life a ransom for preserving mine?
 And am I then preserv'd, and art thou lost? 1210
 How much too dear has that redemption cost!
 'Tis now my bitter banishment I feel;
 This is a wound too deep for time to heal.

My

My guilt thy growing virtues did defame,
 My blackness blotted thy unblemish'd name. 1215
 Chac'd from a throne, abandon'd, and exil'd,
 For foul misdeeds, were punishments too mild:
 I ow'd my people these, and from their hate
 With less resentment could have born my fate.
 And yet I live, and yet sustain the fight 1220
 Of hated men, and of more hated light:
 But will not long. With that he rais'd from ground
 His fainting limbs that stagger'd with his wound.
 Yet with a mind resolv'd, and unappal'd
 With pains or perils, for his courser call'd: 1225
 Well-mouth'd, well-manag'd, whom himself did dress
 With daily care, and mounted with success;
 His aid in arms, his ornament in peace. }
 Soothing his courage with a gentle stroke,
 The steed seem'd sensible, while thus he spoke: 1230
 O Rhæbus, we have liv'd too long for me
 (If life and long were terms that could agree);
 This day thou either shalt bring back the head
 And bloody trophies of the Trojan dead;
 This day thou either shalt revenge my woe 1235
 For murder'd Lausus, on his cruel foe;
 Or, if inexorable Fate deny
 Our conquest, with thy conquer'd master die:
 For, after such a lord, I rest secure, 1239
 Thou wilt no foreign reins, or Trojan load, endure.
 He said: and straight th' officious courser kneels
 To take his wonted weight. His hands he fills

With

With pointed javelins: on his head he lac'd
 His glittering helm, which terribly was grac'd
 With waving horse-hair, nodding from afar; 1245
 Then spurr'd his thundering steed amidst the war.
 Love, anguish, wrath, and grief, to madness wrought,
 Despair, and secret shame, and conscious thought
 Of inborn worth, his labouring soul oppress'd,
 Roll'd in his eyes, and rag'd within his breast. 1250
 Then loud he call'd Æneas thrice by name,
 The loud repeated voice to glad Æneas came.
 Great Jove, he said, and the far-shooting god,
 Inspire thy mind to make thy challenge good.
 He spoke no more, but hasten'd, void of fear, 1255
 And threaten'd with his long protended spear.

To whom Mezentius thus: Thy vaunts are vain,
 My Lausus lies extended on the plain:
 He's lost! thy conquest is already won,
 The wretched sire is murder'd in the son. 1260
 Nor fate I fear, but all the gods defy,
 Forbear thy threats, my business is to die;
 But first receive this parting legacy. }
 He said: and straight a whirling dart he sent:
 Another after, and another went. 1265
 Round in a spacious ring he rides the field,
 And vainly plies th' impenetrable shield: }
 Thrice rode he round, and thrice Æneas wheel'd,
 Turn'd as he turn'd; the golden orb withstood
 The strokes; and bore about an iron wood. 1270
 Impatient of delay, and weary grown,
 Still to defend, and to defend alone:

To wrench the darts which in his buckler light,
 Urg'd and o'erlabour'd in unequal fight:
 At length resolv'd, he throws with all his force 1275
 Full at the temples of the warrior-horse.
 Just where the stroke was aim'd, th' unerring spear
 Made way, and stood transfix'd through either ear.
 Seiz'd with unwonted pain, surpriz'd with fright,
 The wounded steed curvets; and, rais'd upright, 1280
 Lights on his feet before; his hoofs behind
 Spring up in air aloft, and lash the wind.
 Down comes the rider headlong from his height,
 His horse came after with unwieldy weight;
 And, floundering forward, pitching on his head, 1285
 His lord's incumber'd shoulder overlaid,
 From either host the mingled shouts and cries
 Of Trojans and Rutulians rend the skies.
 Æneas, hastening, wav'd his fatal sword
 High o'er his head, with this reproachful word: 1290
 Now, where are now thy vaunts, the fierce disdain
 Of proud Mezentius, and the lofty strain?
 Struggling, and wildly staring on the skies,
 With scarce recover'd fight, he thus replies:
 Why these insulting words, this waste of breath, 1295
 To souls undaunted, and secure of death?
 'Tis no dishonour for the brave to die,
 Nor came I here with hope of victory.
 Nor ask I life, nor fought with that design:
 As I had us'd my fortune, use thou thine. 1300
 My dying son contracted no such band;
 The gift is hateful from his murderer's hand.

For this, this only favour let me sue:
 If pity can to conquer'd foes be due,
 Refuse it not: but let my body have 1305
 The last retreat of human-kind, a grave.
 Too well I know th' insulting people's hate;
 Protect me from their vengeance after fate:
 This refuge for my poor remains provide,
 And lay my much-lov'd Lausus by my side. 1310 }
 He said, and to the throat his sword apply'd. }
 The crimson stream distain'd his arms around,
 And the disdainful soul came rushing through the wound.
